JAPAN'S NAVAL ACTION BRINGS NEW PROBLEMS

Roosevelt Is Silent on His Course.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Japan's abrogation of the navy limitation treaties, which the state department expects to receive Saturday, will usher in a period of delicate world politics through which President Roosevelt will be required to steer the ship of state.

War clouds hovering not only over Europe but over the orient are ominous reminders of potential storms. To keep America clear of these will call for vision, preparedness and a high order of statesmanship generally.

As to the course he intends to pursue the President has not disclosed his hand to any great extent. On the navy limitation question he has moved with the utmost circumspection. He firmly declined to accede to the Japanese demands for naval tonnage equality, taking the position that the existing 5-5-3 ratio provides that equality of security for which America stands.

Frowns on Building.

He approved the warning uttered by his ambassador at large, Norman H. Davis, that Japan's denunciation of the Washington treaty would incite a navy building race, but he poured cold water on the declaration of Representative Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.], chairman of the house naval affairs committee, in favor of America building five tons of warships for every three built by Japan. Likewise he discouraged agitation for a naval base in the Aleutian Islands, to create which the scrapping of the Washington treaty will leave the United States free.

That the President is giving consideration to the question of keeping the country out of any war that may develop is evidenced by the study the state department is making of neutral rights. The point being particularly debated is whether the United States shall abandon the doctrine of freedom of the seas, thereby withdrawing protection from Americans and their property in a zone of war. It was insistence upon the rights of neutrals on the high seas that constituted the direct cause of our entrance into the world war.

League Awaiting Cue.

Waiver of our neutral rights would bring the United States into harmony with the league of nations, under the covenant of which there is no such thing as neutrality. Great Britain and other league members have been maneuvering for years to get America to forgo neutral rights whenever the league proceeds against a nation it declares an aggressor.

Incidentally there is more discussion in Washington than ever before of the possibility of Mr. Roosevelt taking us into the league. His action in getting congress to authorize the United States to join the international labor office, an adjunct of the league, is widely construed a step in this direction. It is no secret that the administration expects to put the country into the world court, another league agency, during the approaching session of congress.

Philippines Case Cited.

In the Pacific region the Philippines have become a source of anxiety. Under the independence act the islands are to be cut loose from the United States in a decade. During the preparation for the transition the President is to negotiate a treaty with all nations for the perpetual neutralization of the islands. The Japanese ambassador says Japan does not want the islands and will sign such a treaty. Cynics have inquired whether Japan could be expected to abide by such a treaty any more faithfully than the nine power treaty which did not prevent her from seizing Manchuria.

America retains the right to maintain a naval base in the Philippines, which could be developed after the expiration of the Washington treaty, Dec. 31, 1936. Now the argument is heard that the retention of such a base would only invite trouble with Japan unless the United States is prepared to build and maintain a navy capable of dominating the Pacific.

British Are Concerned.

Indications are not wanting that the British are viewing with concern any move on the part of the United States to build a navy that might exceed her own. They want some kind of limitation agreement between the two coun-

OFFER 3 TRUCKS OF EVIDENCE IN LINDY KIDNAPING

Prosecutors Gird to Try Hauptmann.

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Three automobile truckloads of exhibits and documentary evidence will be brought here from Trenton and New York by the state of New Jersey in the next few days for use in its case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, charged with the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

During the trial, which will begin next Wednesday morning, this material will be guarded by New Jersey state troopers in the office of Anthony M. Hauck Jr., prosecutor of Hunterdon county, and in the adjoining grand jury room of the county courthouse where the trial will be held.

Together with the fact that the prosecution intends to call about 125 witnesses—many of them experts—the amount of this material indicates the magnitude of the state's case. The defense is expected to be voluminous also, and it is believed that the trial will last at least a month, perhaps considerably longer.

Ready but for Few Points.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz and his assistants conferred in Trenton today and announced they would hold probably their last conference there tomorrow. Wilentz said the case against Hauptmann had been completed except for a few points of law to be considered. The case has been gone over carefully, he said, so that it can be presented clearly and without waste of time.

It is understood here that Hauck will open the state's case with a brief address outlining what the prosecution hopes to prove, after the jury has been selected. Defense counsel will not make its address to the jury until after the state has completed the presentation of its evidence.

Wilentz denied a report that Betty Gow, the Lindbergh infant's nursemaid at the time of the kidnaping, who arrived from Scotland this week as a witness for the state, was questioned this afternoon at New Jersey state police headquarters in Alpine. It was admitted that Miss Gow would be questioned before the trial, but the time and place of the examination were withheld.

Today the prosecutors examined Albert S. and Albert D. Osborn, New York handwriting experts, who will testify that Hauptmann, in their opinion, wrote the ransom notes.

Will Dodge Alibi Law.

The attorney general disclosed that the state did not intend to take advantage of New Jersey's new "alibi law," under which a defendant using an alibi as a defense may be required by the state to submit a list of his alibi witnesses five days before they are called.

Lloyd Fisher, Frederick A. Pope and Egbert Rosecrans of defense counsel conferred today in Somerville on their plans for presenting their case. Prosecutor Hauck had denied a request of the defense to take about fifteen witnesses to the county jail to talk with Hauptmann.

Sheriff Curtiss explained today that his assessment of $10 each for press tickets at the trial was "voluntary," and that newspapers could contribute or not without affecting the tickets already allotted them.

His statement followed protests by representatives of a New York evening newspaper and statements by Gov. A. Harry Moore at Trenton, urging that the money already collected be refunded and that no more be collected.

JAPAN INDICTS 17 LEADERS OVER CABINET SCANDAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Dec. 28 (Friday).—The case for the prosecution in the scandal that brought down the cabinet of Viscount Makoto Saito last summer was disclosed last night when the department of justice returned indictments charging bribery or perjury against 17 men prominent in politics and business.

Two of the accused are former cabinet members and the others include a former vice minister of finance, a former bank president, four treasury bureau chiefs, and a number of directors and business men more or less well known.

Baron Kumakichi Nakajima, 61, former minister of communications, is accused of accepting as a bribe 300 shares and 10,000 yen in cash. Chuzo Mitcuchi, 64, former minister of finance, is charged with perjury in denying knowledge of the affair in order to protect the cabinet when the scandal broke.

EDUCATOR TELLS HIS PUPILS TO STUTTER AND THEY LOSE HABIT!

No longer does the modern Demosthenes roll pebbles under his tongue to cure himself of stuttering. Instead, he forces himself to stutter—and his results far excel those obtained by the ancient Greek orator.

This device of stuttering to stop stuttering was advocated yesterday before the American Society for the Study of Speech Disorders at the Auditorium hotel by Dr. Bryng Bryngelson, director of the speech clinic of the University of Minnesota.

The efficacy of the treatment, shown in the fact that in 60 per cent of his cases it has proved the starting point for a definite cure, lies in the fact that it puts the stutterer on the offensive rather than the defensive, he explained. Instead of waiting to stumble over a word, the afflicted person compels himself to stumble over it, and thus in time gains control over the nervousness that causes his difficulty.

That stuttering has been proved to be an herditary disorder was the theory advanced earlier in the afternoon by Joseph M. Wepman of the central free dispensary of Rush Medical college. In a survey of 127 stuttering children he stated that the speech impediment is transmitted either as a purely hereditary tendency or as a sex linked trait.

Rush Nurse's Murder Trial to Jury Today

With speed seldom equaled in murder cases involving women defendants, the state yesterday rushed the selection of a jury, presented its evidence with great celerity and closed its case against Miss Bernadine Dunning, 26 years old, a nurse, who is charged with the murder of Policeman Louis Kolb of the Chicago Lawn station. She is on trial before a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Marshaling his witnesses with precision, Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty brought his case to a surprising close within an hour and twenty minutes after the speedy selection of the jury. Judge Harrington then overruled a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty made by Defense Attorneys Emmet Byrne and Harold Levy.

Defense Closes; Near Jury.

The defense closed its case late in the afternoon. Miss Dunning did not take the stand. Only character witnesses—a half dozen employés of the Southtown hospital where she was employed—appeared on her behalf.

Prosecutor Dougherty had begun his closing arguments when Judge Harrington adjourned court for the day because of the death of his sister, Sister Mary Tarcisia, a member of the order of the Sisters of Mercy. She died in the Mercy hospital.

The case probably will go to the jury today.

The first state's witness was Mrs. Dorothy Kolb, widow of the policeman. She testified she had last seen her husband alive on the morning of Sept. 26 when he left to report for duty. He was found shot to death early in the morning of the 28th.

Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle was the next to take the witness stand. He told of a 15 page statement he took from Miss Dunning after the shooting.

Policeman Tells of Death Scene.

The third state's witness was Policeman Joseph Heimoski of the Chicago Lawn station.

"We received a radio call to go to 74th street and Irving avenue," he testified in answer to questions. "When we arrived we heard a woman crying, 'Oscar, Oscar, speak to me.' We traced the cries to an automobile where we found Miss Dunning leaning over Kolb's body." Miss Dunning, in questioning that followed, explained that "Oscar" was a pet name by which she affectionately spoke to Policeman Kolb.

E. Shely, attendant in a gasoline station at 74th street and Western avenue, was the last witness for the state. He told of seeing Miss Dunning rush into the station at 4:30 in the morning. He quoted her as saying "A man shot himself" and said she asked that police be summoned.

Prosecutor Dougherty then completed his case by reading two statements taken from Miss Dunning, one of them the fifteen page document referred to by Boyle. In this statement Miss Dunning was quoted as saying she shot Kolb while attempting to resist his attentions.

She had known the policeman for a year, Miss Dunning said in her statement, but did not know he was married. On the night of the shooting, she said, they went to a movie and later to a tavern. Kolb refused to let her go home, she continued in the statement, but drove her to the prairie district where the shooting occurred. During the struggle, the statement read, Miss Dunning's hand suddenly fell on Kolb's revolver.

"I just pulled the trigger," Dougherty read from the statement, "that is all."

The defense moved for its directed verdict of not guilty on the ground that Kolb was attempting a felony—rape—when slain and that the slaying constituted justifiable homicide.

"I think there is enough evidence in this case to require its going to the jury," Judge Harrington commented in overruling the motion.

ECONOMISTS FAVOR SPEEDY U. S. RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD

The United States should return as soon as possible to a fixed gold standard, ninety-five of the nation's leading monetary economists here for the annual meeting of the American Economic association declared last night.

In answer to a questionnaire submitted by officers of the economists' national committee on monetary policy, the ninety-five members of the committee gave the following replies:

Ninety-four per cent held the government immediately should declare whether it intends to return to the gold standard as important to economic recovery.

One hundred per cent held imperative a speedy return to a fixed gold standard.

One hundred per cent held current silver purchases were dangerous as an inflationary measure.

Seventy-eight per cent believed the present trend in the United States is toward inflation by "the dangerous" expansion of money.

Eighty-eight per cent believe it is unlikely that inflation will be controled.

The committee expressed opposition to a managed currency, was unanimous in opposing frequent changes in the weight of gold units, and said that if there is to be currency management it should be in the hands of the federal reserve.

SIDELIGHTS ON PAPERS READ BY 3,000 SCIENTISTS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP)—There are 3,000 scientists who have prepared 1,400 papers at the meeting here of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Here are a few interesting sidelights from some of the topics discussed today:

American honey bees are being rapidly killed off in some sections by chemical poisons spread from airplanes and intended to kill crop pests, two scientists reported today. Such poison dusts often drift through the air and land on flowers, the association was told by Dr. J. E. Eckert and H. E. Allinger of University of California.

Snowshoes and skis, now used in winter sports, both originated in prehistoric Asia several thousand years ago, Dr. D. S. Davidson of University of Pennsylvania reported. The laced snowshoe was developed in the new world, he said, while in Europe and Asia the development led to the modern ski.

The old strategy of pitting one of your enemies against another to save yourself works among farm pests, too. The way to control plant lice, which attack peas, melons, etc., is to plant these crops in strips among other crops such as corn and cotton. These latter encourage the natural enemies of lice, among which are the ladybird beetles.

If plants are like men, the hardiness of mountaineers is easier to understand, judging from experiments with plants reported by Dr. David Keck, Carnegie institution of Washington and Stanford university. He found high mountain plants were less able to adjust themselves to unfamiliar conditions than others, probably because for countless generations only the hardy ones survived, producing a specialized race.

There are no spinsters or widows among the Tiwi, a tribe of Australian natives. All women have to marry. They believe children of the same father should normally be enemies. The finest family in their estimation consists of a number of sisters married to the same man. They were studied by Dr. C. W. M. Hart of University of Toronto.

Each human being lives in a different world and a world that is subject to change without notice, as far as his senses are concerned, Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee of Carnegie institution told the scientists. He has found people's sense of taste varies enormously, with no two alike. One man can test a chemical diluted to one part in 1,280,000 for example, while another cannot taste it until it is concentrated at one part in 312. To one man cascara is twice as bitter as quinine, to another quinine is 256 times as bitter as cascara.

Why is the moth drawn to the flame? Because of the pigment in its eye, reported Dr. Donald Collins and William Machado of the New York state agricultural experiment station. Only while the pigment in its eye is moving, or migrating, is the moth attracted to the light.

A new seedless grape of muscat flavor was announced by Elmer Snyder of the department of agricultural experimental vineyard at Fresno, Cal. It is a cross of the black Monukka grape and muscat Hamburg black grapes. It may produce a seedless raisin.

Two kinds of substances that enable fish to change color or "blush," which are produced by the nerves, were described by Dr. G. H. Parker of Harvard. These are called neurohumors, and spread onto the color cells of the body, causing them to darken or turn lighter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins announced today that beginning Feb. 1 the states, counties, or local communities will be required to take care of their own unemployable persons, an estimated 20 per cent of the total relief load. Significance was attached to the announcement for these reasons:

1. Administration leaders have been urging upon the President a gigantic work program under which the care of all persons unable to work would revert to the states.

2. The action may force states to adopt old age pension laws. Some of the President's advisers want a federal old age pension law, but he has indicated that he favors postponing such legislation.

Would Affect 3,800,000.

Hopkins estimated that of the 19,000,000 persons on relief throughout the country, 20 per cent, or 3,800,000 were receiving relief for reasons other than unemployment. He said the plan to make the states take care of these people would not necessarily mean an increase of 20 per cent in their relief burden. He explained that many states or counties were already supporting their unemployables and indicated that the local contributions to unemployment relief might be adjusted in some cases if states found themselves unable to maintain their present percentages in addition to supporting the unemployable.

The national average of state contributions to relief costs is about 33 per cent, and this would more than pay the cost for the so-called unemployables. However, many southern states have been depending almost entirely upon the government to carry their relief loads, and under the new plan they would have to pay at least 20 per cent of the cost.

Percentages About Same.

Hopkins also announced that state and local funds spent on relief during the first 10 months of 1934 increased by almost 30 per cent over the corresponding months in 1933. The administrator seemed much gratified at this showing, but admitted when questioned that there has been no such increase in the comparative percentages. The states and local communities have been spending more money, but the government's costs have increased at the same time, so that the average percentage of local contributions has remained fairly constant. There are 500,000 more families receiving relief than there were a year ago.

"Contrary to the impression in some quarters," Hopkins said, "the states, counties, and towns on the whole have not relaxed their efforts to provide their share of relief financing. During the first 10 months of 1934, state and local funds used for relief totaled $323,890,560, or $71,514,677 more than the $252,375,883 spent in the same period of 1933."

Leaves 15½ Million.

Eliminating the unemployables, or 20 per cent of 19,000,000, would leave 15½ million people to be provided for if the government undertook to substitute work relief for the dole. This would be roughly 4 million families. Since 2 million families already are receiving their sustenance from work relief, that would leave 2 million more for the government to supply with jobs.

Hopkins, Secretary of the Interior

Ickes, and other administration leaders urging a vast works program mention housing, rural electrification, and grade separation works as possibilities. However, if such a program did not provide work for a proportionately greater number than the PWA program has, the government would have to adopt something like the old graft ridden CWA.

It has been shown that work relief costs at least 40 per cent more than the dole, exclusive of materials, and the national industrial conference board estimates it at 50 per cent. Recognizing this and urging that the budget be balanced as soon as possible, the White Sulphur Springs conference of business leaders recommended that public works be rigidly limited.

REPORT IDLENESS JUMP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Further increases in unemployment in November and December were reported today by the American Federation of Labor.

The federation placed the total number out of work at the end of November at 11,459,000, an increase of 420,000 over October and of more than 400,000 over November last year.

Preliminary trade union reports indicated further increases for December, the federation said.

Increase in Population.

The increase in the army of the jobless over last year was attributed to "the normal increase in population, which yearly adds more than 400,000 to the army of job seekers."

"Our industries," the federation said, "have not created enough jobs in the last twelve months to put these boys and girls to work, or, if they have found jobs, it has been at the expense of some older persons employed."

Finds Bright Spot.

The federation found one bright spot in its figures—a 2 per cent gain in union employment in building. That gain, it said, was the first since 1928.

When compared with last year farm employment in November fell off by 200,000, the federation said. It attributed that drop to the drouth. There were slight gains in manufacturing, coal mines, wholesale and retail trades.

NRA ORDERS PAY FOR EMPLOYES DURING DELAYS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A decision affecting coded industry, providing that employés in such industries must be compensated for "work interruption beyond their control" was made today by the National Recovery administration.

Causes of "interruption" over which the employés, in the opinion of the NRA authorities, presumably have no control, include breakdowns, delays, and time spent waiting for materials from the loading or unloading of railroad cars and other vehicles of transportation.

The decision results from an investigation of complaints of alleged practices of some employers, subject to various codes, of enforcing reductions in pay for interruptions beyond the control of the employés. The complaints were that these reductions were based on circumstances in no way involving the willingness of the employé to work.

The question the NRA was asked to answer was:

"Under the maximum hour and minimum wage provisions of codes may an employer properly require an employé to take time out for such interruptions and not compute such time in determining maximum hours of labor and the wages of such employé?"

BRAZIL LAUNCHES NEW DEAL PLAN; COST $40,000,000

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A Brazilian counterpart of the United States' New Deal for relief and agricultural rehabilitation was set in motion today.

President Getulio Vargas has been authorized, a government announcement said, to issue bonds up to $40,000,000 to finance the program. The minister of finance said the bonds would be issued in denominations of one conto [about $80] and one-half conto, bearing interest at five per cent.

The government plans to cut the mortgages of Brazilian farmers in half by offering to issue bonds to creditors equivalent to one-half the amount owed them in return for cancelation of the remaining one-half of the debts.

To qualify for the government aid, farmers must prove they are engaged in raising crops, are in debt and willing to attempt to extend and intensify their cultivation of the soil once their debt burden is relieved.

Mr. Lytton said his dressing gown had been ignited by a gas heater and that the flames had spread to some towels, eventually wrecking the room. BRITAIN TO SPEND 40 MILLION MORE BY DOLE REFORM

Finds Elastic System for Relief of Idle.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 27.—More money and fairer means of getting it will be the lot of Great Britain's unemployed if the new regulations just drafted by the unemployment assistance board meet the approval of parliament.

For the first time in the country's history relief of the unemployed will be treated as a national charge instead of being left to the discretion of a multitude of local boards.

Under the new regulations an additional sum of $40,000,000 will be spent for the 1,000,000 men and women out of work in Great Britain—a number that does not include the 1,000,000 or so out of work from time to time—and, in all, roughly $250,000,000 will be spent.

Less Than if Working.

The basic idea of the new regulations, which will complete the reform of relief administration, is that the idle shall not get as much money as they would get if they were working. Great Britain has no desire to bring up a class of men and women who will be content to sit back and say, "Why should I work? The government gives me all I need." This was a charge frequently leveled at the dole before the reform was undertaken and the "means test," which requires the applicant to prove his need for relief, was put into practice.

The scope of the new scheme is much broader than that of unemployment insurance, including farm workers and domestic servants as well as nonmanual workers with incomes when employed of less than $1,250 a year.

The great feature of the new regulations is their great elasticity. Relief can be lowered or raised according to the amount of rent paid, and those persons such as teachers and shop salesmen and saleswomen who must keep up personal appearances will be entitled to draw more money to help them do it.

"Pots and Pans" Clause.

A third point, popularly called the "pots and pans clause," will permit the officers of the administrative board to supply clothing, bedding or household equipment whenever a household is in such distress as to need this charity.

Nobody is going to get a great deal of money individually, for the allowance for a man and wife will be only 24 shillings, or $6, a week, while a single man out of work and living as a lodger or boarder will get only 15 shillings, or $3.75 a week, and spinsters, of whom there are many in Great Britain, will get $3.50.

Following is the scale of allowances to be put in practice all over England, each figure being for a week:

Man and wife	$6.00
Single householder [male]	4.00
Single householder [female]	3.50

Members household not getting either of foregoing sums:

If 21 or over, for first male member	$2.50
Each subsequent male member	2.00
For first female member	2.00
Each subsequent member	1.75

Favors Families.

These regulations will make it easier for the unemployed to raise children, as allowances rise as a child grows older. For babies up to 5 years the allowance is 75 cents a week; for children between 5 and 8, 87 cents; those between 8 and 11 will get $1, between 11 and 14, $1.12, and those between 14 and 18, and when they are maturing and must be presentable enough to hunt work, will get $1.50.

In allowing $6 a week for man and wife it is assumed that their rent should be 7 shillings and sixpence or $1.87 a week. Here the elasticity of the new regulations will come into play, for extra allowances will be made if the rent is higher and the examiners find that the rent is reasonable.

In granting personal allowances the examiners shall not take into consideration $1.25 a week in sick pay from a friendly society, $1.87 a week in health insurance, the maternity benefit, $5 a weel for disability pensions, or one-half of workmen's compensation payments.

Allow Some Capital.

Mere possession of some capital does not exclude a man from obtaining relief if he is out of work. Ownership of the house in which he lives, or part ownership, will be wholly disregarded under the "needs" test.

In addition, the first $1.25 of any other capital will be disregarded and the rest of such capital up to $1,500 will be considered as yielding an income of 25 cents a week for each separate sum of $125. The result will be that a man getting $1 a week as income of capital of $500 will find that only 75 cents a week will be deducted from his dole allowance. Capital over $1,500 will bar a man from the dole.

This treatment of capital is designed to spare people from being obliged to sell whatever they possess so as to live and to obviate one danger of the depression. People are to be encouraged to hold on to their stake in the country and its future.

BOY KILLED BY TRAIN.

Charles Horton, 15 years old, 1654 North Monticello avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by a westbound Milwaukee railroad passenger train at Lawndale and Chicago avenues. He died as he was being taken to the Danish American hospital.

MOVE TO KEEP MANY STUDENTS OUT OF COLLEGES IN U. S.

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Complicated and widespread efforts to keep students out of college instead of bringing in as many as possible are being made by many of the privately endowed colleges, Dr. Robert L. Kelly, executive secretary of the Association of American Colleges, disclosed tonight.

Dr. Kelly asserted that colleges are making a careful selection of students and are giving "12 or 15 kinds of tests" to weed out those not capable of four years of higher education.

"In the past," he said, "it was the belief that every student should have the privilege of starting at kindergarten and going through to a Ph. D. without its costing him a cent.

"But the colleges now feel that not by any means should all young people in this country go to college. A great majority ought not to go—as a matter of fact, a great majority don't."

GRANDPARENTS ASK CUSTODY OF 3 CUSACK BOYS

Cuero, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Charles Cusack's contest with his estranged wife over custody of their children became more complicated today when Mrs. Cusack's parents sued for custody of the three young boys.

In their petition, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Hamilton, asked custody on grounds that "recriminatory and irreconcilable acts of Mr. and Mrs. Cusack were dangerously injurious to the children." Hamilton said "neither parent is a suitable custodian of the children."

District Judge J. P. Pool issued an injunction restraining Cusack and his wife from taking any action while the suit is pending.

Cusack, Los Angeles broker, accompanied by an attorney and a Los Angeles county deputy sherif came here today from San Antonio, and Sherif G. A. Markowsky served him with papers in the suit. Without seeing his wife Cusack returned to San Antonio.

Mrs. Cusack has kept the children under guard since bringing them to her parents' home from Beverly Hills Cal., in violation of a California court order.

Cites Bible to Prove Nazis Are Doomed; Gets 6 Mos.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HALLE, Germany, Dec. 27.—Because he took a Bible to his girl friend to show her passages which he claimed proved Nazilism is doomed and would soon be replaced by the kingdom of Jehovah, Erich Schauer, 25, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment today. Halle is one of the centers of an association of serious Bible students which was dissolved several months ago.

RAIDERS ARREST 3, SEIZING LOOT OF SHOPLIFTERS

'Substantial Citizen' and Store Owner Held.

Frank Wilson, 42 years old, 6631 Ottawa street, regarded by his neighbors as one of the substantial residents of the Edison Park section on the northwest side, was arrested by police yesterday as the alleged fence for a network of shoplifters and other varieties of thieves operating in the central west.

Also arrested was Wilson's wife, June, 40 years old. Both, the police said, have long records as shoplifters.

Store Owner Also Arrested.

At the same time the police seized Isadore Silverman, 45 years old, proprietor of a general merchandise store at 4719 Sheridan road, said to be the point from which stolen merchandise was sold to the public. A trunk containing stolen merchandise valued at $2,500 was found in the store basement, according to Lieut. Thomas Kelly, who led the raids.

Among the articles found in the trunk were fur coats, lingerie, perfumes, rugs, and other articles bearing the labels of storekeepers in most of the larger cities of the central west. Much similar merchandise was taken from the sumptuously furnished Wilson home.

Home Watched Three Weeks.

Lieut. Kelly said his investigation indicated that "workers" in the field operated in distant cities, shipping their loot to Chicago. Here it was handled by Wilson, who, under cover of being a wealthy resident of Edison Park, actually acted as the "wholesaler," Kelly said.

Police have been watching the store and home for three weeks, they revealed. On Friday they saw the trunk delivered to Silverman's store, where Silverman and Wilson removed its contents.

Silverman was booked on a charge of receiving stolen property, and is to be arraigned in the Felony court today. The Wilsons are being held, however, while police talk to the merchants whose labels appear on the stolen merchandise. Lieut. Kelly predicted the value of the recovered articles would eventually total several times that of the goods thus far discovered.

DIES OF CHRISTMAS FALL.

Torley Walthier, 70 years old, 1835 Lincoln avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Christmas eve, when he fell on the sidewalk near his home. His skull was fractured in the fall.

"We believe that in the interest of the whole people, all legislative policy should be directed to the earliest revival of private enterprise."

The organizations endorsing the recovery program are, Associated Industries, Inc., by Maxwell S. Wheeler, president; Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York, Thomas I. Magnus, president, and New York State Economic council, William C. Breed, chairman of the board of directors.

STEAL GOLD TIPS OFF MONUMENT FOR WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—(AP)—A contractor sadly reflected today that even the tip of the Washington monument is not safe from thieves.

A cratelike scaffolding has encased the 550 foot shaft for weeks, and because some sure footed robber was willing to take a chance, the contractor today had to dig down to pay for 107 gold plated, platinum tipped lightning rods.

The rods, valued at $8 apiece, or $856 all together, must be replaced. They are used, officials of the national park service said, to prevent discoloration of the shaft should lighting strike. Copper tips were tried once upon a time, but they failed to do the work of the more precious metals.

A contracting firm was given the lightning rod job while the tall spire was being cleaned and repaired. Visitors were allowed and sightseers were unofficially blamed by the contracting firm. The steel framework is being torn down now and no more visitors will be allowed.

Police said they had no report of the theft.

The firm of Alexander Howie Company, Inc., the contractor, could find some comfort in the fact that there were 170 of the gold and platinum tips in all and that 63 still remain.

SERB QUEEN ASKS HUNTFORGUNGIRL IN ASSASSIN GANG

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A renewed search for the mysterious blonde "gun girl" of the terrorist band accused of assssinating King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia here on Oct. 9 was asked today by the king's widow, Dowager Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia.

The request was made through Joseph Paul-Boncour, former premier of France, who will represent the queen at the trial opening here shortly of three alleged accomplices of the assassin. He asked the investigating magistrate to reopen the inquiry in France and Switzerland and particularly in Bulgaria.

TRUE BILL NAMES ERICKSEN WIDOW ON MURDER COUNT

State to Ask Death Decree —2 Youths Included.

CRIMINAL COURT.

STEVE GERLICH and ANDREW RATKOVICH, burning to defraud, sentenced to one to ten years each in the penitentiary; MORRIS ZARANSKY, receiving stolen property, sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Mrs. Anna Ericksen, 38 years old, mother of six children, was reported named in a true bill by the grand jury yesterday as the instigator of her husband's murder by two youths who were promised $500 for the crime. The husband, George Ericksen, owner of the Airport grill, 6001 South Cicero avenue, was shot to death last Saturday behind his home at 6221 South Keating avenue.

James Senese, 19 years old, 6204 South Keating avenue, who confessed the shooting and said Mrs. Ericksen urged him to carry it out, and Elmer Kreuger, 21 years old, 3434 West 114th street, who was to get $250 of the $500, testified before the grand jury, and they, too, were reported named in the true bill which charged murder.

State to Ask Death Penalty.

Assistant State's Attorney John S. Boyle, who after an investigation of the shooting said he was prepared to ask the death penalty for the widow, said the condition of the Criminal court docket was such that Mrs. Ericksen would be brought to trial within two or three weeks. He was still of the opinion, he said, that the state would insist that the proper penalty is death for her in the electric chair. A lesser punishment seemed probable for the youths in view of their confessions.

Gordon Dake, a truck driver, was one of the witnesses before the grand jury. He was reported to have testified to giving Mrs. Ericksen the pistol used in the crime. Geraldine Ericksen, 19 year old daughter of the victim, was another witness.

While the grand jury was hearing the evidence Mrs. Ericksen was attending a coroner's inquest held in the Chicago Lawn station. She had previously denied hiring Senese to slay her husband. At the inquest she was warned she need not testify and that if she testified anything she said might be used against her. She declined to testify.

Confers with 2 Children.

Permission had been given for her to attend her husband's funeral on Wednesday, but she preferred not to because she "couldn't face the children after all that has been printed in the papers."

At the inquest she had a private interview with two of her children, George Jr., 17 years old, and Geraldine.

The children said they didn't know what to think or do. They didn't know whether what they might say would help or harm their mother so they said nothing except that George denied having had trouble with his father.

William Ericksen and Mrs. Julia Ericksen Nolan, brother and mother of the victim, appeared at the inquest and comforted the weeping widow. They expressed the opinion she was not guilty of arranging the murder of Ericksen and they told her so. The coroner's jury concurred in the action of the grand jury.

Senese and Kreuger were taken to the county jail from the state's attorney's office last evening. Mrs. Ericksen was held in the women's annex of the Hyde Park police station, but will be removed to the county jail today.

POLICE CLOSE BURLESQUE AND 3 LIQUOR SPOTS

Acting on a license revocation order signed by Mayor Kelly, police yesterday interrupted the afternoon show in the Star and Garter burlesque theater at 815 West Madison street and forced the closing of the house.

The mayor acted after investigators assigned by Capt. Patrick Collins of the Des Plaines street police visited a "midnight shambles" at the theater early Sunday. Their verdict was that the actors told lewd jokes and that the chorus girls wore little or nothing, while patrons drank freely as they applauded for more impropriety.

About 200 patrons were in the theater when the closing order was carried out.

Immediately afterwards, the police closed the tavern of Barney Wolfberg at 823 Madison street, a few doors from the theater. Mayor Kelly canceled the tavern's license on reports that the burlesque chorines had also staged an indecent performance there and were served drinks after hours.

Two other license revocations ordered by Mayor Kelly were those of the Rosal club at 1251 North Clark street, and the 1230 club at 1230 Clybourn avenue. Their owners were charged with selling liquor after hours and conducting places to the detriment of public morals. Both clubs catered to women.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

MANICURIST GETS BRIDEWELL TERM AS DRUNK DRIVER

Miss Lu Malone, 27 years old, 6340 West 74th street, a manicurist, was sentenced to ten days in the Bridewell and fined $100 on a charge of driving while intoxicated by Judge Joseph Graber in the Safety court yesterday.

Tony Steele, 35 years old, 5921 South Damen avenue, her companion, was fined $50 on a charge of disorderly conduct. Steele, who owns the car, sought to take the blame by asserting he had asked Miss Malone to drive because he was too intoxicated.

According to the testimony of policemen, Steele and Miss Malone left the Club Royal early Thursday morning. They were driving east in Hyde Park boulevard when the car crashed into a truck at University avenue.

MRS. VANDERBILT DENIED RIGHT AS GIRL'S GUARDIAN

Order Refusing Plea Is Signed by Court.

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Surrogate James A. Foley today signed an order formally denying the application of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt for her appointment as guardian of her 10 year old daughter, Gloria. Hearing on a companion application that she be appointed a co-guardian of the child's property was set for Jan. 3.

The order also formally struck out the notices of appearance in the proceedings of Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the child's aunt, who won custody of little Gloria five days of each week in the habeas corpus proceedings before Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, and the child's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Laura K. Morgan.

Other Findings Included.

The order incorporated findings made in a decision handed down by the surrogate several weeks ago.

A counterorder submitted by Mrs. Vanderbilt, through her attorney, Nathan Burkan, providing that the denial of custody to Mrs. Vanderbilt be made without prejudice was not signed by the surrogate. The counter order included the words "is hereby without prejudice." This was the only difference in the orders. A memorandum submitted by Mrs. Vanderbilt's counterorder provided that the custody application "may be withdrawn without prejudice."

Evidence Is Limited.

The signed order provides that at the hearing on Jan. 3 the evidence will be limited strictly to the question raised by the petitioner as to whether a third co-guardian of the property of the child should be appointed to protect the property, and if so, whether Mrs. Vanderbilt is fit and competent to be appointed, "but no evidence of moral character or lack of moral character of said petitioner, Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, will be received, as the custody of said infant is not involved in this proceedings."

HUNT ENGINEER AFTER OAK PARK FATHER'S PLEA

Oak Park police instituted a search last night for Earl Stover, 38 years old, of Long Beach, Ind., on the plea of his father, George Stover, 1148 Pleasant avenue, Oak Park.

Earl Stover, who lived with his wife, Alice, in Long Beach, has been unemployed for some time, the father said, and left his home Dec. 20 to motor to Cleveland. There he was to meet an official of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., who had promised him a job as an engineer.

Yesterday Stover's wife called his father, saying she had not heard from her husband since his departure. The man whom he was to meet had called several times, she said.

SON, 28, LEAVES FLAT FIRST TIME IN YEARS AFTER FATHER DIES

For the first time in years Donald Austin Kratzner, 26 years old, yesterday walked out of a flat at 1428 South Wabash avenue. He had been kept there virtually as a willing prisoner by his father, Henry Kratzner, an artist.

The father, who was 58 years old, died Christmas day while attending a dinner party at the home of a relative at 1053 North Mason avenue. Yesterday other relatives went to the police and requested aid in taking the young man from the flat. The police persuaded him to accompany them to the detective bureau, where he was questioned and then sent to the psychopathic hospital for examination.

Kratzner said vaguely that he had not been out of the flat since 1930, when his mother died. His father, he said, had treated him kindly. The relatives told the police that the artist had kept his son a recluse since he was very young.

URGE ELEVATED CROSSING WHERE TRAIN KILLED 7

A coroner's jury investigating the Harvey railroad crossing tragedy Wednesday in which seven persons were killed when a train crashed into an automobile returned a verdict of accidental death yesterday and recommended changes which would prevent similar tragedies in the future.

The recommendations were that the death crossing at Halsted street near 154th place, in the suburb, be separated from the highway by elevation; that a flagman be kept on duty twenty-four hours a day until this is accomplished, and that a Harvey ordinance, limiting the speed of trains within the village limits to twenty-five miles per hour, be rigidly enforced.

Ray Laffin, 38 years old, 936 North 16th street, Milwaukee, was fatally burned last night when the truck in which he was riding burst into flames after colliding with a Milwaukee road freight train in route 173, two miles north of Wadsworth, in Lake county. Knocked unconscious in the crash, Laffin was dragged from the truck by Earl Henry, a farmer living nearby. He was taken to St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, where he died.

Thomas McClure, 61 years old, 7312 Vincennes avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Dec. 20 when he was struck by a truck at Clark and 16th streets.

McClure's death brought the 1934 motor toll in Cook county to 1,246.

Compel Manufacturer and Wife to Give Up Auto

LIBBY REYNOLDS GIVEN $750,000; ACCEPTS PACT

Her Son's Share to Be 7 Millions.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The proposed settlement of Smith Reynolds' estate was accepted formally today by Libby Holman Reynolds. That proposal, made by the two sisters and a brother of the young tobacco heir, gives Libby Holman's son, Christopher Reynolds, $7,000,000, Libby herself $750,000.

Acceptance was filed by Robert C. Vaughan as "next friend" to the baby, after the mysterious death of young Reynolds in July, 1932. The court was asked by Mr. Vaughan not to hold in prejudice the claims of the baby for a larger share of the estate if the settlement should be ruled against.

Further Details of Contest.

The latest turn in the case came after Mrs. Annie L. Cannon, co-guardian with the Cabarrus Bank and Trust company of Anne Cannon Reynolds II., Smith Reynolds' daughter by his first marriage to Anne Cannon, had demanded the entire $25,000,000 estate for that child.

Mrs. Cannon says Reynolds' marriage to Miss Holman was void, because the divorce her daughter obtained in Reno was illegal.

Under the terms of the settlement Anne II. would get $9,000,000, less $2,000,000 which the first Mrs. Reynolds received for a "release" at the time of the Reno divorce.

R. J. Reynolds, Mrs. Mary Reynolds Babcock, and Mrs. Nancy Reynolds Bagley, remaining heirs of R. J. Reynolds, whose tobacco deals made a fortune, proposed the settlement. They would receive the remainder of the estate, amounting to about $9,000,000, which would be used for charitable enterprises.

Calls Compact Fair.

Vaughn, in accepting the settlement on behalf of Christopher, said that both he and that child's mother agreed it was "fair, just, and equitable taking all things into consideration."

In addition to the answer filed by the Cannons opposing the settlement, the Safe Deposit and Trust company of Baltimore, guardian for Smith Reynolds who was still under age when a bullet ended his life, is against the settlement.

TWO SCIENTISTS ASSAIL MUDDLED NEW DEAL POLICY

'Contradictory, Illogical,' Economists Told.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

The New Deal as a method of economic planning was attacked from the viewpoint of the sociologist and the political scientist last night by two leaders in these respective fields who offered startlingly different programs for the approach to an ultimate "good life."

The speakers were Prof. Ernest W. Burgess of the University of Chicago, president of the American Sociological society, and Prof. Walter J. Shepard of Ohio State university, president of the American Political Science association. They read papers at a joint session of the two organizations, attended by more than 500 members, in the Morrison hotel.

Criticism of the New Deal and a demand for increased educational facilities for all were the only common grounds on which the speakers met. Prof. Shepard advocated progressive centralization of government with the desirable elements of Fascism. Prof. Burgess contended that only by the slow changes of the "imponderable elements" of mores and folkways could a completely satisfactory form of government be achieved.

Assail Contradictory Views.

"The ideology of the New Deal is illogical, inconsistent, and turbid." Prof. Shepard declared. "Its program is a mass of undigested and contradictory experiments. It veers first to the right, then to the left. It embodies in its personnel men of the most divergent views.

"And yet at the polls it receives unprecedented majorities. But the support is not all enthusiastic. There is much criticism. If there is any leadership in the New Deal it is the leadership of mounting one's horse and dashing off in every direction at once."

He said that while no general Fascist organizations may have appeared in the United States, the tendency toward this form of government is more pronounced than toward communism. As one instance of an evil phase of Fascism, he cited the case of Louisiana "where the people have surrendered themselves completely to a political adventure."

Dictatorship in Louisiana.

Continuing this apparent reference to Huey Long, he stated: "In Louisiana we see a frank denial of democratic ideology and democratic institutions. Dictatorship stalks across the state naked and unashamed."

As for the centralizing element of Fascism which he favors, Prof. Shepard talked of the unprecedented powers President Roosevelt has assumed.

"These powers have been viewed as arising from and being limited by an emergency," he said, "but they must be indefinitly continued if we are to persist in an experiment of social control over business and industry.

"The President must retain his authority and responsibility, but an advisory staf agency must become a central feature in governmental reorganization.

"We need not fear dictatorship so long as we preserve the guarantees of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of association, and so long as we make education, untrammelled by propaganda and unfettered by subservience to any end or purpose, the central goal, the supreme value of our civilization."

Discuss Contrary Angles.

Listing the characteristic American traits as individualism, democracy, and humanitarianism, Prof. Burgess discussed the contrary concepts of the New Deal.

"The relief program of the federal and state governments is certain shortly to be put to the test," he said. "Far more significant than the rising tide of public criticism against alleged waste and mismanagement of relief administration is the fact that relief giving, as more than an emergency program, runs counter to the basic concepts of individualism and democracy. A solution is demanded that provides opportunity for work and for freedom from investigation and regimentation.

"The program of the Tennessee Valley Authority may be taken as a crucial case in long time social planning. Its success or failure may exert a profound influence on the future course of social planning in the United States.

Must Study People.

"It is only too apparent that if the customs, attitudes, and reactions of the people of the valley are not as fully studied and taken into account as the geographic and economic situation, the project is likely to be a partial, if not a complete, failure."

He then asserted that only in terms of its own situation and in conformity with its mores could the United States solve its problems.

"Policies and programs of continental European nations have no lessons to give us," he declared. "The experiments now under way in Germany, Italy, and soviet Russia are not and cannot be understood by Americans. Any proposal for a collective or controled society, at any time in the near future, seems completely outside the picture of reality."

NRA BOARD "TOO WEAK"

Weaknesses of the National Labor Relations board which prevent it from enforcing completely the collective bargaining provision of the NRA were described yesterday by Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. Prof. Garrison, who was chairman of the labor board until last September, spoke to more than 300 university professors at a luncheon of the American Political Science association in the Hotel Sherman.

Throughout the day members of the association divided into round table groups at which various phases of the changing national political scene were discussed. Further conferences will be held today and tomorrow.

No Enforcement Method.

Prof. Garrison's chief complaint with the present set-up of the labor board was that it had no effective method of carrying out its rulings in disputes under the collective bargaining provision, known as section 7A of the NRA.

"The board can merely investigate the facts as best it may," he declared, "and then issue findings that an employer has or has not violated the law. If it finds that he has, and he fails to comply with the board's directions, all it can do is transmit the case to the NRA for removal of the Blue Eagle emblem.

"But removal of the Blue Eagle in perhaps half the cases did not bring about compliance.

Some at Board's Mercy.

"The existing system is unsatisfactory in another fundamental respect. While in some cases removal of the Blue Eagle means nothing, in others the threat of its removal is overwhelming. An employer who has forfeited his right to a Blue Eagle cannot participate in government contracts. Therefore, employers dependent on this sort of work, if they are found to have violated section 7A are virtually at the board's mercy."

At a round table hearing on New Deal publicity methods, Prof. E. Pendleton Herring of Harvard university urged that the "other side of the picture be given."

Edward L. Bernays of New York, a public relations counselor, advocated assigning all the publicity activities of the government to one official, who might be known as a secretary of public relations. This official should be responsible only to the President, he said.

Oregon Squirrels Spread Bubonic Plague Menace

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The bubonic plague, which originally had its home among the wild rodents of the central plateau of Asia, has appeared among wild squirrels and rats in parts of California and Oregon, opening up a new area of plague infestation and resulting in two deaths of humans last summer. This was told to members of the Society of American Bacteriologists in annual convention here last night. The society will meet again today and tomorrow in the Drake hotel.

Dr. K. F. Meyer of the Hooper Foundation, University of California, addressed the society on the selvatic plague, so called because of its rodent origin, and on psittacosis (parrot fever), showing motion pictures on each.

Similar to Russian Virus.

The disease which caused the death of a sheep herder in Lakeview, Ore., last May and that of a boy in California in June is caused by the same virus which was present in the "black death," formerly known in Russia, Turkestan, Mongolia, Manchuria, Hongkong, and South Africa, said Dr. Meyer.

"The possibility that the plague might be brought into the middle west from California and Oregon is not remote," said Dr. Meyer.

He showed films illustrating how the United States forestry service employed crews to scatter poisoned grains to kill squirrels in infested areas. The disease conceivably could infest dogs, Dr. Meyer said.

Regarding psittacosis, Dr. Meyer said: "We in California are largely responsible for the many cases of psittacosis in the east and middle west, but we are making every effort to see that no infected bird is sent out of the state now."

16,000 Birds Examined.

Since 1929 psittacosis cases numbering 187 throughout the United States have bene caused by Parakeets from California, he said. Among these the mortality was 24 per cent.

More than 16,000 birds have been examined by authorities in California in an intensive drive to stamp out infestation, he said. Films revealed the extensive work being carried on in laboratories, where the birds are chloroformed and where a single laboratory worker often performs from 200 to 300 autopsies a day.

Laboratory infections are frequent despite gauze masks and other precautionary measures, he said.

BLAME FAMILY YOKE FOR TRIAL MARRIAGE, COMMUNISTIC TREND

In our present day society there is a current of hostility toward the family that is partly responsible for changes in beliefs in the marital state and for some of the recruits to communism, Prof. John Dollard of Yale said yesterday at a section meeting of the American Sociological society in the Morrison hotel.

"In noting the momentum of the family form in our society," said Prof. Dollard, "we must not overlook the hostility that is current toward the family and actualized in the many proposals for change which are being put forward.

"Rising divorce rates, increased sexual freedom within the married state, and trial marriage are not only results of technological change but also expressions of long standing discontent with the family.

"Part of the emotional horse power which can be mobilized behind communist doctrine stems without doubt from hostility against the parents and the family."

While the family was being dissected by one group of sociologists, other sectional groups were discussing the changing beliefs of college students, the prevention of delinquency, population planning, and the problems of the United States.

College students apparently are increasingly discarding their old beliefs in sexual questions, according to an incomplete survey presented by Prof. Reed Bain of Miami university.

Prof. Robert E. Park of the University of Chicago asserted that the difficulty in creating planned Utopias and carrying out more modest programs of reform exists because they seek to create a new and ideal society out of the same human elements of which the old society was composed.

WINTER TAKES TIME OUT, BUT ONLY FOR A DAY

Chicago enjoyed a respite from subzero and near zero weather yesterday as the mercury climbed to a high of 32 at midnight, but Weather Forecaster Charles A. Donnel warned that temperatures will drop somewhat again today, with the maximum in the lower twenties.

Mild southerly winds which broke the cold wave will shift to the north and northwest this afternoon, Mr. Donnel predicted. Today will be cloudy.

The United States coast guard cutter Rush, commanded by Acting Captain W. C. Bethea, spent about an hour and a half in the lake off the mouth of the river breaking up ice so that provisions can be taken today to the Carter Harrison, Lake View, and four mile cribs. Mr. Bethea reported the lake inside the breakwater frozen solid, with ice depth varying from half an inch to 5 and 6 inches.

LIBRARIANS DRAW BILLS TO IMPROVE SERVICE IN STATE

$1,600,000 Plan Told as Convention Opens.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A million dollar appropriation to provide library facilities for a two year period beginning next July 1 for two million residents of Illinois now without such facilities will be asked in one of three library bills to be introduced in the state legislature when it convenes next month. The bills will be sponsored by the Illinois Library association.

A second bill will propose a two year $600,000 appropriation to replace depleted book stock in 277 libraries in the state, while a third will aim to establish for the first time educational requirements for librarians in tax supported libraries.

Midwinter Conference Opens.

P. L. Windsor, president of the Illinois association, librarian of the University of Illinois, revealed the legislative plan in an interview yesterday at the opening of the midwinter conference of the American Library association in the Knickerbocker hotel. At this conference librarians throughout the United States are meeting to lay plans for more adequate library service, which, they said, has been hampered by the depression.

At the opening session of the convention the librarians heard a report by the association asserting that the public's taste in the choice of reading matter has shown a marked improvement during the last year. The psycopathic novel, the delegates were told, is fading in popularity, and nonfiction works on economic and social science are being read in increasing numbers. Even western and mystery stories are giving way to historical romances and adventure such as the Byrd expeditions, the report said.

No Extra Taxes Needed, Is View.

The Illinois legislative plan revealed by Mr. Windsor is part of the nationwide campaign started nine months ago by the American Library association to bring about the formation of library planning commissions in each state. Already commissions have been organized in 40 states and in the District of Columbia.

No extra taxes would be needed for the $1,000,000 appropriation, Mr. Windsor said. The library service plan would operate in 30 regions into which the state would be divided.

Books would be sent from each regional center by trained librarians to rural schools, postoffices, gasoline stations, stores, and other points where books could be borrowed conveniently without charge.

Seek to Set Up Requirements.

The $600,000 sought for the purchase of books for 277 libraries can also he raised without additional taxes, Mr. Windsor said.

The third bill would require all librarians appointed to positions in tax supported institutions after July 1, 1935, to meet certain educational requirements, but would not affect librarians now in office.

In the afternoon session the certification of librarians was discussed by the Board of Education for Librarians in joint meting with the League of Library Commissions, and last night the league, with the library extention board, reviewed the various plans for bettering library service which are now being considered in 40 states.

HELD IN FATAL STABBING.

Joseph Martinez, 1406 South Halsted street, was held to the grand jury on a manslaughter charge yesterday on recommendation of the coroner's jury investigating the fatal stabbing of Frank Bednar, 36 year old casual, during a dispute Monday.

GENEALOGISTS PLAN MOVE TO PRESERVE AMERICAN IDENTITIES

A movement to preserve the racial identities of Americans of today and the future was advocated yesterday by the board of directors of the American Genealogical society, meeting in their third annual session at the Palmer house.

"It's not that we are against any race," explained Bion J. Arnold, electrical engineer by profession, genealogist by chance, who yesterday was elected to the presidency of the society. "It's just that we want to preserve the purity and identity of the original early American stocks."

In Cook county alone, he pointed out, there are 400,000 Americans of colonial descent. It is to serve these and others that the society, organized three years ago, hopes ultimately to establish a national institute of genealogical research. Already the society has the records of 200,000 American families on file.

In addition to Mr. Arnold, officers elected yesterday are: Frank H. T. Potter and Charles B. Elder, vice presidents; Chancellor L. Jenks, chairman of the board; William C. Wakefield, extension director; Roy W. Hill, treasurer, and Charles T. Milner, secretary.

SCIENTIST FINDS BODY LIKE RADIO BROADCASTCHAIN

Says Muscles Are Tuned to Take Brain Orders.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Your body works like a radio broadcasting system, with the central sending station in your brain and spinal cord and each muscle "tuned" to receive messages only on a certain "wavelength band" different from every other muscle.

Though the brain does not actually send out radio waves, the idea of a broadcasting system is the newest and best way of explaining how the brain controls the body, Prof. Paul Weiss of the University of Chicago told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today. It supplants the old idea that the nervous system operate like a telephone switchboard.

Command to Walk.

For example, when you start to walk out of a room, a whole set of orders to different muscles is flashed from the brain, but your hand muscles are "tuned" to pick up only the orders to open the door, while your leg muscles pick up only the command to start walking.

The nerves in each muscle are the "receiving sets" and pick up only the orders intended for that muscle. The nerves in the hands select out only messages for the hands, like orders to pick up a glass, to write or to punch some one. Nerves in the legs take only leg orders as to run, walk or sit down. Mouth nerves accept only orders for the mouth, as to chew, talk or yawn.

Just how the orders from the brain are actually transmitted is not known, though many scientists believe it may be by some sort of tiny electric current.

Each Muscle Tunes Nerves.

Each muscle "tunes" its nerve ends to receive the appropriate messages in much the same way as you tune a radio set by turning the dial to receive a certain program, coming from a station with a certain wavelength. Prof. Weiss believes the muscles impregnate their nerves with different specific substances that make them sensitive to the right messages, or sensitize them in some other way.

You can take the nerve from one muscle, transplant it to another kind of muscle, and it will become "tuned in" to receive its own private orders and not others.

Prof. Weiss demonstrated that you can take a leg from a salamander, transplant it to another salamander so he has five legs, connect up the nerves of the transplanted leg to the new body, and the fifth leg will work exactly like the others. This is because its nerves are "tuned" for leg messages and receive them just as well from the new salamander's brain as from the original salamander.

SLEEPING SICKNESS VACCINE

The first step in making a vaccine against encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

To date medicine has absolutely no known defense against catching this disease, one of the cruelest of human ills.

Today's announcement was unusually significant because the sleeping sickness vaccine is following exactly the course of infantile paralysis vaccine, already given safely to children and apparently immunizing them.

The encephalitis experiments were reported by Maurice Brodie, M. D., of the New York City health department, during a description of the new infantile paralysis vaccine.

Last year's St. Louis sleeping sickness outbreak furnished the virus, the cause of the disease, from human beings, which the New Yorkers used for their vaccine experiments.

Use as Vaccine on Healthy Mice.

Mice infected with this human virus developed sleeping sickness. Their brains, containing the virus, were treated with minute amounts of formalin, which killed the virus. This virus was then used as a vaccine on 100 healthy mice.

It immunized them all against the encephalitis. Most important from the medical point of view, the new vaccine had no apparent ill effects on the mice.

The next steps are further animal experiments to make reasonably sure it may not harm human beings—then the volunteers, who try it on their own bodies.

Encephalitis, like infantile paralysis, attacks the brain and has numerous "strains" of virus, each working a little differently. A vaccine, to be useful, must protect against them all.

Test Made on Children.

Indications that the new infantile paralysis vaccine does just this were shown in Dr. Brodie's report. It has produced immunity already against several types of infantile paralysis virus. It must be tried against many more, Dr. Brodie said, before medicine can be sure of its universal protective power.

Already one such test has started at Bakersfield, Cal., where, he said, four hundred to five hundred children have received the New York vaccine. It is flown to Bakersfield in thermos bottles, which keep it at freezing temperature, for freshness.

In New York thirty-five children have received the vaccine, and their blood serum shows in all cases signs of high immunity. Four vaccinated children showed more immunity than three children convalescent from mild attacks of infantile paralysis. In animal tests the vaccine seemed a little better than the disease itself for conferring immunity.

This paralysis vaccine is made from spinal cords instead of brains, but is treated with formalin like the new sleeping sickness vaccine.

SEYMOUR BLAIR AND LIVERPOOL VISITOR HELD UP

Miss Meryle Grayson, daughter of Sir Henry Grayson, Liverpool shipbuilder, and Seymour Blair, 1516 Lake Shore drive, were held up early yesterday morning in State street near Division street, shortly after they had left a gold coast party. Miss Grayson lost her evening bag containing a few Christmas presents including a cigaret case and $1. Blair lost $15.

The robbers were two youths who appeared to be not more than 18 years old, Miss Grayson said. One of them had a revolver. Blair, when first told to hold up his hands, dropped his money in the snow but later, when threatened, told the robbers where it was. Miss Grayson said the revolver was pressed against her chest when they were forced out of their car by the bandits.

Miss Grayson has been visiting Mrs. W. F. Cowhan at the Ambassador hotel since October and is to leave for New York next week.

HOLD SQUATTERS IN BURNING OF NEIGHBOR'S HUT

Ignatz Korilek, 47 years old, and Nicholas Rostowski, 30 years old, were arrested by the county highway police at Willow Springs last night on a charge of arson.

It was alleged that the two men had poured gasoline on a shack built by Alex Mwrashko, a squatter on the sanitary district's property near Meade avenue in Stickney township, and then fired it. Mwrashko asserted that the pair had ordered him out of his house after telling him their intentions.

According to the police Korilek was one of a group of squatters who objected to the building of an additional shack on the public property. He and Rostowski are to be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Chan Foster in Palos Park next Wednesday.

HUSBAND MISSING WITH KIN'S $53,000 BONDS CAPTURED

Sergt. James Coleman, of the central police, will leave Sunday for Santa Fe, N. M., where Jack Rose, 44 years old, wanted for the larceny of $53,000 worth of bonds, has been captured.

Rose left Chicago Dec. 4, and a few days afterward his wife, Thelma, of the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue, complained that he had taken the bonds, belonging to her and his stepdaughter, Lena, from a safety deposit vault.

Warants were sworn out, and a circular sent out by the Chicago police. It was on the information contained in the circular that Rose was caught in New Mexico.

BAR CALLS MOVE FOR CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT VOID

Rejection by States and Long Delay Cited.

The proposed child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States, approved by congress in 1924, probably would be pronounced void by the courts if ratified, according to the report of a special committee of the American Bar association, published yesterday.

The committee was appointed at the annual meeting of the bar association last summer to investigate the legal phases of the proposed amendment when efforts were made to have it revived and ratified by the New Deal secretaries of labor and agriculture.

Rejected by 38 States.

The committee report, which was made public through the American Bar association headquarters at 1140 North Dearborn street, narrates the history of the amendment's submission to congress and the various states. Because the amendment was submitted to the states nearly 10 years ago and because during that time it was ratified by only six legislatures and rejected by 38 others it is now legally dead, the report declares.

A United States Supreme court decision of 1921 in the case of Dillon vs. Gloss, involving a constitutional amendment, is cited by the committee in support of its contention that the amendment proposal now is invalid.

Decision Bars Long Delay.

In that case the court said:

"We do not find anything in article V. of the constitution which suggests that an amendment once proposed is to be open to ratification for all time or that ratification in some of the states may be separated from that in others by many years and yet be effective.

"We do find that which strongly suggests the contrary.

"As ratification is but the expressio of the approbation of the people and is to be effective when had by three-fourths of the states, there is a fair implication that it must be sufficiently contemporaneous in that number of states to reflect the will of the people in all sections at relatively the same period, which of course ratification scattered through a long series of years would not do."

Condemns Burocratic Power.

Aside from the legal phase of the amendment, the report condemns any amendment to the constitution which will place power in burocratic government to regulate and control child labor and indirectly to regulate and control family life in the United States.

That the government has already begun its attempt to regulate and control child labor through the codes, especially that of the textile industry, was pointed out by members of the committee.

The bar association places itself on record as favoring a child labor law under the control of the states, where it rightly belongs under a democratic form of government.

$3,854,394 GOODS SHIPPED OUT OF CITY PORT IN 1934

Merchandise valued at $3,854,394 was exported via lake shipping from the port of Chicago during 1934, it was announced yesterday by Anthony Czarnecki, United States collector of customs. Foreign vessels carried $3,307,435 of the total, while American vessels carried only $546,959. In 1933 exports from the port of Chicago amounted to $4,854,101.

During 1934 there was exported from East Chicago merchandise valued at $474,389, and from Gary shipments totaling $184,911. The total for the Chicago district for the year was $4,513,694, as compared to $5,272,929 for 1933. The largest items of export were corn, coke, and manufactured iron.

ROSCOE POUND OUTLINES SHIFT IN U. S. CONTROL

Compares Executive Now to Tudor King.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Leadership of the American government has shifted to the executive branch at the expense of the judiciary, but the shift is not the beginning of the end of the constitution, declared Roscoe Pound, dean of Harvard law school, yesterday at a Chicago Bar association luncheon.

DEAN ROSCOE POUND.

"There has been no abandonment of the bill of rights," he said. "What has happened is that some striking recent decisions have called attention to a change which began a generation ago—a change from treatment of all questions of reasonableness in the abstract to a quest for a concrete reasonableness."

Constitution Drawn for Future.

The constitution stands, Dean Pound declared, "a great instrument of government drawn up for time to come, which, through all changes of the economic order and of received ideals, stands for life measured by reason."

The dean held that distribution of government powers in the United States today is just about that prevailing in Britain before the revolution of 1688 chased James II. to France, put William and Mary on the throne, and shifted supreme power from the king to parliament.

"Looked at historically, an American executive is a Tudor or Stuart king," said Dean Pound.

Rule in Spite of Congress.

"As a Tudor or Stuart king ruled with parliament if he could and in spite of parliament if he must, so an American president or governor rules with congress or the legislature if he can, but in spite of them if he must.

"As in Tudor and Stuart England the crown, parliament, and the courts were independent and co-equal, now working together and now apart, either each for itself or in shifting combinations, so our independent and co-equal departments of government now work together and now pull apart, now in this combination and now in that.

"England departed wholly from this policy after the revolution of 1688 and set up a complete parliamentary supremacy. We, on the other hand, carried to its logical conclusion the doctrine of control of the common law courts over legislation which 17th century English judges had urged in connection with their doctrine of judicial scrutiny of royal action.

Power Shifts from Legislature.

"While in our constitutional theory the three departments of our government have been and are coördinate and co-equal, in the actual practice of government some one of the three has always taken the lead."

After the American revolution Dean Pound said the legislative branch, as representatives of the people, led in power. After the civil war leadership passed to the judiciary.

"In the present century," said Dean Pound, "the leadership has quite as definitly shifted to the executive. The times call for individualization, for which neither legislature nor judiciary are well suited. They call for quick action, for which legislature and judiciary are ill suited.

Executive Grows in Importance.

"Thus over all the world the executive has been growing in importance in the present century. In Europe, where parliamentary supremacy on the British model has prevailed, it has grown at the expense of the legislative. With us, where judicial leadership has prevailed, it has grown at the expense of the judiciary.

"From the standpoint of the law, the most significant feature of the changes is a shifting of the judicial idea of reasonableness from abstract reasonableness to concrete reasonableness. Let us remember there is no rule of law to tell us what is reasonable. The law often tells us that this or that must be reasonable."

Mr. Pound dwelt upon changes in the last fifty years affecting restraints on free contract, free use of property, limitations on power of a creditor to obtain satisfaction, control of natural resources, limitations on marital and parental authority, and the tendency to get away from free competition.

Main Street Loses Glory.

"The pioneer, rural, agricultural society of the formative era lent itself peculiarly to small-townism or Main-streetism," he said. "Our polity was a polity for a society of small towns. Its fundamental social, political, and legal ideas were the ideas of Main street.

"But today, in an economically unified land and an urban, industrial society, the glory of Main street has been departing. We cannot pretend longer that Main street, the citizen of Main street, and life in Main street are adequate measures by which to try to value the manifold human claims with which our administration of justice has to do."

Huey Long's Rule of School Deplored by Law Educators

Political domination is undermining education facilities in Louisiana State university, it was asserted yesterday in a report adopted by the Association of American Law Schools, meeting in the Stevens hotel.

The report also condemned a new Louisiana law giving control over admissions to the bar to a politically elected board, declaring it "marks a step backward in bar admission standards, with obvious consequences to legal education."

Expulsion Action Held Up.

Out of consideration for the law faculty, which, the report says, "has acted with propriety, so far as it has had power so to do," the association's executive committee did not recommend immediate expulsion of the university from the association. Further investigation of the entire situation at the university was recommended.

An incident concerning the belated bestowal of a bachelor of laws degree upon one of Senator Huey Long's henchmen, K. K. Kennedy, was revealed by the report, supplemented by information from officers of the association.

Kennedy, now employed in the state highway department, was expelled from the university several years ago following the publication of a scurrilous magazine, "The Whangdoodle" by a secret society of which he was the leader. Kennedy was convicted of criminal libel and imprisoned. He was pardoned by Long just before the Kingfish retired from the governorship to enter the senate.

Notwithstanding all this the faculty of the law school at L. S. U. was requested to give Kennedy a degree. The faculty refused. On this score the report states:

"Other questions have arisen concerning the forced retirement of the dean of the law school and the alleged connection between his retirement and his disapproval of the granting of this degree."

Overriding the obstacle, Long had the university trustees present a "special" L. L. B. to Kennedy. A member of the state bar examining board vowed that the board would never examine Kennedy, but the examination took place later anyway. Kennedy flunked.

Board Now Is Political.

The report then comments on the passage of a statute giving control over admissions to the bar to a politically elected board.

A national survey which may reveal, in the opinion of several members, that certain simple legal services can just as well be performed by others than lawyers was recommended to the association by another committee. As in the fields of medicine and dentistry, it was said, the idea is gaining ground that a large portion of the public is deprived of legal services because of high fees. Along the same line of inquiry will be the discussions today of legal aid clinics.

Chicago Normal College Entrance Tests Ready

Chicago high school pupils who wish to enter the Chicago Normal college, 6800 Stewart avenue, will take entrance examinations today at the Tilden High school, 4747 Union avenue. Only pupils who have registered in advance will be permitted to take the tests, said Henry S. Crane, secretary of the board of examiners for the schools. Teachers holding valid certificates in the Chicago schools yesterday began taking tests for certificates allowing them to teach in the three city junior colleges. These tests, also offered at Tilden, will continue through tomorrow.

URGE UNIFICATION OF ENFORCEMENT BY LAW AGENCIES

State's Attorneys Hear Centralization Plan.

Proposals that law enforcing, investigating, and prosecuting agencies in this state be centralized under a scheme patterned in general after the federal government were discussed yesterday at the 38th annual convention of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association in the Morrison hotel.

The retiring president of the organization, Guy E. McGaughey, state's attorney of Lawrence county, who recently attended Attorney General Homer Cummings' general crime conference in Washington, set the note for the meeting. In his opening speech and annual report he suggested that prosecutors in the various counties should be appointed by a state bureau rather than elected, and should continue to serve as long as their record is satisfactory.

Suggests State Police.

Prof. E. W. Puttkammer of the law school of the University of Chicago followed with an impartial discussion of the merits of a bill which has had the interest of the American Bar association. The bill would provide for the establishment of a state police force to take over law enforcement now performed by sheriffs of the various counties. The discussion was limited to a few sections of the proposed law.

The third speaker was Robert E. Nash, state's attorney of Winnebago county, who presented a paper proposing the abolition of the grand jury system in all of the smaller counties within the state. To supplant the grand jury, committees of inquiry would be formed and the prosecuting attorney in each county would be allowed to file charges before an examining magistrate without resorting to indictment.

Visualizes Big Saving.

Delays and expense attached to summoning of grand juries would be obviated by allowing the state's attorney to act directly, said Mr. Nash, but at the same time the committee of inquiry would retain most of the old powers of the grand jury to act in cases where the prosecutor had for any reason failed to do his duty.

WIFE KILLER ADMITS SLAYING OF REALTY MAN IN MISSOURI

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—John H. Happel, 57, confessed "trunk slayer" of his wife, Mrs. Rosabella Happel here, admitted this evening the mystery murder of Henry W. Meyer, 67, St. Louis real estate man, on a St. James, Mo., farm Dec. 13. He confessed to Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman.

Happel told Stahlman he had gone to St. Louis after killing his wife, Rosabella, with a lead pipe here in November. He bought a .22 caliber single shot rifle in St. Louis. He arrived at St. James and found Meyer occupying the farmhouse. According to Stahlman, a dispute over possession followed in which Happel confessed to Stahlman he shot and killed Meyer.

OTHER SCIENCES CURB PHILOSOPHY, EDUCATORS TOLD

Prof. Mortimer Adler of the department of philosophy and law at the University of Chicago expressed the view last night, before 300 members of the American Catholic Philosophical association, that the experimental sciences today dominate higher education to the detriment of philosophy, as represented by the liberal arts. He spoke at the association's tenth annual banquet in the Drake hotel.

Earlier, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic diocese of Chicago, had welcomed the members of the association to the city. The organization opened its convention yesterday at De Paul university, 64 East Lake street, with a program of addresses and round table discussions on the different aspects of the philosophy of religion.

The convention will close today following a business meeting and further round table discussions. Other speakers at last night's meeting were the Very Reverend Francis V. Corcoran, president of De Paul university, and the Rev. Francis A. Walsh, president of the association.

Crimea Shaken by Two Quakes; Houses Damaged

SEVASTOPOL, U. S. S. R., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The Crimea was shaken by earthquakes yesterday. They were felt most severely at Alupka, where the walls of a sanatorium were cracked and the plastering was shaken from many houses. The quakes also were felt at Simferopol, Yalta, and here in Sevastopol. The Yalta seismographic station said the center of the disturbance was in the Black sea, about 20 miles from Yalta.

THE CHICAGO LAW SCHOOL CUT OFF ACCREDITED LIST

Dropped by State Board; Appeals to Court.

The Chicago Law school, 14 East Monroe street, which was founded in 1896, has been dropped from the accredited list of law schools by the state board of law examiners, it became known yesterday. Attorneys William P. Wines and Joseph E. Green, counsel for the school, have started proceedings in the Illinois Supreme court to compel reinstatement of the school.

Until such a time as the institution is returned to the accredited list its graduates are ineligible to take the state bar examinations. At the time that it was taken off the accredited list last July it had an enrollment of 300 students, according to Miss Amabel Anderson, its president.

Act on Bar Report.

The state examining board, which is a body of five lawyers appointed by the Supreme court to act on the qualifications and teaching standards of law schools, is headed by Attorney Albert Watson of Mount Vernon.

It was learned that the board took action against the school after receipt of a report by the Chicago Bar association committee on legal education, whose chairman is Attorney Richard Bentley. The bar association had been requested by the examining board to investigate the school.

Two principal complaints against the institution were that its library facilities were deficient, and that fourteen of its faculty of fifteen teachers were practicing lawyers instead of full time instructors.

Defends School's Standards.

Miss Anderson defended the teaching standards and facilities of the school. She asserted that the action of the state board came as a surprise, and that she had not been able to ascertain the board's reasons until action for reinstatement was started in the state court.

In the brief filed by the school's attorneys the constitutional right of the state board of examiners to drop any school from an accredited list is attacked. One ground given is that no set rules or teaching standards has ever been promulgated by the board. Another ground is that the facts in the case do not warant the action taken by the board.

In response the state board filed a bill of particulars in support of its disciplinary action.

SLAYS HER SISTER IN ARKANSAS HOME AND KILLS HERSELF

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Two sisters, members of a prominent family here, were found shot to death in the bedroom of their home today.

Coroner J. P. Randolph pronounced the tragedy "murder and suicide," and said Miss Christine Burroughs, 27, had shot her 14 year old "favorite" sister, Clare, and then turned the gun on herself.

Members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Ed H. Burroughs, hearing a shot, found the body of the older sister on the floor, a pistol clutched in her hand. They saw the body of the younger girl in bed, and thinking she had slept through the tragedy, did not discover at once that she was dead.

Officers after an interval pulled back the carefuly tucked in bed covering and found the younger girl shot through the head.

The older girl recently suffered a nervous breakdown, members of the family were quoted by Randolph as saying, and had returned here from a position she had held at Houston, Tex. Members of the family said Christine regarded her younger sister as "her favorite."

NRA HIGH WAGE POLICY FAILURE, SAYS ECONOMIST

Unemployment Still High, but Earnings Lag.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The theory that the way to increase purchasing power during a depression is to increase wages was assailed last night in the presidential speeches of the heads of two social science organizations, delivered before a joint session of the American Economic association, the American Association for Labor Legislation, and the American Statistical society at the Palmer house.

Prof. Harry A. Millis of the University of Chicago, president of the economists, criticized the theory more or less from the academic standpoint. The criticism of Dr. Leo Wolman, president of the labor legislation group, consisted of an analysis of the operation of the NRA, which he asserted has been eminently successful in raising hourly wages without much effect on the weekly or annual income of workers.

NRA Wage Boosts Cited.

Between June, 1933, and September, 1934, Dr. Wolman said, the NRA was responsible for average hourly wage increases of 34 per cent in manufacturing industries, 57 per cent in anthracite coal mining, 28 per cent in electric light and power industry, 20 per cent in wholesale trades, and 25 per cent in retail trades. In the same time the cost of living rose only 9 per cent. Maximum hours of work a week, however, declined from an average of 55 hours to 44 hours.

"These figures on wages, cost of living, and hours of work speak for themselves," said Dr. Wolman. "If magnitude of change in the appointed direction is the test for the efficacy of economic policy, the policy of the recovery administration is, on this record, beyond reproach. Why then has there been in the face of this unprecedented and, I might say, unexpected achievement, a general and mounting resentment against the experiment?

Earnings Fail to Respond.

"The disappointment which now prevails comes from the failure of weekly and annual earnings to increase at anything like the anticipated rate and of unemployment to respond to the heroic treatment applied to the economic system of the country."

In answer to critics who contend that NRA did not go far enough in advancing labor legislation in the United States, Dr. Wolman replied that its error lay in that it attempted to go too far on too broad a front at once, and by that action threatened the whole future of labor legislation.

"The possibility of raising wages rather generally through collective bargaining, unless there is increased efficiency and less waste, is decidedly limited, however extensive and powerful unionism becomes," warned Prof. Millis, who for more than a decade has had experience as a labor arbitrator.

Depend on Production.

"The level of wages and the welfare of the masses turn more upon progress in production and upon the taxation and spending policies of the government than upon any such thing as the control of wages through law, or through collective bargaining."

Of the policy of increasing consuming power by wage increases in a depression, he said:

"In so far as this concerns recovery as against reconstruction, the position taken by organized labor must be regarded as a mistaken one when applied in private industry, which is motivated by prospect of profit."

"Eliminate Waste, First."

Prof. Millis, on the other hand, did not hold with wage cutting as a recovery factor. Before wage cuts are made, he suggested, "good policy" demands that waste and other elements in industrial costs, including the heavy fixed charges "due to the unwaranted emphasis upon mortgage bonds in corporation finance," be adjusted.

In the third address of the evening, President Frederick C. Mills of the statisticians pleaded for development of more accurate and complete reporting of economic facts as a basis for legislative and business action.

"In the days when the working of a burocracy touched the lives and activities of the people at but few points, personnel problems in government service were of minor importance. But our social life, on its economic side, has been made over since the days of Andrew Jackson. Whether we like it or not, the workings of our social and economic systems will depend in increasing degree upon the efficiency of technical bureaus of the federal government.

"In the face of this situation, and of needs, more acute than ever in our past, for properly qualified public servants, we find current conditions marked by some highly disturbing features. Trained men are finding a place, it is gratifying to note, in the technical organizations of our central government.

"But this favorable movement is balanced, perhaps overbalanced, by a reverse movement on the other flank. The traditions of the spoils system have received new impetus and new sanctions in recent months. The ship of the New Deal is not manned exclusively by Galahads. Political considerations control a great mass of appointments.

"Under fairer skies this might be tolerated. It is a form of social suicide today."

36,000 ARE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS IN U. S. DURING 1934

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 27.—(AP)—At least 36,000 persons in the United States were killed in automobile accidents in 1934, year-end statistics of the Travelers Insurance company showed today.

The death and injury list for the year, the insurance company report said, marked the high point in destruction on streets and highways.

The record showed a person killed every 15 minutes and one injured every 31 seconds in automobile mishaps.

While the death rate showed an increase of 16 per cent over 1933, the statistics showed a decrease in the frequency of accidents.

Every section of the country reflected the increase in automobile deaths. The middle Atlantic states, including New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, showed the slightest increase, however—a gain of less than 1 per cent. The east north central states [Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Wisconsin] had nearly 8,500 killed, an increase of 16.4 per cent.

THEORIES CONDEMNED

Other phases of the New Deal were assailed by speakers at a section meeting of the statistical association yesterday afternoon at which the main topic was the outlook for business in the light of governmental experiments.

Prof. Neil Carothers of Lehigh university charged that after nearly two years the administration "is finding out that it doesn't know the way to recovery."

While the steel industry has had a record of extreme fluctuation under the New Deal, it is leading the way toward recovery by capital goods expenditures, if recovery may be accomplished in that manner, two other speakers on the same program said.

"The steel industry under the New Deal has had the most extreme rates of increase and decline that it has ever had," declared Prof. Ralph J. Watkins of the University of Pittsburgh. "The short term outlook for the industry is good. The outlook for the distant future is dubious.

"This is because of the fears that business men have for the future of investments. They are afraid of the influence of pressure groups in legislation."

Assails U. S. "Pump Priming."

Federal "pump priming" to accomplish recovery was pronounced unsound by Prof. J. W. Angell of Columbia university at a session of the American Economic association, also in the Palmer house. Even immediate gains have been less than students of the problem expected, he said.

The process can only be successful, said Prof. Angell, if private industry continues the spending beyond the point where the government carries it. But a rising public debt and governmental inflation, corollaries which "pump priming" almost invariably carries with it, are "precisely the factors best calculated to destroy private business confidence and discourage private business recovery."

A plea for inflation came from Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, who presided over a joint session of the statisticians with the Econometric society.

"The so-called New Deal is not a homogeneous whole; it is full of contradictions," said Prof. Fisher. "The most outstanding seems to grow out of confusion between two opposite sorts of price raising. We may raise prices by making goods scarce or by making money abundant.

Cutting Down Our Income.

"The first way is followed when cotton fields are plowed up, wheat acreage limited, pigs slaughtered to reduce the food to be made of them, business paid to induce people not to produce. All of these and like measures reduce the national income, for that income consists of these very goods, bread from wheat, pork from hogs, clothes from cotton, and so on. Our income is our 'daily bread'—our 'bread and butter'—and we cannot get more of this real income by producing less of the elements of which it consists.

"Such a New Deal is a raw deal, however good the intentions and however it may relieve certain classes at the expense of other classes.

"But putting more money into circulation to replace the 9 billion dollars of checking deposits destroyed in the banks raises prices in a totally opposite way, for it leads to more production, not less. Wherever such correct monetary policies have been tried—in England, Canada, and Australia—other sterling countries, the Argentine and Japan profit, and so production and employment have increased. There is more, not less, daily bread, more bread and butter and clothing."

California Court Sustains Austria's Claim on Curtiz

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Michael Curtiz, motion picture director, today was ordered by Presiding Justice Frank Collier of the Superior court to pay $150 a month for support of his son Michael Foerster, following a suit brought by Mathilde Foerster, Austrian scenarist, who introduced papers bearing on a contested paternity suit which had been decided in her favor in Austria. Miss Foerster wrote the film plot for Pola Negri's last American motion picture. Curtiz is husband of Bess Meredyth, American scenarist.

DIVORCED WIFE OF PASTOR LOSES $40,000 ESTATE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Old Chief Tommyhawk, his 25,000 year old squaw Lulu Landa and little Minnie, who has been 7 years old for centuries, have had their day in court.

For nearly two years these "spirits" and their astral associates have figured in civil and criminal litigation in San Francisco revolving about the will of Dr. Frank J. Bishop, optician who committed suicide April 21, 1932.

Today the state Supreme court upheld a Superior court ruling setting aside the will of Dr. Bishop bequeathing his $40,000 estate to Mrs. Gertrude Dickson, divorced wife of the Rev. James J. Dickson, San Francisco spiritualist. The Superior court held Dr. Bishop was unduly influenced by the Dicksons in making his will and that the estate should go to the optician's five sisters.

They include Mrs. Lucie Rotington, Mrs. Laura Hornberger, and Mrs. Ella Myoer, all of Youngstown, O.

In the will contest and in a criminal action against Dickson, alleging he had influenced Dr. Bishop to commit suicide, the "spirits" figuring in alleged séances were introduced into the testimony. The felony charge against Dickson was dismissed when a jury disagreed.

SELF-RULE FOR BUSINESS URGED BY U. S. CHAMBER

Votes Against Extension of the NRA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Replacement of the National Industrial Recovery act by new legislation to take federal regimentation out of business was advocated today by the chamber of commerce of the United States. The expression of the organization followed a tabulation of a referendum vote of the commercial and trade organizations in its membership.

The business group declared itself for revision by the coming congress after a weighing of experiences under the present stringent regulatory laws. By an overwhelming majority members voted that the NIRA, the enabling act of the National Recovery administration, should not be continued or extended.

Should Make Own Rules.

As its foremost declaration members of the association agreed that industry should formulate its own rules of fair competition and that the government's part should be confined to approval of veto. This was seen as a determined expression against "cracking down" by the government through the NRA.

Further the association's membership expressed itself strongly against intrastate regulation of the NRA as evolved through the various state legislative enactments supporting the NRA. These enactments, known as the search and seizure acts of the NRA, were passed by several states [including Illinois] upon direction of the New Deal administration.

The chamber of commerce voted that the proposed new legislation be limited solely to interstate commerce. Further federal participation should be limited to a board or tribunal named by the President.

On another proposition the organization voted that provisions as to minimum prices and for dealing with overcapacity and overproduction should be allowed only when an industry made a showing to the government's agency of the existence of conditions destructive of sound competition.

Asks Labor Clause Revision.

The membership voted that labor clauses should be completely revised. Employés should be protected against coercion from any and every source. Under the voted program the majority rule of the national labor relations board would be abrogated and minority groups of individual employés would be allowed to act on conditions of employment.

The negative votes of the referendum gauging the NRA ranged from a mere fraction of 1 per cent on a question relating to coercion of employés to almost 25 per cent on the question of new legislation. Under the procedure of the chamber of commerce a vote of more than one-third in the negative would have prevented declaration of a stand by the organization, as all propositions must be carried by a two-thirds vote.

On other propositions the membership voted there should be no union requirements for membership in an employé group and that rules of fair competition should contain provisions for minimum wages, maximum hours, and against child labor.

It was also voted that new legislation should supersede any statutes with which it might conflict.

2 of Seized Trio Identified in 14 Recent Robbery Cases

Three men arrested yesterday, two of whom have prison records, have been identified in 14 recent robberies, according to the Hudson avenue police. They are Anthony Wisocki, 19 years old, 1719 Altgeldt street; Chester Davies, 34 years old, 2034 Lane court, and Al Kranner, 38 years old, 1365 South California avenue. Davies recently was paroled from Joliet penitentiary, where he had served eight years of a sentence for robbery, Sergt. Tom Loftus said. Kranner served eight years in a Pennsylvania prison and was recently paroled from the Jackson, Mich., penitentiary after serving one and a half years for robbery.

NRA Price Fixing Illegal, U. S. Judge Holds in Ruling

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Judge Merrill E. Otis, sitting in the United States District court here, today ruled that code price fixing under the NRA is illegal and that congress has neither the power to fix prices nor to authorize the President to do so.

"Congress has no power to fix prices even in transactions undoubtedly a part of interstate commerce," the judge said.

His decision was given in denying a temporary injunction sought by the government against the operators of the Sutherland Lumber company, which maintains yards in Oklahoma, Iowa, and Nebraska. It has headquarters here.

Loses Blue Eagle.

The company, which operates on a cash and carry basis, lost its Blue Eagle last March for continuing its scale of retail prices below those fixed in the lumber code. However, it was not charged with violation of the wage or hour provisions of the code.

In a petition for a temporary injunction filed June 29 the government asked that the company be restrained from selling at prices below the code list.

"The defendants, who sell for cash out of their lumber stock at their yards just as any merchant sells goods over the counter, are not engaged in interstate commerce," the judge's opinion stated in reference to congress' power in the matter.

"The only suggested support for the asserted power is the constitutional provision that congress shall have the power to regulate commerce among the several states."

No Power in Congress.

The judge pointed out that in any case this power extends only to what either is interstate commerce or directly affects interstate commerce. He said that the fact the bunch of shingles involved in this case was transported from Oregon to Oklahoma did not mean that the vendor was engaged in interstate commerce, but that even in transactions a part of interstate commerce congress has no power to fix prices.

In Washington NRA legal authorities said they "wouldn't be surprised" if they appealed Judge Otis' decision. However, they said they would take no definit action until they had given the case further study.

Officials of the NRA explained that retail code prices were not affected by last week's order suspending the price fixing clause of the lumber code for manufacturers. They said several favorable decisions had been received on similar cases affecting retail lumber dealers.

JAPAN'S NAVAL ACTION BRINGS NEW PROBLEMS

Roosevelt Is Silent on His Program.

tries. Our delegates in London apparently were drawn into a discussion of the proposition but the President, when questioned, avoided committing himself.

The British actually were no more disposed than the Americans to accord Japan a fleet expansion, which would threaten the preservation of peace in the Pacific, but by crafty maneuvering were able to create the impression that it was the Yankees who had blocked the aspirations of the Nipponese. For weeks there was a furious flirtation between the British and the Japanese.

The British sent a trade commission to Manchukuo seeking lucrative contracts for British industry. The Japanese ardently desirous of British recognition of the Japanese puppet empire, Manchukuo, and of detachment of the British from concert with the Americans in the London negotiations caused Manchukuo to grant the British trade delegation some 60 million dollars' worth of contracts. Then the MacDonald ministry proposed that naval parity be accorded Japan with a gentlemen's agreement that Japan should not actually build a larger navy than she is now permitted by the existing treaties.

British Change Stand.

At that moment the British dominions which have long seen eye to eye with America on Pacific ocean problems, began to show signs of restiveness with the tactics of the London government. In a significant utterance Jan Smuts, the great man of South Africa, voiced the sentiment that the best interests of Great Britain lie in close accord with the United States. Not long thereafter the British announced that they definitly rejected the Japanese demand for parity and Sir John Simon, the British foreign minister, delivered himself in parliament of a hands across the sea speech the sentiments of which Secretary of State Hull hastened to reciprocate publicly.

Thus there comes to an end the first endeavor to procure disarmament by a limitation intended to become progressive, a scheme born of British pragmatism and American altruism. After the war the British perceived with great vexation that the American navy, built and building, surpassed their own in power. America was about to snatch from Britannia the suzerainty of the seas.

There was great outcry in England that competition in armament was being forced upon war impoverished John Bull by rich Brother Jonathan. Why should America want a larger navy than Britain, our English cousins declaimed. Why shouldn't the two navies be equal. That was the first time the mistress of the seas ever had conceded naval equality to any power.

Echoed by Pacifists.

The British propaganda was echoed by American pacifists whose clamor Senator Borah eventually crystallized in a proposal of an arms limitation conference of the principal naval powers. President Harding, seeing a chance to glorify his administration, was persuaded to call the conference and just before he issued the call Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain induced him to include the settlement of Asiatic questions, thus obtaining for Britain a graceful means of getting rid of the Anglo-Japanese alliance which the British dominions were about to force the mother country to terminate.

The outcome of the conference was a British triumph. America scrapped her new navy on the stocks and by accepting a theoretical parity, never actually attained, left Britain still mistress of the seas. The Anglo-Japanese alliance faded imperceptibly into the four power pact. America's sacrifice made it possible to impose a ratio of naval strength on Japan, France and Italy.

PERIL TO PRESS SEEN IN PLAN URGED ON NRA

Lumbermen Ask Ad Fund Levy of $750,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Another channel through which the New Deal might put pressure on the press of the nation was suggested today when the lumber industry proposed that the NRA might collect and "supervise" an annual advertising fund of $750,000 for the industry.

Observers were quick to point out that by "supervising" huge advertising appropriations such as this, NRA could starve opposition papers and feed pro-New Deal organs. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and other New Dealers with government money to spend for advertising have not hesitated to order that none of it shall be paid to Republican papers.

Promote Lumber Trade.

The lumber industry's proposal, put forth at a public hearing before the NRA today, was the first of its kind to come before the recovery administration. It suggested that the NRA, acting under the lumber code, levy a regular assessment on all lumber companies and use the money thus collected for advertising to promote the lumber trade.

Maj. David T. Mason, executive officer of the lumber code authority, proposed that the assessment be at the rate of not more than 5 cents per thousand board feet. At this rate, about $750,000 would be collected each year. He said this money would be spent under budgets subject to "NRA approval and supervision," according to the NRA's official summary of the hearing.

As a precedent for the novel suggestion, Maj. Mason pointed to the fact that code authorities are now authorized by the NRA to levy assessment on their industries for the administration costs of their codes. He argued that an additional assessment for trade promotion outlays would come under the fair trade practice sections of the lumber code.

Maintain Fair Wage Scale.

Maj. Mason explained that a trade promotion program would assist in maintaining a fair competitive wage scale within the industries by increasing business and earnings and that it would promote fair competition between the lumber industries and competing industries which now are financing promotion campaigns and building up markets in the construction field.

Beside Maj. Mason, four other witnesses, representing lumber manufacturers, retailers, consumers, or trade associations, appeared to urge NRA approval for the suggestion.

Two witnesses, L. S. Beale, representing northeastern lumber interests, and C. Arthur Bruce, representing southern hard wood interests, appeared against the proposal. Each one questioned the wisdom or legality of the suggestion, but neither one pointed out the leverage which huge advertising funds would give the New Dealers on the press.

Banker John Hogan Named Police Pension Board Head

John A. Hogan, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was elected president of the police pension board at a meeting yesterday. Police Capt. Hugh T. McCarthy was reëlected vice president of the board, and Patrick E. Dwyer was again named secretary. Hogan was recently appointed to the board by Mayor Kelly following the resignation of Walter L. McMenimen, who had been president.

U. S. REVOKES PERMITS OF 44 DISTILLERS FOR VIOLATIONS OF LAW

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Revocation of 44 permits held by liquor distillers, importers and rectifiers was ordered today by the alcohol control administration.

Included among the group was the importing and rectifying permit of the Lord Fairfax corporation, Baltimore, revoked on numerous charges including failure to comply with the internal revenue laws.

A distilled spirits permit issued to Harry Graham and associates, Rockford, Ill., was revoked because of inactivity and the additional grounds of "erroneous and false information given in the application for the permit."

An administration statement said that 39 of the permits revoked had been held by importers and attributed most of the revocation in this group because of failure to file reports as required by the government and for inactivity.

EXPERTS DISPUTE VALUE OF AAA AS AID TO RECOVERY

Lowden Referees Debate of Economists.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration's revolutionary program to aid farmers was attacked and defended yesterday by farm economists. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and a farmer, was chairman and referee of the debate held before a joint session of the American Farm Economic and American Economic associations in the Palmer house.

Dr. Joseph S. Davis of Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal., was chief critic of the government's program, while Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, an economist of the federal department of agriculture, was principal defender.

Lists Claims and Deeds.

After quoting from statements made by the President and the secretary of agriculture, Dr. Davis placed claims and accomplishments under the administration's agricultural program side by side. He expressed an opinion that the processing tax on farm products, benefit payments made to farmers, and higher farm prices had resulted in a transfer of income from other people to farmers and therefore had not helped in general recovery.

Dr. Davis gave more credit for increased farm prices to the drouth than to the government's efforts. He said after the meeting that "if there had not been such a drouth the AAA reduction program would have had important results. But the drouth alone would have served to bring ample curtailment of farm products.

"Some groups have gained while others have lost," added the California economist. "The question is, has there been a net gain to the nation?"

Government Economist Replies.

In replying, Dr. Ezekiel said that the total buying power, which was so low at the bottom of the depression, was not a limited fund so that if farmers got more city people got less, but instead the increased income for farmers had resulted in increasing sales of city products, more people at work, more jobs in cities, and a higher level of activity and buying power for both farmers and city people.

"From this time on," said Dr. Ezekiel, "we must increase industrial activity to further raise farm income and expand the production of farm products as the demand for them expands."

He believes that in hogs, as well as in cotton, the control plan had a major influence on supply this year, but freely admitted that drouth had greatly shortened the period of adjustment necessary.

TAKES OWN LIFE ON CHRISTMAS TO JOIN SLAIN WIFE

On Sept. 25, 1933, Thomas White, 57 years old, then a tavernkeeper, shot and killed his wife, Lela, after accusing her of being unfaithful to him. He was not indicted.

Yesterday the body of White, obviously a suicide, was found in the basement apartment of the building which he owns at 1025 South Seeley avenue. Beside him was a note, addressed to a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Swanson, 6527 South Seeley avenue.

The note wished her a merry Christmas and said:

"I am going where my wife is."

White's body was found with a gas hose in the mouth and the gas jet open. Police believe he took his life on Christmas day.

TWO BUS STRIKE PRISONERS REPEL LIBERATION MOVE

Refuse Attorney's Help on Court Writs.

Attorney William Scott Stewart yesterday suffered the embarrassment of trying to effect the release of two prisoners of the state's attorney's office only to learn in open court that the men were perfectly contented in their present environment.

Attorney Stewart filed a petition for writs of habeas corpus on behalf of Lloyd Slee and Wayne Hoover, two of the principal witnesses in the case of twenty-nine defendants charged with conspiracy and murder growing out of violence in the recent bus strike. The hearing was before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

Crowley Opposes Petition.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley, opposing the petition, pointed out the importance of Slee and Hoover to the state's case and then added that it is by their own consent that they are in special quarters instead of the county jail.

"Do you mean they want to stay in custody?" Attorney Stewart demanded.

"That's exactly what I mean," Mr. Crowley replied.

"Well, Hoover's wife is in the courtroom now," Stewart protested. "She told me her husband did not want to remain in custody—that he wanted to go to the county jail like the other prisoners."

Prisoners Settle Argument.

"We might ask the prisoners how they feel about it?" Chief Justice Sullivan suggested. "That might throw some light on the matter."

"I'll stay where I am," Hoover offered.

"The same for me," Slee echoed.

"They're over 21 years of age," Judge Sullivan concluded. "Petition dismissed."

Slee and Hoover, alleged members of a slugging crew which terrorized bus drivers and passengers during the strike, are said to have made statements involving the others and agreed to testify for the state.

DRIVES 11 YEARS; NO LICENSE.

ADMITS SLAYING JEWELER DURING YULETIDE PARTY

The mysterious slaying of Rex Pyle, 38 years old, a jeweler of 2003 Indiana avenue, who was found shot to death Christmas night in an apartment at 5243 South Racine avenue, was solved yesterday by the confession of Fred Feiner, occupant of the apartment, police declared.

FRED FEINER.

Feiner told Supervising Captain John Prendergast that he had slain Pyle after the jeweler had attacked his wife during a drinking party at the Feiner flat.

Since the slaying Christmas night, Feiner and his wife, Emma, had maintained that Pyle, in the midst of the drinking, had suddenly whipped out a pistol and shot himself, after making threats of suicide. The Feiners were held for questioning by Stockyards police, however, after the revolver was found concealed in a drawer in the bedroom.

Woman Dies by Poison "to Avoid Motherhood"

Miss Fern Conroy, 30 years old, 1035 South Mason avenue, died in St. Luke's hospital early today of poison she had swallowed in a room at the Calvert hotel, 1805 South Wabash avenue. A note was found in the room addressed to "Mother." It related that Miss Conroy felt she had disgraced herself and "could not face unmarried motherhood."

GAMBLING FEUD IS BLAMED FOR MIAMI KILLING

Miami, Fla., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Police tonight were probing what they described as a feud between Miami and Chicago gamblers for a solution of the slaying of George [Skeets] Downs, 48, veteran professional gambler.

His bullet pierced body was found early today on the edge of the Florida Everglades, about 12 miles from here. Details of the death, including the six bullets in his back, bore all the characteristics of gangland's one way ride executions.

Cite Racing Service Rivalry.

The gambling feud theory arose from the possibility that Downs may have become involved in the rivalry between the factions of Jack Lynch and Moe Annenberg for control of the nation's racing information service.

It is known that a bitter conflict exists between Lynch and Annenberg since they had a falling out in their partnership operation of the General News bureau racing service. Annenberg has since organized the Nation Wide bureau in competition against his former associates. A suit of Lynch against Annenberg is on hearing in the Chicago courts.

State Investigator John B. Rowland sought evidence that Downs was a victim of a gang slaying in a fight to control gambling concessions here.

Told to Abandon Shop.

Investigators learned from Downs' associates that the gambler and one of the men identified with the Chicago group of newcomers to Miami engaged in a fight over a pistol several weeks ago and that Downs was severely beaten.

They also learned that Downs had received an order to abandon his "smoke shop" in downtown Miami because of the planned opening of an opposition establishment near by. Although he closed his place two weeks ago, it was indicated that Downs planned to resist his competitors.

NAZI 'JOY RIDES' TO AID 'NERVES' TO BE CONTINUED

2,168,000 Workers Sent on Holiday Trips.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 27. — "I wish the German nation to have strong nerves. Only a nation which keeps its nerves is able to play a prominent part in world politics. I therefore wish that the German workers be given adequate holidays and that their spare time be organized in such a way as to give them a real benefit."

This utterance by Reichsfuehrer Hitler was made the guiding principle of the "strength through joy" movement, according to its leader, Dr. Robert Ley, head of the German labor front, which has a membership of 27 million.

Celebrates First Anniversary.

The "strength through joy" movement, the equivalent of Premier Mussolini's "dopolavoro" in Italy, has recently celebrated its first anniversary. In the first year of its history a total of 2,168,000 workers were sent on holiday trips by the movement.

Hundreds of special trains conveyed the holiday makers to the beauty spots in Germany, to the Bavarian Alps, down the Rhine, to the Harz mountains, to the wooded hills of Thuringia, and to the Lueneburg heath. About 80,000 "strength through joy" travelers participated in sea cruises along the British coast and to Norway.

The prices charged for these trips are kept so low as to enable people with small incomes to participate. Thus a trip to Norway, on one of the "strength through joy" boats, starting from Berlin and ending in Berlin, costs $10, including railroad fare, passage, and 6 days' board.

Plans Expansion Next Year.

In the coming year, Dr. Ley announced, 3 to 4 million persons will be sent on holiday trips. For the transportation of this vast crowd 1,200 special trains will be required. The "strength through joy" fleet, embracing six liners, will take 112,000 persons to England, Norway, Portugal, Madeira, and the Azores.

Dr. Ley claims that to a large extent the "strength through joy" movement finances itself through the contributions of its members and that the state subsidies granted to the movement in the first year of its existence amounted only to $12,000,000, which he claims is much less than the annual contribution which the Italian state gives to "dopolavoro."

While the holiday trips are organized by the "department for traveling and hiking," the department for sports of the "strength through joy" movement is attempting to make the broad masses of the German workers sports-minded. In the first year of its existence this department organized 8,500 sports courses, in which 450,000 men and women participated.

170,000 Learn to Swim.

About 170,000 men and women took swimming lessons. Of the men who took part in the "general physical training" courses, 35,000 won the national sports badge. The sports department of the movement claims that it put 900 jobless sports teachers back to work.

Under the auspices of the cultural department of the "strength through joy" movement, 66,739 concerts, theater and film performances were given. In Berlin alone 500,000 persons were enabled to visit the Theater of the People for 28 cents per person.

SAAR IS TOLD HITLER STAGED ANOTHER 'PURGE'

Nazi Leaders Stirred by Accusations.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Dec. 27.—A violent pre-plebiscite campaign against Hitlerism got under way today in the Saar as anti-Nazis charged Adolf Hitler's henchmen had staged another "blood purge" in Germany.

"One hundred have been killed and 1,000 arrested in another June 30 purge directed against the SS [schutzstaffel, special bodyguards] and the Hitler youth," the anti-Nazi newspaper Volkstimme said.

The sensational assertions in the columns of Volkstimme, which is edited by Max Braun, the Socialist leader, came soon after the Christmas truce on political activities ordered by the Saar governing commission ended.

Claims 230 Were Slain.

In addition to its own charges, Volkstimme quoted another publication, Weltbuhne, as saying those slain in the asserted new purge number 230 and those arrested in Berlin alone 3,000 to 4,000.

Alleged immorality of those arrested in Germany, Volkstimme said, was merely the "pretext" for the arrest. It declared the real reason was "to clean out the dangerous subleaders."

German officials obviously were alarmed by the sudden attacks, for both sides agreed that another such bloody house cleaning in Germany as that of last June would prove the ace of trumps for partisans of the status quo, government of the Saar by the league of nations.

See Swing to French Cause.

The anti-Hitler faction asserted thousands who intended to vote for reunion with Germany at the plebiscite Jan. 13 have swung to sympathy with the French cause, or with continuance of league rule, since Hitler purged his forces six months ago.

In reply to Volkstimme's charges the Nazi newspaper Abendblatt, in what appeared to be an officially inspired story from Berlin, quickly admitted 300 had been arrested in Berlin for sexual abnormalities and probably as many more elsewhere in Germany. Denying any persons had been killed, however, Abendblatt charged the anti-Nazi press with "abominable attempts to stir up trouble."

Earlier in the day proponents of the status quot circulated what purported to be—but were not—reproductions of the leading Catholic pro-Nazi newspaper in Germany, the Landes-Zeitung.

The bogus reproductions carried death notices of many of those killed in the June purge, reports of more recent executions, and an explanation in tiny type that such would be the appearance of Landes-Zeitung were it allowed to print the truth.

Berlin Calls Charge "Ridiculous."

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—(AP)—"Ridiculous and regrettable propaganda," "malicious, cowardly, and baseless propaganda," and "manufactured lies" was Germany's official answer today to charges that another Nazi "blood purge" has occurred. Accusations in Saarbruecken anti-Nazi newspapers were emphatically denied.

WIFE NARROWLY MISSES HAVING TO PAY ALIMONY!

Mrs. Lenore Williams Jackson asked for alimony yesterday, but only by a narrow margin did she escape paying alimony herself.

She appeared before Superior Judge Joseph B. David to ask a divorce from Dr. Carl Edward Jackson, a dentist with offices at 4803 Lincoln avenue. She charged cruelty.

"I lent him money to pay his way through school," Mrs. Jackson said. "I think he should pay me something."

Dr. Jackson's attorney, Edwin Hackett, spoke up: "That may be," he said, "but she now clerks in the Evanston postoffice for $2,100 a year, while her husband in 1934 grossed only $2,000 and had to pay $1,600 of that for materials and expenses."

Judge David turned to Mrs. Jackson. "I'm not sure," he said, "that I won't award your husband alimony." However, after considering the matter he granted the divorce without alimony for either side.

MAYOR ANNOUNCES NEW CIVIC TRAFIC SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday a campaign to stress the need for trafic safety. The program will be carried out in a series of community meetings culminating in a large gathering at the Chicago Stadium in the middle of February.

"There is no more vital problem confronting Chicago than the elimination of hazards which jeopardize the safety of the pedestrian and motorist," said Mayor Kelly. "Every man, woman and child should feel individual responsibility in the Keep Chicago Safe movement."

The same organization that staged Chicago's first annual homecoming last September in the Drama of Chicago will direct the program. Barnet Hodes will act as director of operations.

The program calls for pageants, contests in the schools and playlets. Each neighborhood will be asked to work out programs.

JOB FOR WIDOW OF SEYFERLICH ASKED BY MAYOR

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he intends to find a job for Mrs. Frances E. Seyferlich, widow of Arthur R. Seyferlich, former fire commissioner, a veteran of 38 years' service in the fire department, who died recently.

The announcement was the outgrowth of a meeting several days ago at which citizens and city officials discussed the question of increasing Mrs. Seyferlich's pension. Seyferlich resigned as fire marshal in 1927, that rank entitling his widow to only $45 a month. He was fire commissioner when he died, but that is a civilian rank and carries no pension.

Finding work for Mrs. Seyferlich appears to be the only method of increasing her income, the mayor said, since it is impossible under the law to increase her pension. Friends have declared the pension is her only income.

PATH TO GERMAN PRISON TOLD BY ISOBEL STEELE

She Strays Into Circle of Polish Baron.

BY HAL BURTON.

[Copyright: 1934: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.]

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Baron Jurek Sosnowski, a great lover and a great spy, straight out of Casanova's memoirs, took shape in the story of Isobel Lillian Steele today as the evil genius whose intrigues paved her path to a Nazi dungeon.

Miss Steele landed in New York yesterday and revealed for the first time her ordeals in the land of Hitler.

A harmless acquaintanceship with the dashing Polish nobleman, a few visits to his gay parties, where Nazi dignataries and titled ladies drank to each other in champagne—and presto! The young American violinist was established in the minds of secret police as a plotter of equal rank with Sosnowski.

Strays Into Circle.

The prisons which engulfed the baron and swallowed up the weeping ladies who had traded military secrets for his favors were soon to hold Miss Steele herself. She had innocently strayed into a circle whose charms were poisonous, and she was to regret her curiosity.

"That," she said, reiterating her affection for the German people, and her desire to tell an unprejudiced story, "was the thing that caused the greatest trouble—knowing Baron Sosnowski.

"I didn't suspect him. How could I, when men like Roehm and Ernst [later executed in blood purge] were at his magnificent parties. He knew them all—all the high aristocracy, and they all liked him. He had been in Berlin eight years, and his apartment on the Lutzow Ufer was magnificent.

"He was charming. Maria Paudler and Tina Eilers, the movie actresses, were charmed by him. Baroness von Berg, his chief agent, was in love with him. He had installed his favorite Russian sweetheart, Frau Berberian, in an apartment across the street, where she had a mode salon."

Blow Falls in February.

On Feb. 28, 1934, the blow fell. Fifty men and women, mostly women—beauties hand picked by the baron—were arrested as they walked gayly into his opulent apartment. Geheimstadts polizei pounced on them at the door. And one of those in the crowd of guests was Guppenführer Ernst, a Storm Trooper himself! By a stroke of luck Miss Steele was not in the crowd.

Ernst was released, but evening gowned women went to jail, and soon the grapevine by which Berlin is supplied with the news the government will not tell buzzed with the amazing story. Baroness Berg, a friend of important officials, was in Alexanderplatz, the Berlin equivalent of the Tombs. She had given Sosnowski marching plans which showed just what Germany was doing.

Baron von Natzmer, Baroness Amelie von Thielmann, and Baroness von Jena were jailed, too. All but Amelie were secretaries in Reichswehr Ministerium, the German war department. They had traded secrets through the Baroness von Berg, and now they were trapped.

Spanish Dancer Trapped.

Leah Neako, the Spanish dancer, whose popularity was due to Sosnowski's patronage, was another woman trapped. Vera Liessem, the motion picture actress, was in Alexanderplatz. And, finally, Frau Heuer, a former baroness, was accused of copying military plans for him.

It was said that the Spanish dancer had double-crossed her sponsor; that she was a spy herself for another nation. Baroness Berg, a beautiful woman, was the only one who retained her calm, Miss Steele said.

"Well," she told the guards, "I guess they'll kill me, but I dont' care. I know that when one is in love, one pays for what one does."

To have known Baron Sosnowski: to have been at his parties three or four times; to have talked to him out of a boundless curiosity about his life was enough to damn Miss Steele. It was enough to cause her arrest on Aug. 10. It was enough to permit to police to invent an ingenius theory that she, too, was a Polish agent.

Affair Puzzles Jailers.

And, she revealed today, the secrets of this Sosnowski affair, still a mystery to much of Germany, troubled her jailers more than any other thing. When she left Moabit prison, technically a free woman, they cautioned her not to talk about it outside.

She had, the young violinist said, made another mistake. Vera Liessem was a chum. When she could not find Vera the day after the raid—and the raid was still a secret—she went to Alexanderplatz. The bland warders denied that the actress was a prisoner. The actress at that moment was pacing a cell one floor above.

"They asked me, strangely enough, what I knew about the baron," Miss Steele recounted today in her quiet hotel suite. "I said: 'Why, yes, I've heard some gossip that he might be a spy.' They lifted their eyebrows. That was the tipoff. If I knew that much, they figured, I knew a lot more.

"I demanded again to know where Vera was. 'I have a right to know,' I told them. They denied knowing. Three weeks later she was released from prison for lack of evidence. She was warned not to talk. Some of the women were threatened with three years in prison if they so much as said a word. But the titled women I have already mentioned remained behind the bars. They were not freed."

Case Fascinates Her.

The weird facts of the Sosnowski case fascinated Miss Steele. She had dabbled in film writing, and she hoped in such work to earn enough to offset her dwindling income from depreciated American dollars.

Through the Baroness von Biel she met a Herr Bucher. That name was an alias. His true name was hidden because he had directed pictures disliked by the Nazis in the days when the Centrist party of Premier Bruening was in power.

The baroness seemed a charming and a lovely woman to Miss Steele. She was a pronounced blonde, only 25, and she had a circle of acquaintances that numbered all the important officials.

Told to Be Careful.

"I was told to be careful of her," Miss Steele recalled today. "And I was told she couldn't be trusted. They said that anything one told her she'd write down and turn over to the police. But I thought she was my friend and I spoke freely to her.

"She introduced me to Bucher. He said: 'Why don't you write a film?' I thought that would be grand. I went to the baroness and asked if she would help me with the scenario. She refused; said there was no money in it.

"So I went to the Baroness Dorothea von Engelhardt, a cousin of Frau Heuer, and she agreed to help me. What we wrote was an objective study of the Sosnowski case. It wasn't an anti-Nazi film. All the names were changed and identities were concealed. It was merely a story of the most romantic man I can recall. To us it seemed like a second 'Mata Hari.'

Told to Write Synopsis.

"One day in July of this year Bucher told me to write the synopsis of the film. He said he would take it to a friend in Switzerland, who would buy it. This friend was a famous author whose books had been banned in Germany. He told me the author assented to the scenario and wanted me to hurry it up.

"The night of Aug. 9, with the scenario all but done, Dorothea and I celebrated. We had dinner together and I stayed at her apartment. The morning of the 10th I came home at 10 a. m. I'd just stepped in the house when the doorbell rang.

"I opened the door. Two men walked in.

"'Geheimstadts polizei,' they said.

"They were the bogeymen. I knew that once I was in their hands I'd stay there."

U. S. BODY TURNS DEAF EARS TO PHILIPPINE PLEAS

4 Senators Sail to Report on Self-Rule Situation.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Pleas of Philippine leaders for revision of the Philippine independence act approved by Congress last March failed to impress the senatorial mission, it was indicated tonight as the four senators sailed to report to President Roosevelt.

After three weeks of hearing alternate proposals offered by insular leaders, Senator Tydings of Maryland, leader of the mission and co-author of the Tydings-McDuffie Philippine independence act, said:

"The so called imperfections of the act are exaggerated when all factors are taken into consideration. Many in America believed the terms are too liberal. Our visit has been valuable to both the mission and Filipino leaders."

Financed by Islands.

The insular legislature invited and financed the visit of Senators Tydings, McAdoo of California, McKellar of Tennessee and Gibson of Vermont.

Most of the petitions reviewed urged elimination of export taxes applying to the last half of the ten year transition period from an American possession to independence, and proposals that the insular legislature be given tarif autonomy during the period.

Little support was given by Filipinos to the proposal of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, one time insurrection leader, that the transition period be cut in half.

Report Dominion Plan.

Reports that Filipinos are beginning to favor continued connection with the United States, possibly on a dominion basis, aroused one senator to say that since independence was sought by the Filipinos, any basic change must likewise be requested by them.

Plans were progressing to send another Philippine mission to congress to petition changes in the act.

The senators plan to return to the United States by way of Java and Europe, all but McAdoo going through Genoa and reaching the United States Feb. 1. The Californian plans to fly with his pilot, Harry Ashe, from Batavia to Europe.

"Of three bottles of alcoholic drinks sold in the United States now, two are "bootleg" products.

It is well to adhere to this rule, during the holiday season and always:

Buy only brands that you know and from merchants in whom you have confidence."

Reprinted from Chicago Daily News editorial, Dec. 12, 1934:

"The Daily News cannot recommend the drinking of any liquor. But if people are going to consume it—and probably a large number will do so over the holiday season—they should use the common-sense precaution of buying it from merchants who sell reliable merchandise of other kinds."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

AT LAST, AN OLD FASHIONED WINTER.

The heavy snows came much earlier than usual this year and the cold snap was also ahead of schedule. [The weather man can be counted upon to write a letter of gentle reproof. He will prove from his records that heavy snows in mid-December are not unusual and that zero temperatures at this time are expectable. Weather men always know everything about weather that is past.]

Anyway, we stick to our story and proceed with it. It looks as if this is going to be a great year for winter sports. There is going to be snow enough for skiing, tobogganing, snowshoe running. There is going to be ice for skating; lots of it. The contestants in the Silver Skates Derbies are going to get so much practice before the races take place on Jan. 12 and 13 that most of the records will be broken.

Chicago has become more addicted to winter sports each year, but unfortunately the weather has not. For several years the toboggan was erected hopefully each autumn at the south end of Lincoln park, but nothing happened to suggest that the site of the slide was anything but a baseball diamond. Boys were seen playing indoor ball at the foot of the slide in mid-February. The snow fences which the park commissioners had erected at strategic places to protect the drives from the heavy drifts that didn't come aroused the curiosity of visitors. Why, they asked, do they put up those flimsy fences right in the middle of the lawns? How can any one play tennis with a fence in the middle of the court?

We haven't had a winter like this one in nigh on to thirty years. One of these days they're going to reopen the speedway on Grand boulevard [or, as some say, South Park way]. Sporting gentlemen are going to have the old cutter shined up and the races which were discontinued 'way back when will be resumed just where they left off. Did they have bells on those racing cutters? Certainly there were bells on the ordinary family cutter and on the grocery bobs. Yes, there were bells on the racing cutters, too; but most clearly remembered are the faces of the drivers. There was one elderly and portly gentleman with flying whiskers who won more than his share of the heats. His pacing mare was something out of the ordinary. Young gentlemen with their sleds hitched on behind the ice wagon would practice his "E-e-e-asy there, Bess; easy, Bess," and to this day go about town firm in the conviction that they can manage anything in harness. Getting just a little the edge at the start and the driving finish are their specialties.

Nobody went skiing at the dunes in those days. The jump at Cary hadn't been built and nobody ever dreamed of bringing in a trainload of snow. Why should they? There was always as much snow as anybody could want for any purpose. There was no discussion then of the relative merits of the Norwegian and the Austrian ski. Skiing was something read about in St. Nicholas, but not practiced. Those who wished to engage in dangerous sports went skating on Lake Michigan. Memory reports that they were all drowned, but perhaps memory is somewhat colored by paternal admonition.

Those were the days and the only difference between those days and these is that these are much better. Where there was one pond for skating then there are a dozen now. The cutters are gone, but in their place are a dozen new winter sports. The hilly country around draws its thousands every week-end with their skis. There is renewed interest in snowshoes. Figure skating has come into its own.

It is one of the miracles of our times that all this has happened despite a succession of mild winters that made our climate indistinguishable from that of Florida. Well, nearly indistinguishable, if you insist. The sporting department, year after year, has had to postpone its Silver Skates races from one week to the next, hoping that there would be a few hours of slush some Sunday which would keep the event out of the classification of water sports. This year all is changed. At last we have another real, old-fashioned winter. A determination to make the most of it should be included among New Year's resolutions.

THE WASTE OF A PRICELESS RESOURCE.

The richest deposit of natural gas which men know anything about is in the Texas panhandle. It is being squandered at the rate of a billion cubic feet a day. It has been estimated that the wastage in this one field is about equal to the consumption of gas for domestic purposes in the entire country.

As the gas emerges from the ground it contains a slight admixture of natural gasoline. There is no market at present for the gas, but there is for gasoline. The wastrels who own the wells separate the gasoline from the gas, which is then discharged into the air to be lost forever. From three thousand feet of gas a gallon of gasoline is obtained. A gallon of gasoline at wholesale sells for about a nickel.

A congressional committee and a committee from the state legislature of Texas have visited the field and have done nothing whatsoever to correct the abuse. Congress and the legislatures have recently discovered that they can pass laws invading the rights of property by declaring in a preamble that an emergency exists which necessitates extraordinary treatment. If the use of this doctrine can ever be justified, it is justified in the attempt to save for the nation an irreplaceable natural resource which is being wasted in a fashion so wanton as to defy description.

The emergencies which were declared to exist in the gold act and the acts creating AAA and NRA were negligible in comparison. If scores of trainloads of black earth were being scraped by machinery from the Illinois and Iowa prairies each day and dumped in the Atlantic ocean, the wastage would be fairly comparable to what is happening in Texas.

The inaction of the federal government is curious in view of its frequent insistence on the need for planning for the future. Perhaps the fact that a few Texans are making money out of the stripper wells and the further fact that Texas congressmen are extremely influential in Washington may help to explain the administration's apathy.

THE STALIN PURGE.

Outside of the realm of the Marxian dialectic people may, in spite of the grim business, get a smile from the Moscow statement that Stalin's program of summary executions, already with a toll of 103, is "a drive against terrorism." The assassin who started it took one man, Kirov.

Neither the assassination which fired the fuse nor the explosion which followed could be regarded as unusual in Russian history, although it would be found that the czaristic government was more humane, used legalistic methods, and treated its enemies with greater consideration. The chief point of interest is to consider the implacabilities of groups of communists, who must have a general philosophic agreement but who murder and exile each other as they get power because of differences which any other political system pretending to permanence has no difficulty in reconciling. No political system which builds for more than one or two generations can have a general ground of agreement and yet resort to murder because of conciliable variations in opinion.

The explanation first apparent would be that even if the group leaders could tolerate the compromisable variations of minor opinion they can't endure the personal and conflicting ambitions to seize despotic power. The dictatorship of the proletariat, being a despotism, does not have room for a council of state containing a number of domineering men, nor a chamber of deputies where policies would be subjected to examination and criticism with a view to obtaining agreements which would join all in accord. Dictatorship of the proletariat means the dictatorship not of a class but of the man who can suppress all rivals who might, if not suppressed, exile or kill him.

No system of government so constituted has ever endured. Certainly Stalin and Trotzky cannot be farther apart in doctrine than were Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton. The American system of government, when it was being established, was agreed upon by advocates of varying policies. On one side were the supporters of a strong federal administration and on the other were state rights men and individualists. Patrick Henry was one of the first Virginians to demand the revolution and he was almost the last to be satisfied with the constitution. John Marshall liked it and Jefferson didn't.

John Adams was regarded as a monarchist and Gouverneur Morris was an almost contemptuous patrician and he would have ruled the people whom George Mason would have rescued from all sorts of overlordship. None of these early Americans had an agreed upon textbook of political and economic organization such as Lenin inherited from Marx and endeavored to put into government in Russia. The Americans could compromise their difficulties without assassination, although when the French and English factions had their spirits up during the time of Citizen Genet a serious rift in the political scheme might have been expected.

The unsoundness of the communist system of government is illustrated, in one particular aside from all other considerations, in the inability or unwillingness of one faction, indoctrinated precisely as another, to endure association with others. The pretentiousness of a social revolution aiming at a make-over of human nature falls to pieces when the first disclosure is of human nature so frail that it cannot be conciliated, but must adopt a policy of extermination against men who have been comrades in arms and brothers in council.

The fate of Trotzky not only in exile but in hiding, the fate of the 103 who had paid for their opinions and their activities with their lives, and the fate of the old communists Zinoviev and Kamenev, now under arrest, is sufficient to expose the hypocrisy of Stalin's dominant party and to reveal the impermanence of any order of society founded upon the extermination of the fit and the torture of the opposition.

Credulous people who persuaded themselves that no great revolution can proceed without some violence and some blood purge must be abashed by the continuance of government by murder when the opposition is not opposed to the principles but merely presents variations of opinion which any government which can endure would absorb into its thought and action without even the sacrifice of personal friendships.

BOSTON COMMON.

[Hartford Courant.]

The three hundredth anniversary of Boston Common is being observed this month and will continue during the spring and summer. We can recall no other tract, with the possible exception of a hill not far from it, that is as widely known.

It may be recalled that in 1634 Boston bought the land from William Blackstone for $150. It is to be surmised that some of the townspeople regarded the price as excessive; it now contains forty-eight acres, and its assessed valuation is $45,000,000, which indicates that real estate in Boston has appreciated. It is worth noting that cows still have legal rights on the Common, though it is not said that they exercise them. For all that, if a cow contrived to stray upon it, the police probably would think twice before endeavoring to drive her away.

The Common has been, so it has been said, "a center of civic progress for three hundred years." It should be added that one man gave $5,000,000 to insure its preservation, for which act not only Boston but New England should rise up and call him blessed.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AT LAST, MEN! one of our greatest tragedies is about to change into happy laughter. The inventors are bragging and boasting over an "electric eye" they've just brought out. It's supposed to be used only at the front doors of jails and penitentiaries for discovering if visitors to the prisoners are trying to slip 'em a machine gun or a couple of timber saws or three or four axes. This "electric eye" is held in the hand of the guard at the front door and he moves it up and down the visitor and if it discovers any jail-breaking device, anything at all that's got metal in it, it lights up and rings a bell. Now, men, you see where you come in? Why, we can get one of these electrical eye gadgets and move it up and down over the new shirts that have just come from the store and it will locate every single doggoned pin in that there shirt. Oh, they're clever, those gals who stick the pins in the new shirts; they hide 'em away in places where the most patient search fails to reveal 'em and we never know we've overlooked a few pins here and there until we wear the shirt downtown or to the theater or to dinner and suddenly sit down on one of those crafty lurking pins. But the electrical eye will get 'em. Let 'em put in all the pins they want in the new shirts. Ha, ha! Sic 'em, electrical eye. Hunt 'em up! Thata boy!

PLEA FOR GREATER STRENGTH

I do not want
The bravery of those
Who, gun in hand,
Rush forth to slay their foes.
Not hatred, greed,
Or glory of conquest.
Would I find rooted
In my human breast.
But this of God I ask:
"Please make me strong
To offer Love to those Who do me wrong."

"WIFE IN DIVORCE SUIT Charges Husband Hurled Coffee at Her."—Headline. With coffee costing what it does today and so many folks on the dole it seems very foolish for a gentleman to throw coffee at his lady wife. Potatoes would be much better, for they can be picked up off the floor and put back on the table. Or prunes, or bread, or spaghetti—anything that could be easily salvaged. But a cup of coffee, never! When you throw a cup of coffee at the wife, remember, husbands, it's gone forever.

OH, HOW VERY CONFUSING!

Speaking about embarrassing moments! A bubbling, happy crowd singing Christmas wakes went around Tuesday visiting all their friends and acquaintances, filing into the parlors and then raising their happy voices in the dear old songs. And it was on towards midnight when the leader of one of the bands of Christmas carolers sat in his room in front of the fireplace thinking with a great glow of satisfaction of the joy his singers had contributed to the gladsome Christmas day, when the telephone rang and a sad, sweet voice over the wire said: "Oh, we did enjoy the singing of your Christmas wakes so very, very much and we just can't thank you enough."

"That's awfully nice of you," said the leader, "and thank you."

"But just one thing I wanted to tell you," said the lady, "and I hope you won't take it as a criticism or anything."

"Oh, not at all," said the leader. "Out with it."

"Well," said the lady, "I just hated to call you up, but it seems as though we can't do anything and I thought I might ask you about it and see if you had any suggestions."

"Oh, all right, all right," exclaimed the leader. "Now tell me. I'm getting very curious to know what the trouble is."

"Well, it isn't exactly trouble," said the lady; "it's just a little perplexing to know what to do."

"Oh, what in the world is it?" demanded the leader, becoming a trifle irritated. "Come on now and tell me about this."

"Well," said the lady, reluctantly, "I hate to mention it, but after your wakes had gone away this afternoon we found one of them asleep in the bath tub and whenever we ask him if he won't please go he just turns over and shouts rather angrily: 'I shaid nozza shurb me til sheven 'clock 'morrow mornin'.' What do you think we had better do?"

TROUBLE WILL BE STARING the world right in the eye when January comes around. There's the plebiscite in the Saar Basin which may start another European war in Europe. And over here in the U. S. A. we, too, have cause to tremble. Congress meets! Gosh, let's trade troubles. Let's swap congress for the Saar thing. But would we gain anything? It's just about fifty-fifty any way you look at it.

ALL RIGHT, if you're still putting off buying your new 1934 Linebook don't let me disturb you. But you won't be able to get one after tomorrow or Saturday at the latest. They're flickering out, so I'm warning you.

FINALE.

Life does not end the common way
We carelessly conceive,
Quietly, with candles lit,
And friendly folk to grieve.

Ah no! Life goes more suddenly,
More painfully, than this,
The end comes sharp as ice or fire,
In a word, a smile, a kiss.

And afterward we nod and speak
Until upon a day
Candlelight and friendly earth
Conceal the soul's decay.

ELIMINATE SMALLPOX.

FEW if any school children of today have the slightest conception of the ravages of smallpox. This is an era of an intelligent attitude toward health problems, when education and the activities of boards of health and school authorities have made vaccination against smallpox a routine procedure.

Civilization has been called upon to combat smallpox for centuries. It was the Black Death of the 13th century. Readers of the history of the west may recall that in the early '70s the tribe of Mandan Indians was practically decimated by an epidemic of this disease. The late Sir William Osler time and again related to his students the beginning of the Quebec epidemic of smallpox that held that city in its grip in 1885. In February of that year a man traveled from Chicago, where the disease had been prevalent in mild form, to Quebec. He was ill on arrival and was admitted as a patient in the Hotel Dieu. Isolation was not enforced. This was the beginning of a widespread epidemic of considerable virulence because of the large number of unvaccinated citizens. Within nine months the death toll totaled 3,164 persons.

Although Edward Jenner had discovered many years earlier that an attack of cowpox would protect human beings from smallpox, his desire for accuracy to make certain of his position prevented his publishing his epoch making essay until 1798. Since that date the manner of preventing smallpox has been within the grasp of all.

Because we see so few cases of the disease does not mean that it is not now in existence. Although victory over smallpox has been possible for more than a century it has not been achieved. Let an unvaccinated generation arise and permit the disease to gain a foothold among them and the nation would view the result with horror.

Smallpox is essentially a winter disease and increases in incidence with the close of the autumn season. No age in the unvaccinated is exempt.

The disease usually begins with a chill, headache, and pain in various parts of the body, particularly of the lower back. In children there is generally vomiting. The skin eruption appears about the third day and begins as very tiny red spots that a few hours later become raised. Within 24 hours they can be felt as firm shotlike bodies. These rapidly increase in size and by the end of the second day take on the appearance of water blisters. During the next two or three days they enlarge somewhat and are surrounded by a considerable area of inflammation. About the fifth or sixth day pus appears in each of the raised areas. The eruption is distributed fairly generally over the body, although particularly favored sites are the skin of the head, face, hands, and forearms. The temperature, which at first is quite high, falls with the appearance of the skin manifestations, although there is a secondary rise when pus begins to form. The fever then gradually abates and in uncomplicated cases the patient proceeds to convalescence.

Considerable difference is observed in the severity of epidemics and a mild case in one individual may lead to a severe infection in another. Treatment must always be in the hands of a competent physician, and, because of the possible virulence of the infection, every possible precaution must be taken against its spread. Vaccination is relatively simple and safe and there would seem to be no sound reason for the presence of the disease. If every one were vaccinated once in each six or seven years smallpox would starve itself out of existence for lack of susceptible individuals.

"Against ignorance and superstition the gods themselves strive in vain."

DIABETES INSIPIDUS.

M. M. writes: I read your concluding article on the endocrine glands. Is not diabetes insipidus a disease of the pituitary gland? I have had this trouble for the last five years. I am in fair health at present although I am drinking 4 gallons of water each 24 hours. The intake and output of water of the body being always the same, where does the flesh get its moisture? Why does a reducing diet and plenty of exercise fail to reduce me?

REPLY.

It has been shown experimentally that injury to the pituitary will cause profuse excretion of urine that contains no sugar [diabetes insipidus]. It has not yet been proved, however, that the pituitary alone is at fault. When extract of posterior lobe of the pituitary is injected into a patient with diabetes insipidus the amount of urine excreted is greatly diminished. The effect lasts, however, but a few minutes. Water taken by mouth passes through the circulation and is excreted by the skin, the lungs, the kidneys, and the intestinal tract. Evidently your reducing diet is not adequate and your tissues retain water.

NUTRITION AT FAULT.

A troubled mother writes: Our two little girls are not developing right. Both have bronchial coughs, are tired looking and very nervous. They have weak eyes and poor teeth. I cannot get them to eat right. They love candy and have too much, but what can I do when other children are always "treating"? Dressing children for overheated houses and drafty schoolrooms is also a problem.

REPLY.

The health foundations that are laid in childhood determine their physical resistance in adult life. Proper food for children is even more important than proper food for adults. I would judge that your children are not properly fed. May I suggest that you, as an intelligent mother, get one or two good books on child feeding? Among such books are: "Cultivating the Child's Appetite," by C. A. Aldrich; "How to Feed Children from Infancy Onwards," by S. Lief; "Modern Methods of Feeding in Infancy and Childhood," by D. Patterson and J. F. Smith.

Slipover sweaters can be used in the schoolroom if it is drafty, and removed at home if the house is overheated. Most of us are dressed up too warmly indoors.

COLD PREVENTION.

B. H. writes: What can be done by the general public to prevent the spread of colds?

REPLY.

When sneezing or coughing cover the nose and mouth with a generous handkerchief or absorbent tissue of some sort. By this means you will not fill the air about you with bacteria-laden spray from your nose and throat.

SALE BY CONTRACT.

Waterloo, Ia., Dec. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What steps are necessary to secure the release of property sold on contract for deed which has been voided by violation of all the terms of the contract? The contract was executed in June, 1932. The party allowed the building and loan payments to lapse for four months, did not pay the 1933 taxes, and defaulted in the annual payment due me on June 1,1934. I sent the party a legal notice and had same recorded by the Circuit clerk. What more is necessary in order to bring the abstract up to date and be able to give a clear title to the property in the event of a sale? The other party lives in another state and the property referred to is in Illinois. The party refuses to sign a release releasing the contract. M. C. S.

If the property is in Illinois, a recent Illinois statute requires a 30 day preliminary notice of intention followed by a notice of forfeiture. Your course will depend in part on whether the contract has been recorded. We advise you to employ an attorney.

PROVISIONS OF WILL.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I intend making a will leaving everything to my only brother—personal and real estate, which I suppose must be probated in event of my death. 1. Must an administrator be mentioned in the will? 2. If so, is there a fee and how much? 3. If I am successful in selling my home must my personal belongings also be probated? I have no money in banks, mortgages or bonds. 4. Could my nieces, whom we own nothing whatever, contest the will? T. N.

1. No, but it would save expenses if you named your brother as executor.

2. We see no importance to the question whether your brother charges himself a fee.

3. The possibility of dispensing with probate depends on the size of your estate and on other facts that are not before us.

4. In order to succeed, they would have to show undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity. In view of their having an incentive to contest the will, we strongly advise you to employ an attorney in the drafting and execution of the document.

AIRCRAFT LAWS.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The writer appeals to you to assist him to correct a violation of the flying ordinance. Every evening between 7 and 9 o'clock an airplane flies west over our property. The plane has a powerful motor and the elevation is quite low, barely missing trees and church steeple. What is the limit in the city? I understood it was 1,000 feet. If this be true, the pilot does not pay any attention to the law. J. W. B.

Section 3920 of the chapter on aircraft in the revised statutes is in part as follows: "No person shall fly over any part or section within the limits of the city of Chicago at a height lower than that enabling such aircraft to glide in any emergency and at all times to a known, established or recognized open or unobstructed place of landing, on land or water, nor shall any person under any circumstances, special or otherwise, fly at a height lower than 2,000 feet except at the beginning or end of a flight."

Section 3923 reads as follows: "Penalty: Every person violating any of the provisions of this chapter shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for each offense."

BIG NEWS IF TRUE.

Beardstown, Ill., Dec. 25.—In your editorial, "Roof Landings for Airplanes," you state that by 1944, or ten years hence, perhaps some one will have been able to invent a plane that will rise vertically from the ground, fly away to the loop, and land on some flat topped building.

I think you ought to know that there is just such a plane as you vision already in existence right here in Beardstown. I understand the Halligan brothers here in our city have just that kind of airplane. I have often heard it discussed. The plane has been seen here many times by local railroad men from the railroad yards, but always at a distance, as they never seem to let any one get near to it.

The plane has always been covered and wheeled away in the early morning hours, as I am told they always do their flying throughout the night. Many here have seen this airplane, but always at a distance, and no one has ever been able to get near it, it seems, to see just how it works.

I have heard it argued that it rises straight up into the air, and can even stand still while in the air. I do not know why they are so secretive about it. I thought you would be interested in knowing there is an airplane of this kind here at Beardstown. W. Y. E.

UNCLE SAM'S UNPAID TEACHERS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—At this time of year considerable publicity is being given to the fact that regular teachers and city employés are being paid up for Christmas. Not a word is said about the more than 8,000 teachers for the federally supported adult education classes of the Emergency Education program.

Neither I nor any of the many other teachers I know have been paid since the middle of November. This is a regular state of affairs for EEP teachers.

Surely this is a deplorable state of affairs, particularly when it is considered that all EEP teachers must pass an examination to prove them financially in need of their jobs.

The federal funds are there. Red tape is keeping us from being paid. We are in desperate straits and looking forward to a cheerless Christmas.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—In THE TRIBUNE'S report of the death of Col. Sanborn the statement is made that he was the first of the wartime colonels of Chicago to die. This is an error, as the late Col. Daniel Moriarty of the Seventh Illinois must be credited with that distinction. Col. Moriarty was mustered into federal service with his regiment and led it to Camp Logan, Tex., in 1917, where it joined the 33d division, A. E. F. He failed, to his great disappointment, with several other officers to pass the physical examination for overseas service and was retired with the rank of major general.

He passed away a few years ago, the first of Chicago's wartime colonels.

Dennison and the colored boys of the 370th, brigaded with the French division, were at Château Thierry, Belleau Wood, and the Argonne. I trust Illinois will always remember them both.

In reading the newspapers today I see a picture and display head of the death of a mail pilot flying without passengers, and submerged was an article on two fast passenger trains crashing together, killing three and injuring fourteen, and even more obscurely presented was an article telling how four people were killed and three injured in a Pittsburgh-Chicago bus accident.

RUSSIAN PRESS SEES BIG FOREIGN ESPIONAGE PLOT

Reds Allege Information Was Given to Consul.

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Espionage against the Soviet régime was charged in the Soviet press today as a consequence of the linking of the activities of an underground terroristic organization and an unidentified foreign consul.

Bitter comment met publication of the alleged confession of Leonid Nicolaieff, accused assassin of Sergei Kirov, in which he told of his negotiations with the alien official.

The government, acting swiftly to bring Nicolaieff and 13 associates to trial, charged that the assassination of Kirov was but the opening move in a sinister plot against other high Soviet officials, including Dictator Joseph Stalin.

Trotzky Named as 'Brains.'

The plot, it said, was organized with the aid of Leon Trotzky, exiled former communist leader, and was to have been followed by "the intervention of capitalistic powers." Trotzky, the government asserted, was implicated in the movement by Nicolaieff's confession.

The confession attributed to the accused assassin said he had assured the consul, whose identification was deleted from the published version, of his willingness to convey to him "information about what was going on in the Soviet union."

"Further, I asked the consul," Nicolaieff was quoted as saying, "to give us material aid, while I told him that the money we received would be returned as soon as our financial affairs changed."

Says Envoy Furnished Cash.

The purported confession related that the consul had advanced 5,000 rubles and offered to establish connections with Trotzky if the underground group would give him a letter to be forwarded.

The newspaper Izvestia said the activities of the terroristic band could have had only the effect of "giving new hope to interventionists."

Pravda said: "The mouths of the cannon of imperialistic enemies are directed toward us. From capitalistic darkness comes the stench which Kirov's murderers breathed."

Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev, both former high ranking soviet officials, were not included among the 14 who were turned over to the military collegium of the Supreme court for trial. It was understood they were under arrest and faced deportation.

Reports Opening of Trial.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—[Friday.]—(AP)—A Warsaw dispatch to the Express today said a secret trial of Leonid Nicolaieff and 13 others accused of the murder of Sergi Kirov began yesterday in the Military court at the old Smolney institute in Leningrad, scene of the crime.

The dispatch said the authorities at the last minute decided against holding the trial in Moscow, as had been planned. All reporters were barred from the courtroom, but the dispatch gave a purported description of the opening of the proceedings, in which Nicolaieff was described as defiant and laughing. He was quoted as saying:

"I freed Russia from a low down scoundrel. Others will follow me and finish my work."

A prisoner named Shatsky, who is described as the oldest in the group, was reported to have fainted when asked if he pleaded guilty. The dispatch said 2,000 soldiers guarded the institute.

The day was treated as a holiday, it was said, with the Leningrad fractories and stores closed and processions demanding "death to the Zinoviev group."

The Moscow radio station, it was said, announced that correspondence from Leon Trotzky was found giving evidence of the existence of an organization in Bulgaria, Lithuania, and Germany, plotting against the soviets.

France Protects Trotzky.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—As long as he behaves himself, Leon Trotzky, exiled former communist leader, is assured of French shelter from the soviet régime's stern campaign against its enemies.

In the face of reports from Moscow that the once powerful soviet official had been implicated in the plot to assassinate Sergei Kirov, French authorities said they regarded Trotzky as the type of political exile to which France has always given refuge.

No complaint against Trotzky has been received from Moscow, it was said, but officials added that even if he were charged with a political crime, his extradition would not be allowed.

The whereabouts of the former Red commissar for foreign affairs and war remained secret. He was said to be living "a long distance from Paris." Secret service men were said to guard him night and day, both for his own protection and as a precaution against his engaging in any undesirable activities in this country.

Russian Embassy Silent.

At the time Trotzky's presence in France was disclosed last spring following a police raid at Barbizon, accusations were made that he was attempting to organize communistic activities in Paris.

The French government said it had been informed by the soviet embassy that Trotzky was regarded as a private person and "not a soviet citizen."

It represented the soviet mission as expressing the opinion that no instructions would be sent from Moscow seeking Trotzky's extradition or even his deportation.

ROYALISTS SEEK ARMY DICTATOR TO RULE SPAIN

Ex-King's Trouble with Wife Induces Change.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Dec. 27.—Marital troubles between former King Alfonso of Spain and Queen Victoria Eugénie have caused Spain's monarchists to abandon all hopes of an early restoration of the monarchy. Instead, they demand an army dictatorship veiled under the form of an "authoritative corporate state."

The trouble which has sent Spain's die-hard monarchists looking for a dictator dates back many years. At least ten years ago it was whispered in international diplomatic circles that Alfonso was desperate over the taint of haemophilia which showed in three of his four sons. It was reported that, like Napoleon, he would seek a divorce and remarry in the hope of obtaining a healthy heir to the throne.

Rift Widens After Flight.

The rift with Victoria grew wider after the night of April 14, 1931, when he fled alone to Cartagena, where he embarked for exile. She now lives with royal relatives in her native England, while Alfonso has taken a villa in Fascist Rome.

According to insistent rumors, Alfonso's residence in Rome is allied with a desire to seek the aid of the Vatican in obtaining a divorce. Nevertheless, leading monarchists believe he will not take a step at the age of 46 which he hesitated to take when he was still in his thirties.

Monarchists first had the idea of avoiding the issue raised by the exiled king's quarrels with Victoria by substituting for the one time monarch his third son, Don Juan, a midshipman in the British navy, and who at 21 is heir to the throne in view of the renunciation of all rights by the prince of Asturias upon his marriage early this year to a wealthy Cuban heiress. The second son, Infante Don Jaime, is regarded as unfit because of a physical disability which affects his hearing and speech.

Refuses to Be Retired.

Alfonso bluntly refused to be retired in favor of his third son.

Troubled by the rising ascendancy of José Maria Gil Robles and his clerical hosts, who, by a veiled acceptance of the Lerroux régime, had gained a leading position with the power to make and undo republican governments, the monarchists have decided to drop the question of restoration for the time being.

The beetle-browed Antonio Giococchea flew to Rome recently with a manifesto in his pocket which he showed to his king. Securing Alfonso's approval he returned to Spain and a national bloc was launched.

The manifesto, signed by the duke of Alba and by all Spain's leading archists, asks for the immediate abolition of parliament and for the setting up of a "corporative state."

CHURCHILL GIVES 14 OF HIS IRISH TENANTS HOMES ON CHRISTMAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Winston Churchill, prominent Conservative, was given credit today for the most unusual Christmas presents this year. He presented to fourteen of his tenants in the Irish fishing village of Carnlough, County Antrim, the houses they rent from him.

No strings are attached. The tenants, most of them poor fishermen, get the property free of all charges save the conveyance fee.

Some of the unemployed tenants have had difficulties paying their rent recently, so Churchill, who inherited the houses in 1921, decided he might as well give the houses to them. Each house contains four rooms and has a garden.

BAVARIANS FIGHT AUSTRIANS; ONE KILLED, 26 HURT

FURTH, Germany, Dec. 27.—(AP)—One person was killed and 26 wounded, nine seriously, in a clash here tonight between Austrian Storm Troopers and native farmers of Bavaria, in which 500 took part.

Local police attempted ineffectively to halt the riots which originated in a café frequently visited by Austrian refugees and Austrian Storm Troopers who are encamped at nearby Aibling, which is 12 miles from the Austrian frontier. The trouble began when a Bavarian girl declined to dance with Austrians.

The Austrians attacked Bavarians with knives and chairs and shouted "Down with Hitler." The Bavarians hurled beer glasses and used knives and chairs as they shouted, "Out with the Austrians!"

The restaurant was demolished. Street fights followed and 300 armed Schutz Staffel men [Hitler bodyguards] were called from Dachau. The latter stopped the fighting.

BODY IN LOCK OF CANAL BELIEVED MISSING DOCTOR

Windsor Locks, Conn., Dec. 27.—(AP)—E. Joseph Claudell, undertaker, said tonight the body of a man wedged in the mechanism of a canal lock here compared in every way with the description of Dr. George H. Bigelow, missing director of the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston.

Claudell, who viewed the body from a distance of 12 feet, said did not know the physician, who dropped from sight Dec. 3, but that he had carefully studied his description in detail.

Newspaper men who knew the 44 year old former commissioner of public health in Massachusetts expressed a belief it was his body.

Caught in what is known as a "sucker" in the canal, where the canal water drops to the Connecticut river, the body tonight was lashed by chains to prevent the terrific force of falling water from tearing it loose and carrying it away.

Bigelow disappeared on the morning of Dec. 3 after a brief visit to his office at the hospital.

TEACHERS ASK MORE CASH IN ILLINOIS FUNDS

Draft Program for the Legislature.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Meeting in their eighty-first annual convention, members of the Illinois State Teachers' association today adopted a comprehensive legislative program for the regular session of the legislature's meeting next month.

The teachers want money past due paid into the state school fund to be paid as soon as possible, even if a general property tax has to be extended for 1935; provision for full payment of high school tuition, and that diversion of sales tax collections to the school fund be raised so that the fund is made $30,000,000.

Want Money Speedily Paid.

The teachers' legislative committee pointed out that many school districts are still in financial straits and that teachers still have salary cuts. It also cited arrearage of $15,000,000 in the state school distributive fund and asked that something be done to remedy that situation.

The teachers pledged coöperation with the governor's committee to study the Illinois school problem with a view to general revisions in its setup. The teachers favor making the office of state superintendent of public instruction appointive instead of elective.

Lulu Hill New President.

Miss A. Lulu Hill, East St. Louis, was elected president of the association for 1935, succeeding State Senator Noah M. Mason, Oglesby.

C. E. Vance, Danville, was named first vice president; C. R. Crakes, Moline, second vice president; I. R. Hendrickson, Mount Morris, third vice president; Charles McIntosh, Monticello, treasurer.

Susan Scully, Chicago, was elected a member of the executive committee and the board of directors.

2 U. S. WOMEN TELL OF NARROW ESCAPE FROM CHINESE BANDITS

CHANGTEH, China, Dec. 28 [Friday].—(AP)—A harrowing story of how they escaped capture by outlaw troops while fleeing from a remote missionary station in western Hunan province was told today by two American women upon their arrival here.

The women are Miss Justine E. Granner of Hubbard, Ia., and Miss Anna M. Renninger of Reading, Pa. They were stationed at Chenki, Hunan, and attempted to reach Changteh in a small boat ahead of a fast moving brigand army.

They were overtaken at Tao Yuan, 20 miles south of here. Their craft, piloted by Chinese oarsmen, immediately was commandeered by the rebels, but the women managed to elude discovery by crouching in the bottom of the boat. For six days they remained hidden. During this time the outlaws plundered and ravaged the adjacent city. Finally the boat was permitted to proceed and they arrived here without further incident.

ECONOMY HITS GENEVA'S JAIL RIGHT IN MIDDLE

An economy wave arrived in Geneva yesterday and hit the Kane county jail right in the bread box.

Sherif Albert J. Kampmeyer announced that hereafter the prisoners would be given two slices of bread at meals instead of the five formerly issued.

The order depended on more than the mere saving of bread also. The sherif explained that the prisoners had been wasting the bread and clogging drain pipes with it.

BOILER EXPLODES KILLS 16 MINERS ON WORK TRAIN

Blame Wreckers in Crash on Ohio Rail Line.

Powellton, W. Va., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Sixteen men are dead and about forty-three others injured following an explosion of the boiler of a work train locomotive today.

Three hundred miners were in the four coach train on their way to an Elkhorn-Piney Coal company mine when the locomotive's boiler was blown into the air, pieces falling about the middle of the first coach. The engine cab was driven through a small house, beside the track, injuring a mother and two sleeping children.

The bodies of some of the miners were hurled hundreds of feet. The body of Engineer William M. Blankenship was found nearly three hundred feet from the wreckage. The body of Fireman Delmar L. Oxley was hurled over a house into the bed of a nearby creek.

Blast Echoes for Miles.

The blast echoed through the mountain district for miles.

Early investigation indicated, it was said, that the firebox cover had buckled, loosening the boiler tubes.

The train had carried the miners to and from their work each day. It had made its last stop before moving out of this valley settlement to the mine at the top of a nearby hill. Steam pressure was being increased to pull the train up the hill when the boiler burst.

The railroad on which the accident occurred belongs to the coal company, a subsidiary of the Koppers Coal and Transportation company of Pittsburgh. It is a standard gauge line carrying coal from the mine to Montgomery.

Charge Wrecking of Train.

Columbus, O., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Police and railroad officials charged tonight that tampering with a switch caused the wreck at noon today of a Pennsylvania passenger train. Three engine men were killed and about twenty persons injured.

The train, No. 614, was delayed running into Columbus. It crashed into a string of empty box cars. The locomotive and baggage car were upset; the two passenger coaches were derailed. The freight cars were smashed.

Those killed were Engineer H. S. Beach of Mount Vernon, A. B. Eckles of Cleveland, a road foreman of engines, and Beach's fireman, John Sholar, 41, of Cleveland.

Warning Signal Gone.

Police Chief Fred Kundts said he believed some one had tampered with the switch after F. H. Krick, superintendent of the Cleveland division of the railroad, declared the switch, leading to the track on which the box cars stood, had been locked open and a semaphore arm that should have warned the engineer had been torn off.

Hits Bridge; Killed.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—George E. Peterson, 42, fireman on a Northern Pacific train, was killed today. His head struck the Soo line overhead bridge here while he was testing the level of water in the locomotive tank.

REVEAL HUMAN ERROR KILLED 15 IN ONTARIO WRECK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 27.—A human error, committed by an excited brakeman who has been a railroad man for sixteen years, was revealed today as the cause of the collision of two trains near Hamilton, Ont., Christmas night which took the lives of fifteen persons and injured thirty-one.

An official statement was issued by W. A. Kingland, general manager of the central region of the Canadian National railways, on whose line the accident occurred, giving in detail the results of the company's investigation into the crash.

The statement asserted that E. S. Lynch, forward brakeman of the sidetracked London-Toronto holiday excursion train, threw the switch which sent the Detroit-Toronto express smashing into the rear wooden coaches of the special because he mistakenly thought he was averting the collision that he caused. The special had entered a siding after its engine developed a hot crank pin.

Lynch, the report said, thought his train was still on the main line. He noticed the headlight of the express, "became excited and rushed to the switch, which he unlocked and turned for the siding." The crash followed.

U. S. JUDGE ASKED TO APPROVE LAW FEES OF $330,000

Claim Is Made Against Surface Lines.

The question of the reasonableness of a $330,000 lawyer's fee was the issue presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday. The sum was sought by Attorney Arthur M. Kracke for income tax services to the Chicago Surface Lines during the last three years. The lawyer billed the company for 5,321 hours of work for himself and 300 hours by an associate, Attorney Brode B. Davis, at $58.70 an hour.

Lawyers for the surface lines' receivers and bondholders' committees are contesting the sum requested as excessive. Attorney Harry P. Weber said the tax attorney had not been hired on a contingent basis, and that the fee, computed as about 10 per cent of the saving of $3,200,000, was too high.

$2,790,000 Saved Plus Interest.

The surface lines were assessed $3,800,000 in income taxes for 1924 to 1931, inclusive, on deductions the government disallowed. The taxes were finally adjusted at $1,010,000, saving $2,790,000 for the company. With interest at $410,000, the total saving reached $3,200,000.

Represented by Attorney George I. Haight, Kracke gave testimony supporting the size of the $330,000 fee asked. With the same object, three income tax lawyers testified. They were James S. Y. Ivins of New York, who said $325,000 was a fair fee; John E. Hughes, who said $350,000 was fair, and George K. Bowden, who said $330,000 would be just.

Tells of Complex Problems.

Attorney Kracke testified as to the amount of work involved, the complexity of the problems, and the time spent. He said the work entailed depreciation of the street car properties, and a recasting of the accounting methods.

"How much do you think the court ought to allow if you had achieved no savings?" asked Judge Wilkerson.

"I'd say a nominal amount of ten, fifteen, or twenty thousand dollars," replied the attorney.

Judge Wilkerson, who must approve the amount to be paid because the surface lines are in receivership in his court, will resume the hearing today.

TWO POLICEMEN LOCKED UP AS BURGLARS IN N. Y.

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Patrolmen Joseph C. Colombo and John Lewan of the Beach street station were arrested and locked up as burglars early today.

Colombo and Lewan, officials said, were observed by Sergt. Charles Kenney as he was on his early morning rounds.

They were standing in uniform, he said, in front of a café owned by Colombo's brother. Colombo's sedan was parked at the curb. Sergt. Kenney's suspicions were aroused when he saw that they wore the insignia of the Fourth precinct, whereas they were in the territory of the Fifth precinct.

Asked what they were doing, they replied vaguely, he said. Kenney looked into the sedan. He declared he saw scores of boxes of candy bearing the label of the Margarella Candy company.

Kenney disarmed the two patrolmen and took them to the Elizabeth street station, where they were booked on charges of burglary. They were suspended from duty.

$413,907 for South Bend's Workers Asked in Suit

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Mandamus action to compel the payment of $413,907 to firemen, police, and electrical department workers was filed today in Superior court. The suit demands payment of the 10 per cent pay increase authorized by ordinance last fall but never put into effect. Paul M. Butler, who filed the suit, said that even with the additional 10 per cent the city employés would be 19 per cent below the former salary level.

N. POLAR STORM HITS N. ENGLAND; WIND 175 MILES

Two Die, 12 Hurt in Arctic Hurricane.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The arctic storm that swirled across the northern states fell with destructive fury on the New England seacoast today, lashing the area with a winter hurricane that reached a velocity of 175 miles an hour and sent the temperature to 30 degrees below zero.

Communication lines were wrecked, trees were uprooted and buildings demolished as the gale tore along the coast, leaving a toll of two dead and twelve injured in its wake. Shipping was endangered and delayed.

The wind was registered here at 66 miles an hour; at Springfield, Mass., it was 75, but the astounding velocity of 175 miles an hour was clocked atop Mount Washington, N. H., by instruments nearly taxed to their limit to meter the gale that swept over the White mountains.

Boston Wind Kills Worker.

By noon the temperature had "warmed up" from 30 to 17 below in New Hampshire and the wind had died down to only 150 miles an hour. In Boston the wind was so strong it swept a dock hand into the harbor. The other death was recorded in Wakefield where a woman died on the steps of her son's home.

With the storm at its worst, fire destroyed the Squam Lake hotel and several other buildings at Ashland, N. H., causing damage estimated at $100,000. Several other fires throughout New England added to the general hardship.

Scores of persons were injured by flying débris here when two machines weighing 100 tons each were caught up by the wind, lifted out of an East Boston coal yard and thrown into Boston harbor.

39 Below in Minnesota.

The subzero wave relaxed somewhat after the mercury had descended to a low of 39 below in Minnesota, where seven deaths were attributed to the cold. Two were dead in the cold in Iowa and four automobile fatalities in Montana were blamed on icy highways. Wisconsin and upper Michigan had five deaths from automobile accidents attributed to the weather.

The tail end of the storm was felt in San Francisco in the form of a hard rain. The Pacific northwest was raked by a 70 mile an hour gale, endangering coastwise shipping. The storm appeared to be moving southward, a heavy fog tying up Los Angeles shipping.

Relief from the low temperatures was promised in the middle west, but colder weather was in store for the Appalachian region and the middle and north Atlantic states.

Six Die in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Six deaths caused directly or indirectly by the season's most severe storm were listed in Montana today, and two other persons were missing and may have perished from exposure.

Among the missing were Johann Herzog, 72, who disappeared from his cabin near Miles City ten days ago and was believed to have wandered into the hills, and Private Michael Celopez of Fort Missoula, a mental patient who escaped from the post hospital scantily clad.

Four others killed during the week were crushed to death in automobiles which slipped from ice coated highways.

BOAT CAPSIZES; 4 SMALL SISTERS DROWN IN RIVER

Harrisville, W. Va., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Four little sisters, all under 10 years of age, were drowned today in the icy waters of the north fork of the Hughes river when the rowboat carrying them capsized.

The mother of the children and Bruce Cunningham, 19, who was rowing them across the stream, reached shore safely.

The victims are Laverna Mason, age 8; Betty Mason, 7; Marie Mason, 5, and Maggie Mason, 2, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Mason of Petroleum, W. Va.

The mother, wife of a farmer and relief worker, was pulled from the river, but is in a critical condition.

MAYOR OPPOSES PATRON ARRESTS IN BOOKIE RAIDS

Opposition to the arrest of patrons in gambling raids was voiced by Mayor Kelly yesterday, shortly before 35 of the 113 persons seized by police squads in Wednesday raids on two alleged bookmaking places were dismissed for want of evidence.

"It is difficult," the mayor said, "to get evidence on which to hold inmates of a gambling house. Judges will only release them eventually. It is the main offenders we want. That means the people who run gambling dens in defiance of the recent police order that they close and stay closed."

Fifteen of the 113 defendants failed to appear before Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State street court, and their $25 bonds were forfeited. Thirteen persons charged with being keepers of the raided places, at 187 North La Salle street and 16 West Van Buren street, were granted continuances.

Four other alleged handbooks were raided and closed yesterday. Capt. Patrick Collins of the Des Plaines street station led raids on places at 338 South Halsted street and 304 North Sangamon street, where 36 men were arrested. A squad under Sergt. Peter Bernacchi visited 27 North Franklin street and 192 North Clark street.

FALL IN BATH PROVES FATAL.

Injuries incurred when he fell in the bathroom of his home Christmas morning caused the death yesterday of Joseph Kanab, 53 years old, 842 North Homan avenue, in the Hines hospital.

RULES AGAINST USE OF MORTGAGE RELIEF AFTER FORECLOSURE

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium law cannot be invoked as a relief measure on debt ridden farm property after foreclosure proceedings have been completed, Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux ruled today.

Although making no ruling as to constitutionality of the law, Judge Molyneaux in his decision restricted the extent to which the measure could be applied as a relief measure. He ruled on the action brought by Sherman Stacey, farmer in Rice county, who sought relief under its bankruptcy provisions.

Stacey secured a $15,000 loan on the farm in 1928. In July, 1933, Louis D. and Sarah Roberge, holders of the mortgage, foreclosed because of delinquency in interest payments. In July, 1934, shortly before the period of redemption for debtors expired, Stacey sought an extension of time under the Minnesota mortgage moratorium law and later under section 75A of the Frazier law.

Judge Molyneaux ruled that "No provision can be found in this section which could be construed as extending the period of redemption or giving the court power to extend the period of redemption. He held while the court could enjoin foreclosure proceedings, once the proceedings were completed the matter was out of the jurisdiction of the court.

3 BABY GIRLS BURN TO DEATH IN LITTLE HOME

Father Badly Hurt Trying to Save Them.

Mishawaka, Ind., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Three little girls were burned to death here today when their humble one room home was set afire by burning oil. The blaze started when oil which their father was heating for his truck engine boiled over on the stove.

The dead were Betty, 4; Esther, 2, and Mayme Hammond, 6 weeks old. Their father, Harry, himself was badly burned and is in a serious condition. The mother escaped with minor injuries.

When the blazing liquid boiled over it scattered to all parts of the little house and the children's clothing was set afire.

The father's burns were incurred in an unavailing effort to save his three babies from the flames.

The mother of Betty and Esther is Hammond's divorced wife. Hammond is a driver for the Mishawaka city park development district and had just stepped out of the house when he heard a sound like an explosion and the screams of his second wife, Laura, 20, the mother of the youngest baby.

FAIR WRECKING PROGRAM READY, DECLARES LOHR

Officials of A Century of Progress yesterday were completing plans for demolition of exhibit buildings on the Exposition grounds as outlined by the Chicago park district, which on Wednesday asked that only the Administration building, bridges, and pedestrian ramps, and the Lagoon Theater and equipment be saved from the wrecking program.

"We have not yet received formal notice of the demolition program from the park board, but we are beginning our plans," said Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Exposition. "We expect to have our program ready shortly after Jan. 1 and will start work immediately. Undoubtedly all wrecking work will be let out under contract."

Father Time has a few parting words with the New Year

FATHER TIME: My son, in entering on your new duties have you given any thought to the subject of Repeal?

THE NEW YEAR: Yes, sir, I have reached the general conclusion that experience is a better teacher than coercion.

FATHER TIME: The conclusion is sound . . . and now tell me, what is it that grows overnight and what is it that takes Time?

THE NEW YEAR: A mushroom, sir, and a masterpiece.

FATHER TIME: But mushrooms, my son, are good to eat.

THE NEW YEAR: Yes, sir, but they are not improved by age and it is important not to confuse things that are ephemeral in Nature with things that are dependent on Time.

FATHER TIME: And in producing a masterpiece, what is next in importance to Time?

THE NEW YEAR: The experience that is the product of Time.

FATHER TIME: And what is the greatest problem of Repeal?

THE NEW YEAR: To find whiskies that are worthy of public favor.

FATHER TIME: Now, give me a definition of a fine whiskey?

THE NEW YEAR: One that lies long in the cask that it may be worthy of its ultimate errand as the symbol of friends.

FATHER TIME: Can you cite me a specific example?

THE NEW YEAR: I will cite the classic example, sir, and will do it in a toast... "Here's to Father Time, oldest stockholder in Gooderham & Worts, founded 1832 and still doing business at the same old stand!"

POLITICAL RIVALS LAUNCH PRIMARY CAMPAIGN TODAY

Council Hopefuls Begin Filing; Two Meetings.

Political activity in anticipation of the aldermanic election and mayoralty primary on Feb. 26 and the mayoralty election of April 2 will begin to gather momentum today with meetings of city organizations of the two major parties scheduled. The major objective of these meetings will be an effort to reach agreements on candidates for city clerk and city treasurer in the April 2 election. Candidates for aldermen, hopeful of election for four year terms on Feb. 26, will start filing their petitions this morning.

The mayoralty campaign, however, will continue to be the center of speculation.

Urge Kelly to Run Again.

A group of business men from the 13th ward called on Mayor Kelly yesterday to urge him to be a candidate to succeed himself. They cited reduced taxes, restoration of the city's credit, payment to date of school and city employés and other factors as reasons why they desire him to become a candidate. The mayor thanked them, but smilingly declared that he had not yet arrived at a decision. Democratic ward committeemen have voted that Mayor Kelly should be the nominee of their party.

On the Republican side there is a marked apathy toward the mayoralty race in the face of Mr. Kelly's popularity and achievements plus the thumping majorities turned in by the Chicago Democratic organization at the November election. Another factor is that the Republican war chest is depleted.

One Avowed G. O. P. Candidate.

The only avowed Republican mayoralty candidate so far is Emil C. Wetten, a lawyer. Petitions have also been started in behalf of Arthur Albert, former alderman, by the Northwest Improvement association. Albert entered the primary race for mayor four years ago and was defeated.

At a meeting of the subcommittee of the Republican city central committee yesterday Albert is reported to have said that he was not openly in the running yet but was willing to make the fight if his party wanted him to do so.

This subcommittee is expected to report a platform to the full committee this afternoon in an executive session at the Bismarck hotel. The problem of finding acceptable candidates for city clerk and treasurer also will be discussed.

Democrats Meet Today.

The Democratic huddle will take place this forenoon at the Morrison hotel. It was said that within the party ranks are a host of potential candidates for city clerk and treasurer.

Several spirited contests are looming for the aldermanic election although this is not expected to result in any material change in the party setup of the city council. The council now has 34 Democrats, 12 Republicans and 4 vacant Democratic seats.

In the 49th ward Frank Keenan, publisher of the Public Service Leader, Democratic newspaper, and vice president of the Keenan hotels, will be pitted against the incumbent Republican alderman, George A. Williston. Although no candidate has been decided on in the 41st ward it appears that the Democrats will try to beat Ald. James C. Moreland, who attacked the city administration during the recent campaign when he was defeated for county assessor.

Setup For Vacancies.

In connection with the vacancies the candidates include: William K. Murphy for alderman of the 17th ward, to fill the vacancy of the late Ald. Frank J. Corr; Joseph Kucena, backed by the Democratic organization in the 23d ward to fill the seat left by Sheriff John Toman; James B. Bowler, who left the council to become superintendent of public vehicles, expected to come back as alderman of the 25th ward; and James J. O'Keefe, former west park commissioner, for alderman of the 30th ward, the seat held formerly by County Assessor John S. Clark.

A development that enlivened the political picture during the day was a petition filed in Springfield by State Representative Robert M. Woodward, candidate for state senator in the 29th district [near north side] last November, charging vote frauds against Representative William J. Connors, victor in the election for the senatorship. The petition asks the ouster of Connors and installation of Woodward. When he heard the charges Connors retorted that "the people in my district will be up in arms over this." The petition will be acted on by the state senate.

Dr. Wynekoop Seeks New Hearing in Supreme Court

Attorneys for Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop yesterday asked the Illinois supreme court at Springfield to reconsider its recent decision upholding the 25 year prison sentence imposed on Dr. Wynekoop for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta. The petition for rehearing cannot be considered until February, when the court reconvenes.

PRESS SERVICES HELD SAFEGUARD OF RADIO NEWS

Journalism Session Hears Issue Argued.

Press association news service to broadcasting stations provides the only public safeguard against coloring of radio news and the dominance of either the government or advertisers in news broadcasting, according to E. H. Harris, Richmond, Ind., publisher, who spoke before a joint convention of two national journalistic teaching organizations at the Medinah club last night.

Mr. Harris is chairman of the publishers' national radio committee. He was answered by Herbert Moore, president of the Transradio Press service of New York, who declared that the radio was entitled to its own news gathering organization, and that the press radio service now in effect over the major chains permits newspaper monopoly and distortion of the news.

Sessions End Tomorrow.

The two opposing views on press and radio relations were offered in a symposium before the convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism and the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism which opened at the club yesterday and will continue through tomorrow.

"Uncensored news, free from propaganda, can be presented and maintained only if the news is furnished by reliable news gathering organizations and if it is not resold to an advertiser for sponsorship," Mr. Harris said. "If the news is resold to the advertiser, the news gathering association forfeits its right to prevent censorship."

The sale of a radio press service does not mean that the service will be censored, Mr. Moore declared in outlining the growth of his association, founded last March, which now supplies news to 150 stations.

Charges Deception Is Used.

"The stations buy news and that's what we deliver," Mr. Moore declared. "There isn't the newspaper monopoly that means distortion. The newspapers are fighting the press radio service with lies and deception. We believe that radio needs its own news gathering agency, uninfluenced by the press. The public wants that. Just as we fight control of the news by newspapers, so we would fight control by the government."

Counter-publicity is the only efficient means for controling the menace of propaganda in America, Prof. F. S. Siebert of the University of Illinois told the convention at the afternoon session.

Asks Counter Campaign.

Charging that the dissemination of public utility and other propaganda is making it impossible for the public to form sound opinions on many public issues, Prof. Siebert called for the counter campaign to be directed by institutions having the welfare of the people at heart.

"The newspapers both purvey propaganda and sometimes fight it in a pernicious form," Prof. Siebert said. "We must depend, in a great measure, on honest newspapers to lead the way out."

The present newspaper field is not being overcrowded by graduates of schools of journalism, said Prof. H. H. Herbert, head of the University of Oklahoma school of journalism.

STAR BOARDER'S LONE HONEYMOON IS TOLD IN COURT

From beginning to end the marriage of Aimar Paulsboe, 46 year old actor, and his landlady, Margot Jensen, 50 years old, was unusual. The full story was told at yesterday's session of Mrs. Paulsboe's separate maintenance hearing in the Superior court.

The two were married Oct. 22, 1930, while Paulsboe was the star boarder in the Jensen rooming house at 3220 Diversey avenue, Judge Rudolph F. Desort was told by Norman Becker, attorney for the woman.

Three days later, Paulsboe admitted yesterday, he started for Norway on his honeymoon with $1,400 of his bride's money, $1,600 worth of clothes he had charged to her account—but without the bride. Until he gave this testimony Paulsboe would not admit that he had really married Mrs. Paulsboe. At a previous hearing the two hurled charges that each had hypnotized the other into the union.

Judge Desort took the case under advisement.

Valparaiso, Ind., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Fireman Raymond Meinke, 35, driver of a La Porte fire department truck, was in a critical condition in Christian hospital here tonight. He was injured early today when his truck skidded on an icy hill and plunged into a ditch on its way here to aid in fighting the flames that destroyed the Porter county courthouse.

Three other La Porte firemen, including Assistant Chief Elmer Glafcke, were also injured in the accident. Glafcke suffered a broken leg and arm, while Larry Hoag and J. R. Purcell were bruised and lacerated.

Despite the efforts of the fire departments from surrounding towns, the courthouse burned with an estimated loss of $500,000. The cause of the fire was attributed to defective wiring.

SAN FRANCISCO DAILY MAY LOSE ITS BLUE EAGLE

Labor Board in Clash with Richberg.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Removal of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin's Blue Eagle was recommended to NRA by the national labor relations board today for failure to reinstate Dean S. Jennings, a rewrite man.

Jennings claimed that the paper, a William Randolph Hearst interest, forced him to resign because of his activity with the American Newspaper Guild.

Two weeks ago, over the protest of Donald R. Richberg and Blackwell Smith, NRA legal chief, the labor board gave the paper ten days either to reinstate Jennings or to show why it should not. Richberg and the paper contended the board had no jurisdiction in the case and that it should have been heard by the newspaper industrial board set up by the newspaper code.

Smith said the board should not have exercised jurisdiction. The paper failed to answer the board's decision.

The labor board officials said the board had not decided yet whether to ask the justice department to prosecute the Call-Bulletin.

Calls 1,200 Into Parley.

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A convention of representatives of 1,200 newspapers to consider the labor relations board's action in the San Francisco Call-Bulletin's case "as it affects the newspapers' continuance" under the daily newspaper code was announced tonight by Howard Davis, chairman of the publishers' national code committee.

Davis, who also is president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, issued his statement after the labor board at Washington asked the NRA compliance division to remove the Call-Bulletin's Blue Eagle for failing to heed the board's order for the reinstatement of Dean S. Jennings, a San Francisco rewrite man.

The board's action was termed by Davis "an attempt to usurp power over the code for the daily newspaper publishing business which is specifically prohibited" by provisions giving the newspaper industrial board jurisdiction over all labor disputes.

"It is regarded by the six associations of daily newspaper publishers which coöperated in the preparation and submission of the code as a violation of the code," his statement continued.

Blames Richberg Statement.

"The action of the labor relations board was characterized by Donald R. Richberg, director of the President's emergency council, in his statement filed with the board on Dec. 7, as a breach of faith by the government," said the Davis statement.

Further on, the statement in behalf of the newspaper publishers said:

"The President agreed to accept the newspaper code with this clear and precise limitation upon the general right to modify granted by the Recovery act." This limitation was that the code could not be modified in any respect after it was agreed to, save by the consent of the individual publishers affected thereby.

Lots of COTTON ISN'T ENOUGH

It must be healthy, strong-fibered

QUALITY is the first concern of the experienced cotton buyer, no matter how much cotton he needs. All the cotton fields from Memphis to New Orleans couldn't produce enough yardage to cover a night club chorus if each white blossom did not turn in its quota of strong weavable fiber.

Many an advertiser today is looking for quantity too. But when he buys, does he get freedom from waste as well? Does he get quality, the ability of readers to buy, of hundreds of thousands of readers to buy?

It's a question profitably applied to all your advertising, especially the newspaper advertising you buy in the greatest market of them all —New York!

Here you can buy quantity with no trouble at all—for New York thinks and lives in volume figures. But with a little investigation you can buy quantity plus quality, for there are enough above-average income families in this vast community to make your advertising show a real profit in volume sales. Where to find them? Consider these facts:

Every day the New York Herald Tribune goes to 320,145 families, a group as large as the sixth biggest city in the United States. On Sundays the Herald Tribune reaches 430,853 families. So much for quantity.

But you want to test for quality too. Here's the most conclusive test we know: the test of the will to buy. Month after month more and more readers of the Herald Tribune send in voluntary requests to the editors for advice in shopping, in food planning, in child education and fashions and interior decoration. Last year these requests totalled 230,237. For the first eleven months of 1934, they totalled 380,000. This is evidence of an active interest in good living, growing constantly, and reflected directly in the sales of national and local advertisers.

Ask your advertising agency today to show you more facts about this resultful newspaper. Or write to any of these addresses.

University Colony Club Plans Party.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CLOSE on the heels of a Christmas ball and a holiday tea-dance the University Colony club, founded a year ago among several dozen of the south side's most substantial families, is issuing invitations for a Twelfth Night party to be held the evening of Jan. 4 in Ida Noyes hall on the University of Chicago campus.

The club has taken over the entire hall . . . and it is one of the largest and most handsome in the city . . . for the party is to provide entertainment for the children of the members as well as the grownups themselves. Before 9 o'clock there will be a circus in the gymnasium for the wee ones who must be tucked in bed early.

Then at 9 o'clock the club's governors will form a receiving line to welcome their guests for the traditional ceremony at which the Christmas greens will be burned and the Madrigal Singers of the university in their stately robes will present a program of song and cheer.

The evening will wind up on the third floor of the hall, where an orchestra in the foyer will provide dancing in two ballrooms. There will be bridge in adjoining rooms, but judging by last year's party most of the guests will pass up the bridge for dancing.

Mrs. Chauncey S. Boucher is chairman of the party assisted by a committee of the club members. Included on the club roster are the names of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Gilkey. . . . Mrs. Gilkey is the club president. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Tom Peete Cross, former Senator and Mrs. Thurlow G. Essington, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Irons, Mrs. James A. Field, the Harold Whites, and Mrs. Ernst Freund.

Two Parties Tonight for Debutante Set.

The debutantes slide from one gay evening to another at what is one of the gayest Christmas holidays in several years. There are two parties on tonight's schedule: a dinner-dance that the Oliver Morton Knodes and Mrs. Oliver S. Picher will give for their daughters, Miss Nancy Knode and Miss Muriel Picher, at the Blackstone, and a supper-dance that the Frederick G. Wackers and Mrs. C. Morse Ely will give for Miss Ellen Wacker and Miss Caryl Ely. Miss Ely is Mrs. Ely's granddaughter.

Miss Knode and Miss Wacker are the ones who are making their formal bows tonight, for Miss Picher and Miss Ely already have been presented at teas. Miss Knode, who attended Westover and Sarah Lawrence college, has an attractive house guest in the person of Miss Ruth Leonard of New York City, who was at Westover with her for four years. Miss Leonard arrived yesterday and will remain in Chicago for two weeks. Miss Wacker attended the Bell school in Lake Forest and Dobbs Ferry.

Miss Ely and her mother, Mrs. Jay Morse Ely, will be leaving for their home in Thomasville, Ga., soon after the first of the year.

Valentines to Give Tea for Miss Crossett.

Several of the debutantes and their beaux have been invited to a tea at the John W. Valentines' this afternoon. Mrs. Valentine is entertaining for Miss Carolyn Crossett, who made her debut at a brilliant ball Christmas night at the Casino. The Valentines have invited just the debutante set.

The subdebutantes will be as gay as their elder sisters tonight, although their party will end just as the Wacker-Ely ball at the Casino is getting into full swing—about 1 o'clock. The annual subdeb Christmas dinner-dance is being held at the Saddle and Cycle tonight. About 300 members of the younger generation will attend the party, which should be a better one than average, for the committee has obtained wonderful music. The committee members include Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Philip L. Reed, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords, Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf.

The Christmas party of the Fortnightly series of dances will be given tomorrow night. The dance will not begin until after dinner, and supper will be served soon after midnight. There will be two orchestras for this subdeb affair.

Also on the program for debutantes today is a luncheon Mrs. John Rice Reilly is giving for Miss Margaret Talbot, the debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Talbot. Mrs. Reilly has invited mostly Winnetka debutantes to greet her Chicago guest. The luncheon will be given in the Reilly home at 640 Blackthorn road, Winnetka.

Bohemians Sponsor Ballet Program Tonight.

Tonight's performance at the Auditorium when the Ballet Russe of Monte Carlo will repeat "The Fire Bird," which had its American première last night, and also will give "Aurora's Wedding" and "Prince Igor," will be a benefit for the Bohemians. This is the second of four dance recitals that this organization of professional musicians is sponsoring this winter to raise money for its relief fund.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, chairman of the women's committee, will be among those having box parties tonight, and so will Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, box chairman. Among others who will entertain at dinner and then take their guests to occupy a box at the performance are the John Alden Carpenters, the Charles B. Goodspeeds, the Daniel E. Peterkins, Mrs.

Tells Writer Why People Do Not Like Her

GRAPHOLOGY COUPON
Your Handwriting Analyzed

Know your assets, handicaps, talents, and emotions. Obtain a personal graphology chart. Here are the rules:
1. Clip this coupon, attach a sample of handwriting, and mail to Muriel Stafford, box 1539, Chicago Tribune.
2. Enclose 10 cents (carefully wrapped) for each sample of handwriting you wish analyzed.
3. Enclose a self-addressed STAMPED envelope, folded once.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

Today's writer says: "For some reason people do not like me. Can you tell why?"

My surprise is not that people do not like her, but that she can't understand the reason. I receive many similar questions and most of them reflect the same causes for a lack of popularity.

First of all, notice the rounded, backward slanting letters. This young woman never cares enough about anybody to be responsive or deeply interested in their affairs. She won't even lose her temper because nothing can make her care that much. She lives in a shell of complete, though amiable, indifference.

people do not like me. can you tell why?

Think of the new persons with whom you have come in contact this last year. The ones you remember with greatest pleasure are not the ones who gazed at you as if you weren't there. They are the ones whose eyes were bright with interest—interest in YOU.

Human nature being what it is, an apathetic attitude toward others is a great handicap in the race for popularity. Extreme reserve is another. Both of these drawbacks are noticeable in today's handwriting.

A combination of locked o's and a's, tightly closed at the top with a little curl, and d's and t's that have no loop whatever reflect extreme reserve. The slightly backward tilt of the writing accents this. Since the letters are rounded and the pressure is light, the writer is not especially emotional in any way. One of these things that I have mentioned means little, but combined they reveal the cause of the young lady's unpopularity.

"Why" is an interesting word in any language and especially in graphology. The withdrawal of this writer into herself is due largely to a lack of self-assurance and self-appreciation, as you can see from her low, humble capitals. The extreme roundedness of the letters also implies a nature that is peace loving and shirks from unpleasantness.

This person is intelligent, with many likeable qualities, but how in the world does she think the world is going to discover her virtues and charms? If you really wanted others to like you, Miss K. L. H., you would do something about it. Those who sit back and wait for others to come to them may wait all their lives.

A New Frock Puts Pep Into Winter Clothes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's no "letdown" mood after this holiday. Dashing about the shops hunting a new frock to perk up a dreary winter wardrobe; trying on one of the newest hats that have been reduced to mere samples of fabric and a bit of trimming and a shadow of veiling; finding some of the fresh new printed silks; or better yet, assembling the last of a southern wear vacation wardrobe keeps the shops well above the boiling point as far as shoppers are concerned.

Here are a few telling trifles to look for, the smaller things that make the best wardrobes. Chiffon sashes to wind around your evening gowns for contrast. They will be either very, very long or the shorter lengths, but have them of chiffon and use two or three colors for the best effects.

And keep your eye on tulle; you'll see plenty of the stuff in every color imaginable on hats, for gloves and trimming.

Simple one piece dresses in black, brown, or navy are straight as pencils and tiny touches of pastels or white. They are grand to slip under your fur coat right now. Or dresses of contrasting or harmonizing tones in light shades for the same purpose; for instance, pale powder blue wool, made without any trimming to wear under your smart ginger brown sealskin swagger with dark brown accessories; pale gray under black kidskins or with oxford gray kidskin or krimmer.

If cleaning bills do not trouble you, you'll wear cream ivory wool under mink or shiny black caracul. One of the most unusual combinations is a dress of soft wood violet, sashed or belted in scarlet, worn under a silver gray squirrel or caracul coat.

Prior to entering Northwestern university, where she was graduated, Miss Hanley had studied at the University School for Girls and Rosemont college, Rosemont, Pa. Mr. Moran is a graduate of Loyola university.

Quits Hospital to Make Her Bow at Dance

Bette Rich Is Debutante Despite Illness.

Even that very persistent little flu germ that is making its rounds this holiday season could not conquer Miss Bette Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Joseph Rich, who made her debut last night at a dinner dance in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

Although she has been in the Evanston hospital for the last several days, she looked prettier than ever last night in a green and silver tissue gown receiving the compliments of her many friends. The dress was a lovely robe de style designed with a train and short puffed sleeves. The debutante's flowers were white orchids with purple throats.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich received with their daughter at the entrance to the Red Lacquer room. Mrs. Rich, who also has been in the hospital, was gowned in ashes of roses lamé. Her flowers were deep purple orchids.

The ballroom carried out the holiday spirit in its elaborate decoration. Frosted Christmas trees lined the room while artificial moonlight poured through the branches. On each table was a modernistic Christmas tree in silver. A roving accordion player helped furnish entertainment for the 250 guests.

Yesterday's other debutante was Miss Jane Gregg Cummings, who was introduced at a tea dance in the Woman's Athletic club by her mother, Mrs. John J. Cummings. The party was a gay one and a pretty one, too, for the ballroom and reception rooms were decorated in white and silver with here and there the cheery red of poinsettia plants.

The debutante looked lovely in a gown of emerald velvet. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. In the receiving line were her mother, who wore a black crêpe gown with a silver lamé waist and orchids; her mother's sister, Mrs. J. Gregg Yeaman, who wore amethyst satin and orchids, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings. Mrs. Walter Cummings wore a long silver lamé tunic over a black skirt and her flowers were orchids, too.

Assisting the debutante were her roommate from the Finch school, Miss Emily Hoge of Louisville, Ky., here for the occasion, and the Misses Bonnie-Jean Clark, Barbara Fortune, Louise Parsons, Margery Garvy, Patricia Kelly, and Betty von Colditz.

Ballet Reaches Glorious Peak in "Fire Bird"

Takes Its Audience Into Another World.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It was granted by the beneficent fates that last night an old memory of mine should be transmuted into reality, with the further boon of learning that sometimes the recollections of years past are not deceptive, not more brilliant than actuality. The Monte Carlo Ballet Russe put on Stravinsky's "Fire Bird" at the Auditorium for the first time since it was presented by the Diaghileff company something like sixteen years ago.

To be sure, Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra have at one time and another during the interval played the suite drawn from the ballet. But with complete deference to a magnificent symphonic organization, the suite compared to the actual ballet is only a two-dimensional, one-colored drawing. The real ballet is the experience of a lifetime, and I rejoice that the experience was repeated during mine.

Here is ballet doing what ballet ought to do, what opera ought to do, but frequently does not, taking you out of all reality into a world that has no more logic than the New Deal but has all the charm that the New Deal promises, a world where a supernatural bird is really a woman, where an enchanter has a complexion of verdigris and electric flares for eyes, where a prince encounters unbelievable adventures to win his princess, where every action is accompanied by beautiful humans who perform marvels of pictorial line and mass, where every incident is underlined and accented by music that is pure magic. It is a piece to make you walk on clouds for hours afterward. The only thing I missed from the former performance was the dance of the enchanted creatures, waving long finger nails and unbelievable feet in the moonlight as the music built up its spell. But apart from that all was delirious riot and radiant frenzy.

Coming down to details, Alexandra Danilova was the Fire Bird, Leonide Massine the prince, Tamara Grigorieva the princess, and David Lichine the enchanter. This is perhaps the high spot of all Stravinsky's compositions. The piece was preceded by "Les Sylphides," to music by Chopin, and followed by "Union Pacific." Both of these must be considered later.

When the ballet was going on Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra were doing their regular Thursday evening concert at Orchestra hall. This, too, was something noteworthy. Mr. Stock had planned the program so that one-half would be Bohemian and one-half Russian. In the first part there was Smetana's "Vyschrad" and Dvorak's Second Symphony, a work that has fallen into comparative disuse for only the one reason that the composer's "New World" has so far overshadowed it in popularity. It is tuneful and it is artfully built, and it deserves a better fate.

The soloist of the evening was Mischa Mischakoff, the greatly able and skilfully equipped concert master of the orchestra. For this appearance he played Glazounoff's Concerto in A minor, a tuneful and effective work that runs its three movements into one continuous composition without interval. It was warmly greeted and deserved the reception that it got. At the end Mr. Stock added more Glazounoff, the introduction, waltz, and finale from "Ruses d'Amour," and this was also worth hearing.

Front Views and Profiles

A YOUNG man who owns a black fur coat boarded a street car Christmas eve and sat down across the aile from a fellow who was comfortably filled with Christmas cheer. He gazed at the fur coat meditatively for some minutes, then he spoke:

Reminder—
Wish—Puppies—
Goalie—
Suggestion.

"I had a cow like that once," he said. "I called her Brindle."

He continued to gaze at the coat, with a far-away look in his eyes, then once more his voice boomed through the car:

"It sure was a sad day when Brindle died," he added.

SOME high school students took groceries, a Christmas tree, ornaments, and toys to a poor family whose name had been given them by Northwestern university settlement workers, and Shirley Long reports the questionable wish expressed by the grateful head of the family when he thanked them:

"I hope I can do the same for you some day," he said.

A HUNTER near Joliet passed through some woods belonging to Miss Blanche and Louise Harvey and, some miles from a dwelling, stopped to stare at what he saw inside a hollow stump of a tree. There lay eight or nine tiny black and white puppies. There was no sign of the mother, and, going on the assumption that she had gone off to find food, he left them undisturbed in their shelter.

A LOVELY lady in her boudoir doesn't always present a picture in which pale crêpes and satins, chiffon and feathers are the outstanding features. The other evening a husband went into his wife's bedroom after she was ready for bed, and stopped to stare at her. She had on sleeping gloves wrinkled over her wrists, to beautify her hands, and, since any stray beams of light keep her awake, she wears a little black velvet mask over her eyes at night. This was pushed up above her eyes at the moment. A pair of woolen bed socks hung at the foot of the bed.

"Well," he said staring at her, "you look like a goalie. Wait until I go get my hocky stick and we'll have a game."

THERE must be a great many distinctions difficult for children to make. An example is the following true story, offered in proof of the point, and not in sacrilege. A Calumet, Ill., kindergarten teacher told her class the story of Mary and the infant Christ, and when she had finished she asked:

"And now would you like to sing a Christmas song?"

A 5 year old piped up an immediate answer.

"Yes, please. Let's sing 'O What a Pal Was Mary,'" she said, her eyes shining at what she thought was the aptness of her suggestion.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Skins are having a pretty tough time of it this winter what with the snow and the wind and the mercury's fondness for the zero mark. They need lots of delicate little attentions to keep them soft and supple.

Being fussy about the kind of soap you use in this weather is good beauty business. Use the very blandest you can find. Sometimes switching from one soap to a milder one clears up the dry-and-itchy situation in miraculous fashion.

Not long ago some individualized soaps came out. There are three, one for dry skins, one for oily skins and one for the fortunate women with normal skin. The one for dry skins is beautifully bland and might well be your winter soap choice.

The pink bars last an astonishingly long time, which surprised us because the soap is extremely creamy. Usually the bars of very soft soaps are short lived.

Naturally, this soap is super fatted and therefore kind to thin and sensitive skins. Too strong a bath soap is a poor thing to use at any season of the year but it's a serious error in winter, when even the elements seem to be plotting against the supply of natural oil.

The soap manufactured especially for dry skins won't contribute to your difficulties. Because it is so bland it will do a lot to alleviate them. The scent is a charming one, clean and light, that won't conflict with any perfumes or powders you use. And you'll like the way it lathers; the suds appear in perfect billows.

If you've been having after the bath itch lately give some thought to this matter of soaps. If you've any reason to think the one you've been using is a little too harsh for this season of the year, change to something milder, preferably one like this.

Good Morning!

An impressive picture, a magnificently acted one, is "Power," adapted from Lion Feuchtwanger's novel, "Jew Suss."

It is a grim cinema with only one light moment. (And that's not so light.) Says Suss' friend to him: "To yourself you are a gentleman. To your wife you were a gentleman. I might even let you be a gentleman to me—but to a gentleman you are no gentleman." At which the audience laughs, their first and last laugh.

The dominating figure is Josef Suss Oppenheimer, who from little boyhood days in the Ghetto has yearned for power. Power! Power to aid his persecuted people and break down the hereditary wall that separates them from other races.

Power he gains eventually by guiding the brain and managing the exchequer of the duke of Württemberg. For this power he pays—in the blood of his self-respect. In the death of his adored daughter and as a last instalment with his own body hung "higher than the gallows"—something which, he had remarked mockingly, couldn't be done.

Execution scenes at the last are affective—but too painfully long drawn out.

Conrad Veidt's record as an actor is a memorable one. After spectacular success in "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" he appeared variously and brilliantly in "Congress Dances," "The Last Company," "I Was a Spy." As Suss he achieved another triumph. Both he and Lothar Mendes who directed this piece—sat at the feet of the great Max Reinhardt, who, I suspect, is mighty proud of the two of them. All rôles are interpreted with sympathy and finesse.

Most of the action occurs along in 1730, when Württemberg was an independent state governed by a duke. Backgrounds are imposing, direction splendid, and costumes something to make the eyes pop. A p. a. has sent me a couple of descriptions of the latter—one worn by the duchess and one by Oppenheimer—which should intrigue the Rheaseegerites. Here they are:

". . . a gown of cream satin so stiff and fine that the skirt will stand without support. It has a close fitted pointed bodice and full skirt over the fashionable paniers. From the shoulder hangs a 'sacque' of brocade—cream satin with flowers and leaves in reds, blues, greens, pinks, and purples.

"One of Mr. Veidt's suits is of moire, heavily embroidered in front, cuffs and back with elaborate scroll work in silver and diamonds. . . ."

See you tomorrow!

DR. SYDNEY KUH.

Dr. Kuh, who was born in New York, received the greater part of his education in Germany, studying at the gymnasium at Bayreuth, Bavaria, and at the University of Heidelberg. He also studied at the University of Vienna and in Paris and London.

Since 1890 he had maintained offices with his brother, Dr. Edwin James Kuh, at 30 North Michigan avenue. He served as professor of neurology and psychiatry at the Chicago Polyclinic, was senior attending neurologist at the Michael Reese hospital, attending alienist at the Sceleth hospital, and consulting neurologist at the Lying-In hospital.

He was also clinical professor of nervous diseases at the Rush Medical college, a position which he held at the time of his death. He contributed extensively to various medical journals.

Dr. Kuh was not married. The only surviving member of the immediate family is Dr. Edwin James Kuh. Funeral plans had not been made last night, but Dr. Edwin Kuh said that services probably would be held tomorrow and that burial would be in Rosehill cemetery.

SISTER OF JUDGE HARRINGTON DIES; NINE YEARS A NUN

Sister Mary Tarcisia, whose brother is Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court, died in the Mercy hospital yesterday during an operation for thyroid trouble. She was 31 years old and had joined the order of the Sisters of Mercy nine years ago.

Although Sister Mary had been ill for a month, her condition did not become critical until yesterday. Judge Harrington was presiding at the murder trial of Miss Bernadine Dunning when he received the news, but adjourned court and arrived at the hospital before his sister died.

Besides Judge Harrington other survivors are her parents, Daniel and Mary Harrington; two sisters, Catherine and Mary, and two other brothers, James and John. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from 4928 Cottage Grove avenue. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Borrowing an idea, possibly from Jan Garber's "Supper Club" program on NBC, the "Hall of Fame" sponsors will present "Club Romance," a musical night club serial, over CBS, starting at 7 p. m. Sunday night, Jan. 6. This show will run a half hour and will be followed by Eddie Cantor's new show starting early in February, with the same sponsor footing the bills.

Conrad Thibault, baritone, and Lois Bennett, soprano, will play the leads in "Club Romance." Adele Ronson, well known radio actress; Ned Wever, Lee Patrick, red haired Broadway star, are to support them. A 16 voice choral ensemble and Don Voorhees' orchestra will round out the cast.

Lum and Abner are to expand their sphere of activity substantially with the coming of the new year. Beginning Monday, Jan. 7, they will be heard from New England to the west coast as well as over the Mutual Broadcasting system. The new outlets will be WNAC, Boston; KNX, Los Angeles; KGO, San Francisco; KOIN, Portland, Ore. They are heard nightly at 6:15 o'clock over W-G-N and MBS.

Jules Alberti's orchestra will open at the new Opera club tonight with a WBBM-CBS wire. . . . Alexander McQueen, who broadcasts "Nothing but the Truth," at WBBM, is launching a campaign for pockets for women—his theory is that not until they have pockets on all their dresses will they be thoroughly emancipated. . . . Lucrezia Bori, Metropolitan opera soprano, is to make one of her infrequent radio appearances Sunday evening over WLS-NBC on that Symphonic concert hour.

Frances Langford, long star of the NBC House Party show, is on her way to Hollywood to appear in Paramount's "Vogue of 1935." She precedes by a few weeks Grace Moore, who is about to launch her new radio show from Hollywood as well as to start another picture, and Gladys Swarthout, who is to make her first appearance in pictures shortly. Radio beauties already in Hollywood making pictures include Dorothy Lamour and Dolores Gillen.

Phillips Lord, née Seth Parker, abhorred chess and checker boards until recently. His four masted schooner has been becalmed for seven weeks in the southern Pacific. Now Capt. Lord's men laugh no more when he sits down to the chess board.

Sigmund Romberg is said to be a little peeved because the notion has got around that he uses a vocal double for his conversations with William Lyon Phelps on those Saturday night broadcasts. He actually did on the opening night because of nervousness but has been doing his own talking since.

SANBORN BURIED; OLD COMRADES HONOR 'COL. JOE'

Body Is Carried to Grave on Caisson.

Gen. Joseph Brown Sanborn, wartime commander of the 131st infantry, was buried yesterday, escorted to his grave in Oakwoods cemetery by hundreds of his old comrades.

The body of Gen. Sanborn, who died last Saturday, lay in state until 2 p. m. at the 131st infantry armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue. There the former and present members of the regiment assembled.

Many Flags and Flowers.

The American flag and the flags of Chipilly post of the American Legion, the old "Dandy First" regiment, and the Santiago society banked the coffin, and floral tributes were all around when Capt. Thomas E. Egerton, wartime chaplain of the regiment, began the farewell words and prayers.

He spoke of "Col. Joe," the name affectionately applied to the leader of the regiment, and said Sanborn preferred that title to the one acquired with his promotion to be a lieutenant general of militia.

French, Germans Lay Wreaths.

M. Rene Weiller, French consul, and four uniformed French soldiers presented a wreath. A group of German veterans did likewise. The 33d Division War Veterans' association then took charge and the body was taken to the cemetery by automobile and to the grave on a caisson. A last rifle salute was fired.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, is escaping out of Russia, where he is known as Stefan Ivanovitch. He rescues homeless Elizabeth Radin from freezing to death and takes her with him. He had seen her before and admired her. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She ran off to escape the advances of Commissar Petroff.

Stephen tells her his history, while they are traveling in a cart, driven by an old man named Yuri. As a boy Stephen lived on the large Russian estate of his stepfather and grew up with a large peasant family, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian, Robert Carey, in England. After the revolution in Russia he became a "secret observer" for England. He went to the town where old Yuri, Mrs. Darensky's father, lived, and made him believe he was one of his many grandchildren. He became a veterinarian and adopted various peasant roles to help hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work.

They reach the home of Yuri and his wife, Akulina. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. She is very ill for several days and Stephen takes care of her. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a friend of Stephen's in the village. Irina is a communist missionary. Elizabeth tells Stephen that Petroff had tried to learn from her a secret formula of her husband's.

INSTALMENT XI.

HER BURDEN LIFTED.

"Please go on. We haven't much time," Stephen said.

Elizabeth's voice became a mere whisper.

"Next day Petroff came," she said, and paused on that. It was a long pause, but at last she went on. "He said Nicolas had been shot as a counter-revolutionary—and all his papers belonged to the state. He took everything. Next day he came back. He asked me about the aluminum process. He went on asking me until I fainted. They scraped the walls and pulled up the floors, but they didn't find any more papers. I told them Nicolas never wrote anything down. If it hadn't been for the process, I think they would have just turned me out to starve like they do if they don't think you are any use to them, but they wanted the process very badly. They didn't think I knew anything, but they weren't quite sure. . . . Petroff took me to Tomsk, where his mother was. He told me I was lucky to be housed and fed in return for looking after her." She gave the faintest, saddest ghost of a laugh. "She didn't feed me very much."

His hands tightened over hers.

"Is their any more? You'd better tell me everything."

She shook from head to foot.

"I—can't. She made me feel—degraded. It was like living in a sewer."

Stephen said one word very low.

"Petroff?"

She never knew what a relief her answer brought him.

"No—not like that—no." She breathed quickly and went on. "He didn't come much—only now and then. I think they stopped bothering about the process. I was just a useful slave. Then about a month ago Petroff was there for a week. He took more notice of me. I got frightened. One night I woke up saying the formula aloud. I had to sleep with the old woman. Petroff was in the next room. He didn't hear me, but after that I was afraid to go to sleep till he had gone. A week ago he came back. In the evening the old woman said, 'I wish you'd bring a gag for this foreigner of yours! She keeps me awake all night talking in her sleep.' It wasn't true, of course, but she must have heard something. Petroff made a disgusting joke, but afterwards they sent me out of the room and talked. When I came back, he began about the formula again. He said, 'My mother says you say the same thing over and over again, and she doesn't think you're saying your prayers.' Then he battered at me with questions. I don't know why I didn't tell him the formula, and have done with it, but I'd promised Nicolas, and then—they hate every one so, and they talk all the time about world revolution. That night the old woman was taken ill. There wasn't time for anything except nursing her. Petroff was unhappy. He cried and behaved like a child. When she was dead, he said how lonely he was, and that I must take care of him, because his life was very valuable to the cause. He said if I told him the formula he would marry me, but in any case I must be kind to him and comfort him, because he was all alone. He got very drunk, and I ran out of the house. . . . Then you found me."

Then he batted at me with questions. I don't know why I didn't tell him the formula.

There was just a moment when the silence seemed to Stephen to be ringing with the words he must not say. Yes, he had found her, and he would keep her. The words rang in his head, and rang in the silence. Elizabeth was aware of them, as some one who is quite deaf may be aware that the air is vibrating with the clamor of unheard bells. She was disturbed without knowing why. But it had been a relief to speak—the greatest relief that she had known for more than a year.

The snow did not come. A bitter wind blew, and the sky was heavy and dull.

Elizabeth's strength came back to her. She was astonished at the number of hours she could sleep. She went out next morning into the yard which lay behind the house. There was a rough barn with a diminished store of fodder for the one cow, which was the last pride of Akulina's heart. Once she had had three; now it was as much as they could do to keep even one alive through the winter. She grumbled on about the old times and the new without waiting for any reply. She did not trouble herself to be at all discreet. If she couldn't say what she liked at her time of life and in her own back yard, things had come to a pretty pass. What was the use of sweating and straining to grow crops for them to take away and hand over to townsfolk who had never done an honest day's work on the land in their lives? "And if you hide a bit of corn to keep you alive through the winter they go on as if you'd done murder." And now, when she could have done very well with a good strong girl about the house, Stefan must needs go and bring home a useless dreep of a creature with about as much color and strength as a tallow dip which has been left out in the August sun.

Elizabeth endeavored to placate her.

"I'm getting stronger."

"With those hands? What work have they ever done, I should like to know!"

"I can sew," said Elizabeth.

"And embroider?"

O, yes."

"And what's the good of that, now there's no cloth to be had? Even if one had money to buy, the government shop is only open one day in the month—and the good-for-nothing rubbish they sell!" She made a gesture of contempt. "We used to weave our own cloth, but they won't have it. Fine new times—that's what I say!"

While she grumbled, Elizabeth was thinking. Her bad Russian would be less noticeable in a village where a mixture of Russian and Ukrainian would probably be quite usual. She must say as little as possible, of course. Perhaps she wouldn't have to go out much.

She found next day that she would have to make a public appearance. There was to be a special broadcast at the Soviet house, when a speech by Voroshiloff would be received. To stay away would be to expose one's self to a charge of being lacking in revolutionary ardor. Red Stefan's wife must be above suspicion in that respect. She could at any rate hope to be lost in a crowd, since the whole village would be there.

They walked up the road to the pink washed building which Elizabeth had seen standing out amongst the village houses on the day of their arrival. It contained a fair sized hall furnished with benches. At the far end was a platform upon which there were a couple of chairs, a table, and a wireless installation. From the wall a picture of Lenin looked down, symbolically draped in red, with the blood colored star of the revolution above and the hammer and sickle below. Under this portrait was a second small table, on which reposed Lenin's works—the scriptures of the new state.

The room seemed quite full. As they entered, the village schoolmaster was concluding a speech which was evidently intended as a stop gap, for at intervals he turned from the audience to fidget nervously with the wireless controls.

With a sudden blare from the loud speaker Voroshiloff was addressing them from Moscow. Whatever his natural voice might have been, under the technical defects of the instrument and the schoolmaster's inexpert fumbling it had become a super voice—enormous, tinny, raucous. It bawled out a sentence about world revolution and ceased abruptly. A horrible crackling took its place.

The schoolmaster fiddled with the controls, and was evidently about to resume his seat, when a woman pushed through the crowd and, springing on to the platform, turned to face the room. After one glance Elizabeth did not need Akulina's disgusted "Of course she must come shoving in" to tell her that this was Irina.

CITY RETAILERS RAISE PRICES ON SEVERAL FOODS

Cold Handicaps Trade in Perishables.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Retailers were busy yesterday throughout the city and nearby suburbs marking up the price tags on a dozen or more foods. Various reasons are given for the price advances. Cold weather and feed shortages are interfering with the production of milk in the northern states, and zero temperatures are hindering the unloading of perishable fruits and vegetables. Cold weather has handicapped the production of some crops in southern winter gardens.

Today and tomorrow shoppers will find in most stores higher prices asked for butter, bulk eggs, the less expensive grades of flour, lard, large sized oranges, cooking apples, bananas, green onions, green beans, celery, carrots and grapes. Most retail stores throughout the Chicago area are asking more for pork and high quality cuts of lamb. In some shops beef steak is higher.

Farmers Get Rid of Chickens.

Reduction in the production of milk and the consequent falling off in the production in centralized creameries are given as the main reasons for the increase in butter prices. Another factor is the decrease of butter in storage.

Feed shortage has encouraged farmers to sell their flocks of chickens, adding to the seasonal reduction in the production of eggs and resulting in higher prices for bulk fresh eggs. The shortage of feed on the farm is also forcing farmers to sell their hogs before they are properly fattened for the market. Small hogs means less lard, which is contributing to higher lard prices.

The Christmas holiday season nearly removed the surplus of large oranges which had been selling at a small premium over the smaller sizes. The price difference now is more nearly normal.

Apple Supply Is Reduced.

As to eating apples, the regular seasonal reduction in supplies and the limited supply of good quality fruit originally placed in storage are factors contributing to higher prices.

In some cases the zero weather the middle of this week kept wholesalers from breaking the seal on fruit cars. They kept the fruit in heated cars and did not unload it for distribution in the city in unheated trucks. This practice has been followed particularly by handlers of perishable fruits and vegetables and has resulted in a temporary increase in the price of a few products.

Green Bean Prices Tripled.

Cold weather losses of the Florida growers continue to be reflected in slightly higher prices of some products grown in winter gardens. These crops include green beans, which are offered at prices three times what they were before the recent Florida freeze. Florida strawberries are priced in a few stores that handle them at about a dollar a pint box, or equal to the price during the peak period fifteen years ago. The cold weather also reduced the supply of green peppers, spinach, eggplant, and fresh cucumbers, which normally come from southern winter gardens.

"New potatoes" are now coming from Texas. They are the kind that have the thin, rosy skin. Texas growers planted them late in the season, dug them a few weeks ago, stored them for a short time, and are now shipping to northern markets about three months ahead of the early spring crop of new potatoes that come from Florida.

New Cabbage Also Offered.

Texas growers are also beginning to send new cabbage to Chicago. This is offered in some stores at prices three or four times that of northern grown cabbage now coming out of storage.

Many stores and butcher shops are holding special sales on such New Year's holiday foods as sausage meats, cheese, crackers, oysters, poultry, nuts, cookies, lemons, and beverages, including cider, grape juice, and ginger ale.

DINNER FOR 12 IS SUPPLIED BY 20 POUND PIG

A twenty pound pig will supply a dinner for twelve persons. Pigs that weigh more than twenty pounds are usually too large and unwieldy to roast.

Usually the two hind legs are left attached by the skin but not by the bone, as this helps to put the pig in position to roast. The pig is placed in a roasting pan, sitting down on its haunches and standing on its front legs. A chip is placed in its mouth to keep it open during roasting, and the ears and parts of the back are covered with a damp cloth which prevents overcooking and charred ears. The length of time for roasting a pig depends on its condition and size.

Pigs may be stuffed with ordinary turkey dressing to attain some flavoring throughout the whole carcass. It is also advisable to do some basting during the cooking to make sure the whole pig is well and evenly cooked. Then the chip is taken out of its mouth and replaced with an apple or carrot before the pig is placed in a large platter in exactly the same position as in the roasting pan.

VEAL BEST BUY OF WEEK, SAYS MEAT COUNCIL

The committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"The various cuts of veal represent the most economical meat buys for Chicago housewives in retail meat stores over the coming week-end. Chuck pot roast can also be had at bargain prices."

COOKS O AND AH OVER SPICED ANGEL FOOD CAKE

Caramel Pecan Icing Proper Crown.

"Refrigerator Cakes and Cookies," a booklet containing recipes for sixteen refrigerator cakes and ten refrigerator cookies, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

No matter how surprising and uncertain life and cooking may seem, one thing is undebatable—you can always get a rise out of folks with a home baked angel food cake. Of course it's presupposed that the cake will be feathery, snowy white, and exquisitely tender. If you doubt its popularity escort one to your next bake sale or pot luck supper. Any meal makers who don't gather with O's and ahs for the proud beauty are simply in the wrong business.

Just for instance, surprise them one time with this one:

SPICED ANGEL FOOD CAKE.

1¼ cups sugar
1 cup sifted cake flour
1 cup unbeaten egg whites [8 to 10 whites]
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Sift the sugar once. Sift the flour once before measuring. Add the spices and ½ cup of sugar to the flour, sifting this mixture three times. Beat the egg whites [which should be at room temperature] until just foamy. Add the salt and cream of tartar and continue beating until the whites are stiff enough to hang in an inverted bowl without flowing, but not until dry and lusterless. Gradually add the remaining ¾ cup of sugar, beating constantly with the beater. Discarding the beater, carefully fold in the flour, sugar, and spice mixture, adding it a little at a time. After all is in, continue folding for one minute. Pour the batter into an ungreased pan, tilting the pan so that the batter will be evenly distributed. Bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] 55 to 60 minutes.

A hearty dessert is achieved with slices of the spiced angel food or with plain angel food topped with caramel pecan whip.

CARAMEL PECAN DRESSING.

1 cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Pinch of salt
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup whole pecan meats

Cream the butter until fluffy, then add the sugar a little at a time. Stir into this the egg yolk, vanilla, and salt. Whip the cream and gradually fold into it the sugar mixture. Top each slice of cake with a heaping tablespoon of the dressing and sprinkle with pecan meats. This goes around the table once for a party of six.

Another angel food boasts cherry insides and a coconut topping.

CHERRY-COCONUT ANGEL FOOD.

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 cup unbeaten egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cups granulated sugar, sifted
¾ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup shredded coconut
½ cup finely chopped maraschino cherries

Sift the flour once, measure, and sift it four more times. Beat the egg whites and salt with a wire whisk until foamy. Add cream of tartar and continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry and lusterless. Fold in the sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time. Fold in flavoring. Sift a small amount of flour over the mixture and fold in carefully, repeating until all is used. Pour one-third of the cake batter into an ungreased angel food pan. Sprinkle ¼ cup of the finely chopped cherries over it, add another one-third of the batter, the remaining cherries, and top with the remainder of the batter. Run a knife through the batter several times to the bottom of the pan to distribute the cherries throughout the cake. Sprinkle coconut over the top and bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] 55 to 60 minutes.

Studio Warns Girls in Contest Not to Come to Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—In previewing the good looks of 100 American girls who represent the choice of 3,000 candidates, Universal studio, which will give the chosen 100 contracts to work as dancers and showgirls in "The Great Ziegfeld," is attempting strenuously to keep all those girls not residing in Hollywood but who were interviewed in connection with the contest from coming here to try their luck in films regardless.

The studio's aim was to single out a galaxy of youthful beauty after the fashion of the late Ziggy himself, who will be made the central character of the film. But in the course of trying to weed out the 3,000 girls the studio found that all of the 3,000 who do not already live in California wanted to accept the fact they were considered as an urgent indication that Hollywood had need of them.

The most the studio can use is 100 girls and 50 or more of this number will be chosen in Hollywood. They will be passed upon by Seymour Felix, dance director, and William Anthony McGuire, writer, who with Billie Burke [Mrs. Ziegfeld] is preparing the screen vehicle. The 50 girls from other cities will be screen tested and interviewed in their own home cities or nearby key cities where the studio has offices.

One of the girls will be made a central character in the film as the typical "Ziegfeld girl."

University Colony Club Plans Party.

Frederick M. Schmidt, the George Rasmussens, and the Charles S. Davises.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight C. Cowles are giving a sleigh ride party tonight beginning with supper at the Winter club in Lake Forest.

Peyton-Milliken Nuptials to Be Today.

In the presence of relatives and friends numbering only sixteen Miss Katherine Peyton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Peyton, will become the bride of Victor M. Milliken, son of Mrs. Orris Milliken, at 11 o'clock this morning. The ceremony will be read by the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, rector emeritus of the Church of the Redeemer, at the Peyton home on the south side. A wedding breakfast will follow.

Although Miss Peyton and Mr. Milliken have been engaged for some time, they intended to keep the news quiet and be married without any previous announcement. Their engagement and plans for their marriage became known a week or so ago. Their romance developed at the University of Chicago where they were graduated. After a short wedding trip they are going to make their home at 20 East Delaware place.

There's a Christmas field day in store for all north shore boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 14 this afternoon at the parish house of Christ church in Winnetka. The church guild, with Mrs. George Nelson as its president, has captured some of the Yuletide spirit and thrills and is dispensing it at a holiday frolic between 2 and 5 o'clock.

Each one of the rooms in the parish house will provide something in the way of entertainment. In one there will be movies, in another a comedy juggler, in still another an orchestra, and in a fourth a fortune teller. Santa Claus has also promised to drop in before his departure for the north pole.

Mrs. Hobart P. Young is chairman of the frolic, assisted by Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Joseph E. Magnus, Mrs. Victor Gilman, and Mrs. Holden Farrar.

Three College Functions Today.

Three college functions add interest to today's calendar. At the tea hour this afternoon Miss Honor Merrell will be at home at a Christmas tea to the alumnæ of Wells college. The party will be at the home of Miss Merrell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Merrell at 209 Lake Shore drive. Assisting Miss Merrell will be Mrs. Frederick L. Starbuck, president of the Chicago Wells club; Miss Adelaide Ball, president of the Evanston Wells club, and Miss Jane McMurray, who is chairman of the tea.

The Chicago club of the Sweet Briar College Alumnæ association will have a luncheon at 12:30 today at the Chicago College club. The Union League club will be the scene of many happy reunions at noon today when 200 alumni and undergraduates of Lake Forest academy get together for their annual holiday luncheon.

At the speakers' table will be Headmaster John Wayne Richards, George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Ernest Palmer, and Prof. E. J. Rendtorff, who is celebrating his 35th year as a member of the school's faculty. The luncheon has been planned by a committee including Cornelius M. Trowbridge, Malcolm D. Vail, Logan T. McMenemy, Donald Bateman, and John H. Oliver.

Mrs. Graham to Aid President's Ball.

Howard F. Gillette, chairman of the central committee for President Roosevelt's birthday celebration in Chicago, has appointed Mrs. Ernest R. Graham chairman of the women's committee, and she in turn is busy securing women from the boards of various hospitals to serve on her committee. Seventy per cent of the proceeds will go to local agencies that care for small victims of infantile paralysis and the other 30 per cent will be turned over to the President to be used in research efforts aimed at wiping out the disease itself.

Headquarters have been opened in the Sherman hotel for the celebration, which will take place on Jan. 30, the President's birthday.

BABY'S LAYETTE.

Here are patterns for a layette that will be a joy to make. Besides being easy to fashion, these small garments will launder easily. Make as much of the work by hand as you can, and use felled seams instead of French ones. The first stitching can be done by machine, but the felling down should be done by hand. The pattern includes a dress, slip that buttons on the shoulders, wrapper, with perforations for a sacque, cap, and sleeping bag.

The pattern, No. 3041, comes in one size only.

And Others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

With a new production, "King Lear," to offer to their devotees, the Old Globe players of famous exploits at A Century of Progress have transferred their repertory of Elizabethan drama to the Studebaker theater There, on a stage which duplicates the historic platform of their former home, they will continue their rapid and stimulating interpretations of the classics.

Their version of "King Lear" is more than tabloid Shakespeare. Like their "Macbeth," it is almost a full length treatment of the great tragedy. Wednesday night's performance ran for an hour and forty-eight minutes and contained more of the text than the productions of Robert Mantell and Fritz Leiber—the only other "Lears" in the memory of this generation of Chicago playgoers.

Carl Benton Reid gives a sound, well balanced and eloquent interpretation of the mythical British monarch who rashly decided to divide his kingdom among his daughters, and went mad because of their ingratitude. This is a weighty rôle, massive in its tragic scope and power; and many an old school tragedian has approached it with awe and trembling.

Mr. Reid is probably the youngest actor to undertake it, but he is old in Shakespearean experience, thanks to the more than 1,000 performances of the Old Globe company. He is an able and touching Lear, in the passages of angry outbursts, of raving madness, and of senile pathos.

"King Lear" brings out the Old Globe company in practically its full strength. The three accomplished leading women—Misses Perkins, Tedrow, and Scott—appear as the three daughters, Regan, Goneril, and Cordelia. John A. Willard, teammate of Mr. Reid in the heroes of the repertory, is decidedly effective as Edgar in both phases of the character—hunted nobleman and pretended lunatic. Lauren Gilbert, who seems to be a recent addition to the troupe, is a graceful and virile Edmund. Rhys Williams is a doughty Kent and Donald Gallagher a persuasive Gloucester.

The costuming is fresh and gallant, and in general the Old Globe is making a brave second start after its brief dalliance among the films at McVicker's. The bills are a bargain at the box office scale; seats are reserved, and one may see two Old Globe items at every performance, afternoon and night. The girl ushers are wearing Elizabethan doublet and hose in honor of the occasion, which might almost be called an added attraction.

"King Lear" and "As You Like It" are the evening bills. Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" and "A Comedy of Errors" are given in the afternoons.

"Ah, Wilderness," and George M. Cohan will not leave Chicago at the conclusion of their American Theater society engagement in the Erlanger on Jan. 5. They will promptly move into the Grand Opera house next door, and settle down for a long run. A decision to this effect has been reached by the Theater Guild management.

"Bertha the Beautiful Sewing Machine Girl" replaced "The Little Outcast" on the stage of the showboat Dixiana last night.

You Can Avoid Rough Skin by Pep Up Baths

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The gooseflesh season is on, arms look like nutmeg graters. Often excessive itching develops. Thighs, like arms, suffer coarsened skin surface.

This is no serious disease, at all. What's wrong is nothing more nor less than poor circulation. If you're stepping out these nights on dancing dates you don't want your arms to look like that—or feel rough, either.

Get your stout bath brush working. You must scrub until your arm looks red. Use soap, too.

I don't see how you're going to get along without a shower for the next part of the skin smoothing. You must let warm water run the soapy water off and then turn on cold.

After the cold water comes a towel rubbing, and be content with no less than a rich sun glow.

A few such treatments will clear your arms. But that's only one local way of getting the circulation going. It won't help the rest of the body so much. If you take the cold shower all over, yes.

You'll have to forego the fireside chair and run around the block a few times a day. Or, get out and skate in the open. The reason the blood congeals is because you have developed that radiator-hugging inertia. Now, if you'd get out and take deep breaths of ozone your complexion would brighten, the skin on your whole body would be improved, and there'd be no nutmeg grater arms.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE THREE-BID.

We now come to the other forcing opening bid in the Sims system—a bid which I believe to be the most deadly and precise slam weapon that has been developed up to the present time.

Points of Similarity Between the Two-Bid and the Three-Bid.

A three-bid does not necessarily show a hand either weaker or stronger than a two-bid; it shows a different kind of hand requiring entirely different responses and different rebids subsequently. The forcing opening bids have only this much in common:

First, both are made solely by counting the losers in the hand; not more than three losers if you force in a major suit; not more than two losers if you force in a minor. The yardstick in this respect is exactly the same.

Second, both are forcing to game—neither partner may pass any contract for less than game. Both hold out strong hopes and suggestions for slam. Both have game in themselves and for game purposes do not depend on the responding hand for any high card or cards.

Wherein the Three-Bid Differs Completely from the Two-Bid.

The differences are far more striking than the points of resemblance.

First, a three-bid may never be made on a suit of less than six cards in length, and that suit must be very nearly solid.

Second, it is decided from the start that the opening bidder will be the ultimate declarer; and, with one rare exception, the hand will be played with the suit constituting the three-bid as trumps.

Third, since the opening bidder already knows in which suit the hand is to be played, and that he has game in his own hand in that suit, he is not seeking any information about his partner's distribution; the grouping of dummy's cards is almost a negligible factor. Obviously, therefore,

Fourth, the information he seeks from his partner is solely concerned with slam development, not with game. That is to say, he needs only to know about certain high cards which, by their presence or absence, determine the slam possibility and either do or do not constitute a duplication of values between the two hands.

Fifth, as the opening bidder does not require trump support and does not need the coöperation of his partner in selecting a trump suit, the probing process—which after a two-bid could only start after a trump suit had been agreed on—starts at the very moment that the three-bid is made. The first response is an answer to the "probe" question contained in the three-bid, and the bidding continues by probes.

The Rôle of the Responding Hand.

The rôle of the responding hand is absolutely mechanical. He is there only to answer the questions which the opening bidder proceeds to put to him in the language of cards. He must not volunteer information which has not been specifically requested except in rare cases when he can do so without in any possible manner causing the bidding to go around higher than the opening bidder had already arranged for. Forget this exception for the moment—I will explain it after you have become familiar with the routine responding procedure. Typical minimum three-bids:

[Three Hearts.]
Cl.—K Q J	Ht.—K Q J 10 4 3 2
Sp.—A Q	Di.—A K Q
Ht.—A K Q J 10 8	Cl.—x x
[Three Clubs.]
Sp.—K Q J	Di.—A 2
Ht.—	Cl.—A K Q J 7 4 3 2

Convert any winning card in the above hands into a loser, and the hand would no longer justify the opening three-bid.

Sparing the Rod Will Sometimes Improve Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We all, at one time or another, I suppose, indulge in such foolish efforts as attempting to answer questions like the following:

Which do you think is more harmful to a child—too great lenience or too great severity?

You can't really debate such extremes of treatments, first, because no extremes are good, and second, because every person has his own conception of what is meant by "too great lenience or too great severity."

That there are definite dangers in too great severity, however, is something I have observed and want to point out today. It is something that I think should be recognized, especially by those parents who belong to the "spare the rod and spoil the child" school of thought—the "rod" in this instance being either a material "rod" or a mental and spiritual one.

Severity and sternness in manner and in principle bear, on the whole, poor fruit. Dangers lurk in the offing, usually.

What is one of the first results any one who is "in the know" can observe? Deceit is among the first. Strict parents who won't allow this and won't allow that—who punish for this and who punish for that—are in danger of forcing their children to do under cover the things they forbid.

Deception and untruthfulness in varying degrees of seriousness are apt to result from harshness or strictness unless the child is one who is easily crushed, or one who has an exceptional degree of conscientiousness. In which case it is unnecessary to say that the easily crushed child should have her spirit and confidence built up rather than demolished—and the highly sensitive and conscientious child should not be cramped or taken advantage of.

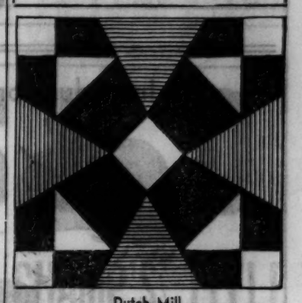
Red and White Chosen Scheme for Dutch Mill



Dutch Mill

BY NANCY CABOT.

Red and white always will be the favorite color scheme for some quilt blocks, and the "Dutch Mill" pattern seems to be one of these. The fifteen or eighteen quilts in this pattern which I have seen within the last few years have been made of red and white. The design was first made in Pennsylvania in 1845.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

U. S. FOOTBALL COACHES FAVOR PRESENT RULES

Bierman to Become President Today.

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Bernie Bierman, who coached the University of Minnesota football team to a national championship during the recent season, is expected to take office tomorrow as president of the American Football Coaches' association, which gathered here today to open its annual meeting.

BERNIE BIERMAN.

Bierman is understood to have little or no opposition as the successor of Dana X. Bible, the retiring president. The remainder of the ticket for the next year includes D. O. [Tuss] McLaughry of Brown, first vice president; Harry G. Kipke of Michigan, second vice president, and W. H. Cowell of New Hampshire, secretary-treasurer. Edward L. Casey, who recently resigned as head coach at Harvard, has already withdrawn as a candidate for the first vice presidency.

To Discuss Rule Changes.

As the result of the first day's activities today there was a promise of spirited discussion of rule changes for the game when the association meets again tomorrow and the first rumblings of action toward the question of subsidizing players in the sessions of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Perhaps the most interesting of the day's developments was the discovery that the majority of college coaches favor the rules of football as they stand today. An interesting minority report, however, which advocates some vital rule changes is attached to this majority report which will be offered the coaches in their assemblage tomorrow. This report has been prepared by Joe McKenny, coach at Boston college, who was chairman of a committee appointed to sound out rules opinion among the coaches of the country.

101 Answer Questionnaire.

Questionnaires were sent to 125 coaches throughout the country, and replies were received from 101. The tabulation of these replies by McKenny indicated that 58 favored the rules as they now stand, 23 were in favor with the rules as they stand, but recommended minor changes and clarifications, while only 20 were opposed to the present rules and wanted major changes. McKenny's committee went on record as agreeing with the majority, but passed along to the meeting for its consideration at today's session the following recommendations which they had received.

1. The return of the goal posts to the goal line.

2. To allow incoming substitutes to communicate at once with teammates.

3. A clarification, where the lateral pass is concerned, of present rule 7, section 7, article A, which defines the point where a ball is dead at that point where forward progress of the carrier is stopped, the clarification desired is a clearer idea of when a man may still make a legal lateral.

Would Change Pass Rule.

4. To permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage.

5. To make it clear that the umpire must notify the coach when his team's allotment of times out has been exhausted.

6. To allow the defensive team to advance with a recovered fumble.

7. To allow any forward pass into the end zone, if not completed, to be ruled as simply an incomplete forward pass. At present, one such pass is allowed. Obviously, a fourth down pass would require clarification, as the defending team might want to take

Silver Skates Derby History Marked by Close Finishes

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Men's Senior Silver Skates Derby, from which event in 1917 has come the greatest amateur ice skating races in the central states, established a record last year in the seventeenth Derby when, for the first time two contestants tied for first place. Al Kucera of the Brekke Skating club and Edwin Stundl of the Olympic club are co-holders of the senior title. Each received a pair of solid silver skates, the trophy for the two mile Derby. While it is unlikely another tie will result this year, if history repeats, the co-winners will receive the same award.

This year's Derbies will be held at the Waveland avenue skating arena in Lincoln park just north of Addison and east of Sheridan road. The preliminaries in at least three of the boys' events will be held on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 12. All other preliminaries and, of course, the seven championships will be decided on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 13.

Entries Close Jan. 6.

Entries close at midnight Jan. 6. No post entries will be permitted and letters received that are not postmarked prior to the midnight deadline will not be opened.

Teams from the parks and playgrounds are urged to enter early in order to facilitate the work of the clerks who are preparing the lists of contestants for the program, which will be distributed without charge on the afternoons of the Derbies.

Champions are not permitted to defend their Silver Skates titles. They may move up to the next age division, which in the case of all races except the Men's and Girls' Senior Derbies, permits them to compete again. The seniors, however, must be content with having placed their names on the most select list of skaters in the central states. By this rule Kucera and Stundl, last year's senior winners, and Priscilla Richey, champion of the Senior Girls, are ineligible.

The complete list of winners in the Men's Senior Derby since 1917, a list of some of the best skaters in the country who have won national and Olympic honors, follows:

1918—Sigurd Larsen.
1919—Charley Fisher.
1920—Roy McWhirter.
1921—William Steinmetz.
1922—Jack Stowell.
1923—Harry Kaskey.
1924—Francis Allen.
1925—Oneill Farrell.
1926—Eddie Reed.
1927—Ross Robinson.
1928—Charles Delphier.
1929—Eddie Murphy.
1930—William Minster.
1931—Eddie Schroeder.
1932—No race.
1933—Don Wittkamp.
1934—Al Kucera and Edwin Stundl.

No Derby was held in 1932 because of inclement weather. Garfield park lagoon never was frozen to sufficient depth to carry the weight of hundreds of skaters.

From the beginning of 1917 the list of Derbies has been expanded to provide fair competition for all ages. The last of the five boys' divisions, the midget class for those under 12 years of age, was established in 1931 and has proved one of the most popular. The girls were divided in 1922 after senior division competition had been held for the first time a year earlier.

All to Get Souvenirs.

In addition to the prize list of 35 awards, five in each of the seven races, each contestant will receive a souvenir button. These will be presented when the boys and girls report for their racing numbers at Waveland avenue.

While more than a week remains in which to enter, it is important to send in your name at once. Team entries may be made by the captain, coach, or manager if the contestants are grouped according to the age classifications.

An individual entry blank is printed daily in THE TRIBUNE. Mail your entry to Wilfrid Smith, sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

STANFORD HAS FIRST DRILL ON PASADENA FIELD

Injured Players in Shape to Face Alabama.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Shedding crutches, splints, wheelchairs, and adhesive tape, Stanford's football team, which is to meet Alabama in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day, arrived here today for its final practice licks and put on a hard two hour workout.

Bobby Grayson, full back, and Monk Moscrip and Keith Topping, ends, were in suits and galloping around with few signs of injury, although Grayson looks to be considerably underweight.

Only One Absent.

All the Stanford players were in suits except Claude Callaway, regular right tackle, who stopped off at his home in Fresno because of illness of his mother.

Stanford's workout, held in the Brookside ball park with 3,000 citizens on the sidelines, consisted of about everything Coach Thornhill could think of to get the boys' minds off their recent examinations in fractions and geography and down the business in hand.

Here's the Lineup.

The varsity had Moscrip and Topping at ends, Reynolds and Lettunich at tackles, Rouble and Adams at guards, Muller at center, Alustiza at quarter back, Grayson at full back, and Hamilton and Van Dellen at half backs.

Alabama practiced on the Occidental college field. The workout was the most strenuous since the team's arrival. Coach Frank Thomas directed line scrimmage and the assistants supervised drill on passing and punting.

Half Back Injured.

The only concern expressed by Thomas was over the ankle injury of his combination blocker and ball carrier at right half, Jimmy Angelich, 168 pounder from East Chicago, Ind. In Angelich's place today was Young Boozer, the 170 pound sophomore who played center in high school. Boozer scored two touchdowns against the second team in today's scrimmage.

ROSS SUGGESTS RING FANS PICK TITLE BOUT FOE

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Barney Ross, lightweight champion, today countered the proposal of the New York state athletic commission that he defend his title against Lou Emory, or some other recognized challenger, by suggesting that the New York body inaugurate a movement that will make it possible for the public to pick his opponent.

"I don't know how it could be arranged, but I would like the fight fans to name the man I meet in defense of my title," said Ross. "The commission seems to be able to tell me what I must do, so maybe they can think up some way to make the selection popular with the fight fans."

Leafs Defeat Americans in Overtime, 4-3

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—After losing a three goal lead amassed in the first period the Toronto Maple Leafs had to go into overtime to score their 15th victory of the National Hocky league season tonight, turning back the New York Americans, 4 to 3.

The Americans thrilled a crowd of 12,000 with a stirring comeback that made up two goals in the second period and tied the score while Hollett of the Leafs was off the ice in the third.

The league leaders had the better staying power, however, and Pep Kelly, a wingman, sank his own rebound for the winning goal after less than three minutes of overtime play.

In the Wake of the News

TOURING.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 27.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, I thought I had better write a few lines to inform you how slowly we moved and explain why I was a day or so later than the ladies thought we would be reaching our destination so I could do all that hard work I am planning to do for you.

We wanted to look over Phœnix, Ariz., with the Harold Hanchetts, formerly of Evanston, now living in Phœnix. These—say, what's a citizen of Phœnix called anyway, a Phonixer or a Phœnician—anyway, these Phœnicians are fully as enthusiastic about their country as Floridians or Californians. Really, I was surprised myself at the fertility there after rolling over so many waste miles.

Why, Arch, Phœnix grows and sells $11,000,000 worth of lettuce every year. That very lettuce salad you're having for dinner probably came from Phœnix. I'm sure about my figures, because the secretary of the chamber of commerce told me, and also about all the other products, deciduous fruits, prunes, cotton, grapes, other vegetables—oh, anything you want to name and then some more.

Perhaps you didn't know that Phœnix is in the fertile Salt river valley and has a population of about 48,000 with a total of 100,000 right in tributary territory. Of course, that 48,000 is somewhat more than the last census shows, but if the secretary of the chamber of commerce doesn't know, who does?

Mr. Hanchett—he's the father of Bud, who was one of our Phi Delts at Northwestern, and also of Johnny Ratcliffe's wife, Dot—and Mrs. Hanchett, drove us out about eight miles to see one of the Wrigley winter residences on a cliff overlooking the big hotel. It was there the late William Wrigley passed away.

This hotel is one of the country's swankiest, and if my salary were a little larger—that's not exactly a hint—I would have stopped over for a day, but I thought we better conserve our resources, although perhaps I could have secured night press rate, as the majority of guests do not arrive until after the Christmas holidays.

Moreover, I'll not spring that old gag about asking the clerk how many guests there were and his replying, "There're only 27 now and if 21 of them left, the place would operate in the red." That's supposed to be prime humor in Florida to indicate a steep per diem.

I didn't tell you about going through the mountains and past Coolidge dam, did I? Well, Ed Burns said if we were fond of mountains to go through Globe, if not to go through Tucson. We're fond of mountains all right, but next time we'll go through Tucson.

It was late afternoon and the western sun was right in the driver's eyes so you just had to stop at every bend in the road to tell which way to turn or else you went over the edge. Finally, we asked a gas station attendant how many more miles of mountains and he said, "You haven't reached the mountains yet. These are just foothills." All I can say is prehistoric man must have had mammoth feet if those were foothills.

Well, by the time we reached the mountains, it was dusk and shadowy and that isn't so good. Around one of the worst bends, a PWA truck, going too fast for those curves, loomed around a turn. He could have turned into the mountain while we were on the edge, but instead he motioned us to move over so the overlapping sides of the truck wouldn't sideswipe us.

But we were already over to the side. If we moved more than 8 inches, we moved about 4,000 feet, because that was the drop at that particular point. So we moved about 7 inches and got by but it didn't do my weak heart any good, and the ladies, more accustomed to mountain driving than yours truly, weren't so cheerful either until some time afterward.

Well, Arch, I better be quitting, because there's a lot to be done. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

Harvey T. Woodruff.

CHAMP'S TITLE IS SAFE; MAYBE HIS CHIN ISN'T

4 Round Bout Head Stadium Show.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Max Baer, not quite so glamorous, perhaps, as he was about the time he became heavyweight champion of the world last June 14, but still the world champion and still quite a gorgeous fellow, tonight will fight, spar, or waltz King Levinsky in a scheduled four round fight, or boxing exhibition, at Chicago Stadium.

In several respects the show is to be unique in the history of legalized prize fighting as practiced in the state of Illinois. The Illinois commission has announced positively that Maxie's title will not be at stake, and that there won't be any indication as to whom the referee and judges think won the match. The fantom verdict is to be a secret locked deep in the hearts of the officials, who will glide out of the picture the moment the clash, or tableau, is over. But the commissioners have not stopped with the announcement that the title will not be at stake.

Title Won't Shift on K. O.

At the commission sanctum the following inquiry has often been made these last few days:

"If the Kingfish should happen to catch Max on the button and knock him very stiff, what difference would it make then, pray, whether or not the referee and judges gave a decision or skulked away in the night? Wouldn't the Kingfish be the world champ?"

The answer to this one has been: "No." Then, sotto voce [soft pedal to you] "but he would be the UNOFFICIAL champion of the world and proclaimed the No. 1 logical contender for the official title."

It's Up to the Boys.

As to whether the affair is to be a fight or a cotilion is a matter which depends largely upon Baer and Levinsky. We, as an old Asbury Park boy in the June days when Max was promising a fight despite the scoffing of the New York boxing commission, and as one who got our blue serge suit all full of rosin wafted out each time Max bounced Primo Carnera off the canvas on the night of June 14, expect to see as much fighting as could be demanded of a world champion in four rounds at, maybe, $2,000 a round.

Baer often has said that he dislikes Levinsky, socially and professionally. Max never has forgotten his Emily Post etiquet lessons as interpreted to him by his former wife, Dorothy Dunbar. The Kingfish still eats with his sword, wears horrible cravats, and uses coarse language. These are some of the reasons that the debonair Maxie doesn't care for the Kingfish, whose best pals claim for him nothing more than that he is a diamond in the rough.

Must Earn Their Dough.

Instead of hampering him in his preparation for the entertainment, as did the New York commission, the Illinois commission has gone along with the champ in admirable fashion. When Max asked six ounce gloves instead of eight, six ouncers were ordered. When Max asked wherein will be found the discipline to make the King fight, he was told that the no decision factor would bring about no breaking down of the regular rules designed to make performers earn their dough.

Baer is an intelligent showman. He knows that there would be a terrific shrinkage in the value of his title if the King were to bowl him off his feet. He knows that to bolster his popularity, mysteriously in eclipse in most sections of the country, he must make Levinsky look bad—knock him out if possible. He surely knows that here is no spot for a buildup of a regulation championship encounter. After all, the folks won't be paying $5 tops simply to see his sinewy torso, and surely he wouldn't want to be hissed out of the big red hall on Madison street.

Baer can sock and a champion who can sock is a champion indeed. To look like a champion in tonight's curtailed affair, Max must sock.

King Can Pitch 'Em, Too!

And what of the party of the second part, this Levinsky? There are those who like the Kingfish and those who do not. But is there one who will say that King Levinsky can't do some mighty socking himself? There are many who will say that if the King were to have the good fortune to bust Max a clean one on the chin, Max, rugged as he is, would bounce. Or maybe not bounce—just lie there and writhe in befuddlement.

Levinsky, who is reported in fine physical shape, expects to enter the ring weighing 201 pounds. The champ expects to go in at 218, eight more pounds than he carried when he licked Carnera. The champ also enjoys an advantage of three inches in height over his adversary and also a three inch advantage in reach.

Frankie Battaglia vs. Kid Leonard, 10 rounds, 162 pounds.
Buddy Baer vs. Gene Stanton, 4 rounds, heavyweights.
Tony Zale vs. Joey Bazzone, 6 rounds, 160 pounds.
Billy Treese vs. Lou Thomas, 6 rounds, 170 pounds.
Young Joe Gans vs. Eddie Stiegel, 6 rounds, 150 pounds.
Jack Elverillo vs. Phil McQuillen, 4 rounds, 147 pounds.

EAST AND WEST RIVALS MEET AT LUNCHEON TABLE

Both Teams Go Through Brisk Workouts.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Football stars who will oppose each other in the annual East-West charity game joined forces in friendly fashion today.

The players were guests of honor at a luncheon given by the Shriners, which sponsors the New Year's game as a benefit for the Crippled Children's hospital.

Rivals Are Introduced.

For two hours the players scrimmaged with the chef's offerings, many rivals meeting for the first time. All were introduced to a large gathering, Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley doing the honors for their eastern delegation. Percy Locey and Orin Hollingbery presented their western boys.

Les Borden of Everett, Mass., who will represent Fordham as an end on the East eleven, put on a one man show by singing two Irish songs.

Both Teams Practice.

The eastern team went through a brisk workout at the University of California field in Berkeley. The squad received a hard blow in the loss of Duane Purvis, Purdue half back who was operated upon for a knee injury suffered two days ago. The western team also worked out today.

Oriental Park Race Meeting Is Assured

HAVANA, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A merger of Cuban and American racing interests was completed tonight, assuring a winter race meeting for the capital.

Al Sabath of Chicago, president of the International Racing association, declared that under the new arrangement the meeting was certain to open Saturday. He denied reports that there had been any plan for postponement of the opening, adding that the rumors apparently were the result of a lack of understanding of today's negotiations.

These negotiations, he said, were simply a matter of rearranging the working capital of the association in order to permit the participation of Gen. Matias Betancourt, Cuban sportsman and financier, and Emleto Battasti, Uruguayan sportsman.

Sabath said that Betancourt and Battasti, who control the Casino nacional gambling concession for 1935, would have the major financial interest in the winter racing meeting but that he would serve as president and general manager of the racing association, in complete charge of the meeting.

Track personnel, Sabath said, will remain unchanged with C. W. Hay of Frankfort, Ky., serving as presiding steward, John I. Day of New York, as associate steward, and W. H. Shelley of Louisville, Ky., racing secretary.

Sabath expressed optimism over the prospects of the 72 day meeting which will be held at Oriental Park, near Havana.

BOSTON ELEVEN DROPS DIETZ; TO SEEK BIFF JONES

Boston, Mass., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The long delayed word that Lone Star Dietz had been released as coach of the Boston Redskins, professional football team, came tonight when George Marshall, club president, announced he was seeking the services of Capt. Biff Jones, who recently resigned his football berth at Louisiana State university.

MOSTLY about DOGS

By Bob Becker

Spaniel Makes Game Census

Dogs are being called upon to do many things for their masters, from hauling milk carts, the work of St. Bernards on many little farms in Switzerland, to watching property. But here in Illinois there is a springer spaniel that has one of the most unusual jobs any dog has been asked to do.

Pat, a black and white springer spaniel, is being used by the natural history survey of Illinois to help count the game birds in the state. This dog is owned by Dr. Ralph E. Yeatter, the survey game specialist and formerly of the University of Michigan. It's Pat's job to range ahead of his master, just as if he were hunting to rout birds so that his master might shoot them. However, Dr. Yeatter's only weapons are a notebook and pencil. Instead of a volley of shot being ready for the game birds that Pat digs out of the weed thickets and other cover all the pheasants, quail, or prairie chickens receive is a big thrill when Pat gets close to them and makes them take to wing.

This method of using a dog in game census work was first employed in 1928 by Prof. H. M. Wright of the University of Michigan school of forestry and conservation. The use of a well trained springer spaniel replaces a field crew of men, and it permits covering more territory in less time and with greater accuracy, especially in dense cover, where the dog's sense of smell surpasses man's sight. It would be difficult to make a fairly accurate census of pheasants in a field of heavy cover without a good dog like Pat, since the wily ringnecks will sit so tight that you can walk within a few feet of them, or almost step on them, before they will take to wing.

A springer is a good dog for boring into heavy cover. He has been used for many decades as a rough and ready upland game hunting partner, one that will quarter his ground fairly close to the hunter and rout both furred and feathered game.

Here in the central states this breed has become a popular dog, within the last five years especially. There now are field trial clubs in Chicagoland interested in holding trials to demonstrate the field work of the springers. Rabbits, pigeons, and pheasants are used as game for the dogs to work on. Any springer spaniel owners who are interested in these trials (there will be several held again in Chicagoland next season) can obtain information about them, or about the field qualities of the hunting springer, by getting in touch with A. P. Moecher, 41 Island avenue, Aurora. Mr. Moecher is an officer of the Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois.

RODAK TO BATTLE HANSFORD JAN. 11 AT HOLLYWOOD

Chicagoan Opens Coast Tour in 10 Round Bout.

Leo Rodak, South Chicago, three times Golden Gloves champion, who is en route to California, will make his first appearance away from home at Hollywood, Jan. 11, in a ten round bout with Georgie Hansford, Los Angeles.

Hansford whipped Johnny Pena, Clever Sison, Frankie Wallace, and Tommy Paul in the last year. He met Paul four times, losing the first and winning the next three, the last by a knockout in four rounds at Hollywood, Aug. 25. Prior to the August engagement with Paul, the California featherweight lost in ten rounds to Champion Freddy Miller. Rodak has compiled a record of 21 consecutive triumphs since turning pro July 20, 1933.

Barney Ross' junior welterweight title defense against Frank Klick, San Francisco, Cal., junior lightweight titleholder, will be held at Miami, Fla., Jan. 25, not Jan. 24 as announced previously. Ross, vacationing at Hot Springs, Ark., is due back in the loop late next week to begin training. Max Baer and his brother, Buddy Baer, will appear in supporting matches on the Ross-Klick card.

Supporting bouts for the show at Cicero stadium next Friday were arranged yesterday by Promoter Billy Cepak. Freddy Caserio, Golden Gloves graduate, will clash with Jack Charvez, Kansas City, Mo., for six rounds. Four round encounters pair Lou Vine with Hugh Allen, and Danny Mack with Al Latie. Headline matches will bring together Frank Sagilio and Lou Jallos, and Bus Breese and Dario Moreno. Each is scheduled for ten rounds.

Chicago's Catholic Youth organization champions, who have canceled matches with a combined Los Angeles-San Francisco team, will entrain Tuesday night on the Northern Pacific at Union station at 10:30 o'clock for Portland, where they will meet an Oregon squad Jan. 12.

In addition to the sixteen champions—eight in the championship division and as many in class A—the group will include Savior Canadeo, Thomas O'Connell, Paddy Kane, Adam Walton, Patrick Francis [Packy] McFarland, and the Rev. Louis Kroeck. Canedeo, who lost the lightweight title battle to Lorenzo Lovings due to a cut eye, not only is making the trip, but has been awarded a scholarship along with the champions by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, national director of the C. Y. O.

SOUTH SIDERS LEAD MAROON PREP TOURNEY

Roosevelt Piles Up 48-7 Score on Harper.

The heat will be on in earnest at the University of Chicago fieldhouse today as 16 prep basketball teams, all of them winners in the first-round contests of the last two days, fight it out for places in the quarter-final bracket.

As on Wednesday, four of the victorious teams in yesterday's concluding first round matches were south side teams—Calumet, Morgan Park, Hyde Park, and Parker. Crane, Roosevelt, and Tuley of the west section, and Senn of the north also were winners. Most promising of today's matches is expected to be that at 4 p. m. between Lane Tech and Tilden, who appeared in the first round play to be about the best teams in the meet.

Suburban Teams Upset.

Three of yesterday's matches were the thrillers of the tournament so far, and in two of them suburban quintets, which had been highly regarded, were toppled by city teams. Crane Tech, after trailing Blue Island at the quarter mark, 8 to 4, rallied as the game went into a furious pace and built up a lead of 23 to 16 at three quarters, with Quinto Valentino and Ben Willerman leading the Crane attack.

Blue Island rallied, with all its men shooting, and was behind 26 to 24 with 10 seconds to play when Rettker of Blue Island was fouled. Rettker deliberately tossed the free throw at the side of the basket, but Mehlen, tall Blue Islander center, was too closely harried to score.

Morgan Park Victor.

Morgan Park and La Grange engaged in a nip and tuck fight which went to the former, 31 to 28. La Grange dashed into a 10 to 0 lead at the start, but Morgan Park made five consecutive baskets to take the lead in the second quarter. Striking suddenly, Morgan Park built up a big edge in the third session, but La Grange rallied desperately to bring the count to 29-28. McNeill of Morgan Park then scooped up a La Grange mis-pass to score and made his team's victory sure.

In the final evening game a plucky team from Amundsen, behind 19 to 11 at half time, fought Parker to a standstill in the last period and lost by one point, 22 to 21. Amundsen pulled up to a 19-17 deficit with two minutes to go. Egan scored for Parker, then Bowman of Parker counted once from the free throw line. Burkhart of Amundsen came back with two free throws and Meyers of Amundsen sank a difficult field goal, but the gun cut Amundsen's rally short.

Roosevelt Wins, 48-7.

Five of yesterday's losers were schools only recently made senior highs. All of these but Amundsen were beaten decisively. Roosevelt handed one of them, Harper, one of the worst defeats any team has suffered in the five years of the tournament, at 48 to 7.

Roland Young of Roosevelt made the individual high scoring total of the play thus far, with 16 points, seven baskets and a pair of free throws.

U. S. Football Coaches Favor Present Rules

a touchback or an incompleted pass on it when it received the ball.

8. To rule that the penalty for a second forward pass on any play be inflicted from the point where the foul occurred instead of from the spot of the preceding down. This, of course, touches on attempted laterals coming out of forward passes.

9. This also is in respect to lateral passes and suggests that a penalty for a lateral pass that instead is a forward pass be also inflicted at the point of foul rather than at the spot of the preceding down. The penalty for these to be decided by the rules committee, the coaches recommending five yards.

N. C. A. A. on Subsidizing.

The morning sessions of the National Collegiate Athletic association concerned themselves with round table discussions, chief among which was one on "recruiting and subsidization of college athletes," presided over by Prof. Z. G. Clevenger of Indiana.

Maj. John L. Griffith expressed the net result of the morning's talk by saying it was impossible to define subsidization. "It is like trying to define sin and it is something we cannot legislate out of existence. The only thing we can do is try to control it."

Fear that many of the evils brought to light in the 1929 Carnegie Foundation report are creeping back into college athletics and that a retrograde movement has set in was expressed by Dr. Howard J. Savage, author of the famous document known as "Bulletin No. 23."

Dr. Savage's remarks were made at the annual Christmas recess luncheon of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood before an audience of more than two hundred members of the organization and guests. The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame university, also spoke.

Dr. Savage said that he very much doubted if the present situation in American college sports presents enough new facts of a nature sufficiently different from the ones disclosed in "Bulletin No. 23" 'to make a restudy of the situation yield many important fresh principles.

Riegels, Ex-California Star, Becomes Father

Pomona, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Roy Riegels, former captain of the University of California football team, became the father today of a baby girl, to be named Alexa. Riegels, coach at Pomona Junior college, became the most talked of football player in the country Jan. 1, 1929, when he picked up a fumbled ball and ran 75 yards the wrong way in the Rose Bowl game which California was playing at Pasadena with Georgia Tech. Riegels captained the Bears next season and was an outstanding center on the coast.

Warneke Slips Below 2 Best Years as a Cub

Lon Warneke, the Cubs' ace pitcher, won 22 games while losing 10 in 1934, but the National league pitching figures, released today, show him with a comparative rating far below his eminence of 1933, when he led the league on both bases of reckoning—earned runs and won and lost percentage—and much below his 1933 standing, when he was second on the earned run basis and twelfth on the percentage rating.

Here are the vital figures for Lonnie during the three years he has been acknowledged one of the league's greatest performers:

	Earned run average.	Earned run ranking.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
1934.....	3.22	8	22	10	.688
1933.....	2.01	2	18	13	.581
1932.....	2.37	1	22	6	.786

As most fans had suspected even before the release of the official figures, Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals was the standout of the National league season as well as the world series.

Wins 30 Games.

Dean won 30 games, seven more than Hal Schumacher, his nearest rival, and eight more than Warneke. He lost only seven games, four of them to the Cubs, and thus became the possesser of the highest percentage, .811. For the third successive year he struck out the most batsmen, 195. He executed the most shutouts, seven.

Despite all his accomplishments Diz was obliged to take a rating under other players in some of the statistics. For instance, Carl Hubbell was able to hang on to his 1933 laurels as leader of the league on earned runs. Carl allowed 2.30 earned runs per nine inning game and Dean was second with an average of 2.65.

Curt Davis, sensational freshman from the coast, worked in the most games, 51, and this after the Cubs had turned thumbs down on him in the spring because he was thought to be too frail for rugged endeavor. Despite his association with the miserable Phillies, worst defensive club in the league, he was third in the earned run ratings with 2.96.

Mungo Works Hardest.

Van Mungo of the Brooklyn Dodgers worked in the most innings, 315, two more than Hubbell, three more than Dizzy Dean, and 24 more than Warneke. Mungo faced the most batsmen, 1,329; allowed the most hits, 300, and gave the most bases on balls, 104. In leading the field in the number of hits allowed Mungo took from Larry French, 1935 Cub, dubious honors which he had held for two years.

YELLOW JACKETS WIN IN AMATEUR HOCKY MATCHES

The race in the Amateur Hocky league tightened somewhat when the Yellow Jackets defeated the Jones and Baumruckers, 2 to 1, and the Boston Store blanked the Vodrazka Hornets, 4 to 0, at the Chicago Stadium last night.

The opening game was a battle from start to finish. The Jewelers trailed, 1 to 0, at the end of the first period and came back to tie the game midway in the second period only to lose on a goal towards the end of the final period.

De Paul Works on Defense for Use Against Purdue

Hoping to sweep aside Beloit in regular stride tomorrow night, Coach Jim Kelly kept his De Paul university basketball players strictly Purdue conscious yesterday as the Demons scampered through another prolonged drill.

Coach Kelly is intent on building a defense suitable to cope with the high speed attack of the Boilermakers who are to be met by De Paul New Year's night at the 132d Infantry Armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

The work of Willie Phillips and Ed Campion was impressive in yesterday's workout. Both may earn starting honors in the Purdue battle. De Paul will aim for its twenty-third straight victory against Beloit tomorrow night

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A spurt in prices of United States government bonds featured an otherwise irregular bond market today. The rise in the government issues ranged from 2-32ds to 12-32ds point, the only losses being in the first Liberty 4¼'s and the uncalled fourth 4¼'s, which were off 1-32d and 2-32ds, respectively.

The turnover in government bonds today, however, was only $1,560,700, compared with $3,355,700 the day before, while total dealings for the listed bond market today were $13,316,000, compared with $11,457,000 the previous day.

Corporation Bonds Irregular.

Domestic corporation bonds were irregularly lower, with public utility bonds easier on the day, while the high grade rails and industrials moved slightly higher. However a number of the lower rated rail and industrial issues lost a point or more on the day.

As is usual at the end of the year, a number of issues which had not been dealt in for several days, and even weeks, appeared on the tape with wide net changes from the previous levels.

Foreign Issues Firmer.

Foreign loans moved irregularly higher. The most active issues were Lataur Nitrate 6s, German government 5½s, Australian government 5s, due 1955, and Peruvian government 6s, due 1960, all of which showed fractional variations. French, Italian, Polish, and Scandinavian government loans closed firm in light dealings.

Owing to the preponderance of public utility bonds in relation to other domestic issues on the curb, the lower trend for utility securities today found the curb bond list generally lower. Foreign loans were slightly easier.

Chicago Great Western.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Chicago Great Western 4s, due 1959.—C. T.

Answer: Chicago Great Western Railroad company operates 1,519 miles of line in Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois, and Missouri.

It enters relatively few important centers over its own lines, entering Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Joseph over lines of competing carriers. Its route from Omaha to St. Paul is the shortest and from Kansas City to St. Paul the second shortest, but in most other cases competing roads are better situated.

Another outstanding feature is the large amount of trafic from connecting lines. This constitutes about two-thirds of total trafic carried and accounts for the less than average rate per ton mile. That factor is partialy offset by a high trafic density.

The road handles a large volume of wheat tonnage, much of which comes from the southwest. As a result crop conditions in the southwest are of more importance than in other territory.

Funded debt per mile of road is small only if joint facility rental and equipment rental are not considered.

The road has to face competition not only from motor trucks but also from the competing western lines. The management, newly installed in 1929, has been aggressive in building up trafic density.

Gross for the first nine months of 1934 increased about 6½ per cent over the corresponding 1933 period. The road earned two-thirds of fixed charges, against a 56 per cent coverage in the corresponding 1933 period. Operating revenues during the eight years through 1931 held stable, but dropped from $20,108,000 in 1931 to $14,575,000 in 1933.

The company earned 73 per cent of charges in 1933, against 29 per cent in 1932. Charges were earned 1½ times in 1931 and 1¾ times in 1930.

On Sept. 30, 1934, current assets totaled $33,845,000 and current liabilities were $30,842,000. The road has had to lean on the RFC for support.

The first 4s, due 1959, constitute a general mortgage on almost the entire road and a first lien on 557 miles. Although lien position of the bonds is high, they are regarded as speculative pending indication of a return of sustained earning power. The company has requested holders of the issue to accept half the interest rate temporarily.

CHICAGO AREA HOLIDAY TRADE FAR ABOVE '33

Surface Line Trafic Best in 3 Years.

Vast improvement in holiday business was reported yesterday in surveys covering Chicago and five middle western states of which Chicago is the hub. One report showed that surface line trafic in Chicago during the shopping season was the heaviest in three years, another that retail trade in Illinois cities averaged 26 per cent above last year, with many cities having the best Christmas business since 1930, and a third report told of the upturn in November of department store sales in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa.

A statement issued by the Chicago Surface Lines pointed out that in all except four week days in the period from Dec. 1 to 25 more than 2,000,000 passengers were carried daily. On the Saturday before Christmas there was an increase of 125,400 passengers or 6.6 per cent over a year ago. The total for the period was 46,736,000 revenue passengers, against 45,099,000 a year ago and 43,366,000 in the corresponding period of 1932 and 50,454,000 in 1931.

Not Deterred by Weather.

The enthusiasm of the shoppers was not deterred even by adverse weather conditions. Guy A. Richardson, president of the lines, pointed out that snowfall during December was the heaviest for the month in the history of the local weather bureau, with a total of 27 inches from Dec. 10 to 24.

While gross receipts of the lines were boosted $115,000 over the corresponding period of last year by the increase in trafic, the snowfall required heavy expenditures to keep the lines clear, he stated. Approximately $150,000 more was spent by the company to provide service than in the preceding year, $100,000 being spent for removal of snow and $50,000 more for additional service.

Although many cities reported that sales were the best since 1930, some stated that trade was even superior to that of 1929. The report said there was more active buying of better grades of merchandise and real improvement in farmer buying power.

Good Record in State.

"Those Chicagoans who thrilled at the size and character of holiday buying in Chicago can have another thrill by knowing that the holiday throngs in the metropolis were matched in downstate cities considering size of buying population," J. T. Meek, director of the mercantile division of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce reported. "The spirit was there and the cheerful spending, which can only indicate confidence that better times are already here."

Improvement in department store sales began in November when the total for the Seventh federal reserve district was 15.4 per cent above November, 1933, and showed a less than seasonal decline from October of 1 per cent. The percentage gain over a year ago was the largest reported since May of this year, the report issued yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago stated.

Detroit showed the largest improvement over a year ago with a gain of 20.1 per cent, while department store sales on Indianapolis were up 16.9 per cent, Chicago 14.9 per cent, Milwaukee 8.7 per cent and other cities 15 per cent.

INDUSTRIAL USE OF POWER CLOSE TO PEAK OF '29

Steel, Auto, Textile Plants Take More.

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—With activity mounting in the steel mills, textile factories, and automobile plants, electric power output for the week ended Dec. 22 climbed to the highest point since Feb. 1, 1930, the Edison Electric institute reported today.

In fact, the figure of 1,787,936,000 kilowatt hours produced last week came within striking distance of the all-time high of 1,860,012,000 kilowatt hours produced during the week of Dec. 22, 1929. Last week's figure was 131,320,000 kilowatt hours higher than that for the corresponding 1933 week, representing an increase of 7.9 per cent, and 20,518,000 kilowatt hours higher than the output for the preceding week. Had not the Pacific coast experienced drenching rains, which made pumping from wells in the farming districts unnecessary, the total output for the country would have been still higher.

All Other Districts Gain.

In every other section of the country increasing industrial activity pushed the power output up a notch higher above the figure for the corresponding week last year.

In the middle Atlantic area, which consumes the greatest volume of electricity, the gain over last year was increased to 6.5 per cent last week from 6.2 per cent the previous week. In New England, where textile mill activity is beginning to pick up, the gain was to 5.7 per cent from 4.1 per cent the previous week.

The central industrial area, which contains most of the steel mills and automobile factories, showed the highest percentage of gain over last year of any of the large industrial areas. Power production was up 8.7 per cent from the corresponding week last year, against 8.3 per cent last week.

Steel Mills Use More Power.

Increased output of new model automobiles and speeding up of production in the rolling mills of Pittsburgh, Toledo, Chicago, and Buffalo, which use a good deal of electric power, combined to send the total figure upward.

The greatest percentage of gain was shown in the south, where electric output gained 12.3 per cent over last year's production during the week. Both textile and steel mills in Birmingham influenced the figure.

The percentage of gain in the Rocky mountain area remained the same as last week at 11.1 per cent.

CHICAGO AT YEAR'S PEAK.

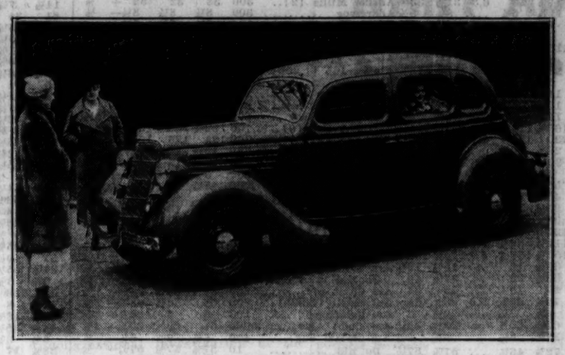
Electricity output in the Chicago district reached a new high for the year last week with a total of 111,927,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 6.5 per cent over the corresponding period last year, when production amounted to 105,136,000, and compared with 111,463,000 for the preceding week of this year, Commonwealth Edison company reported yesterday.

Following are the output and percentage comparisons with last year for the district:

Week ended—	1934.	1933.	% Increase.
Dec. 22	111,927,000	105,136,000	6.5
Dec. 15	111,463,000	105,191,000	6.0
Dec. 8	109,583,000	101,962,000	7.5
Dec. 1	101,028,000	93,672,000	7.9

The good showing for the week was attributed to the dark weather this year compared with last. The percentage increase over a year ago was about the same as in the last few weeks.

NEW MODEL FORD FOR 1935



One of the 1935 model Ford cars which were first shown in Detroit yesterday. Pictured is the Fordor V-8 sedan of the de luxe line, showing the new body lines. Changes include relocation of the front spring and moving the engine farther forward, seating the passengers between the wheels and closer to the center of the car.

FORD SHOWS '35 CARS; COMFORT SALES KEYNOTE

New Models Longer, More Streamlined.

BY HAL FOUST.

Dearborn, Mich., Dec. 27.—The 1935 Ford V-8 made its debut this afternoon. Henry Ford and his son, Edsel, presented the new models to a hundred newspaper and magazine writers here following an inspection tour of the $20,000,000 expansion and modernization program under way in this privately owned industrial empire.

The prices on these new vehicles are, as a whole, higher than for the 1934 numbers. There's a reduction of $10 on the five window coupe and the tudor sedan, no change on the fordor sedan, and increases of $15 to $35 on the other body styles.

Riding Comfort Foremost.

Price alone is not the factor that convinces Henry Ford that he will sell a million or more of these cars in 1935 as compared with approximately 750,000 sales in 1934. His main bids for buyers next year are founded on advancements in riding comfort and in appearance, although refinements have also been made in the power plant and in the chassis.

More comfort has been attained—and it was demonstrated convincingly for the news writers—by moving the engine eight inches forward so that its weight rests over the front axle. The front spring — transversal of course—has been placed four inches ahead of the front axle. This redistribution of weight lessens road shocks. Rear seat passengers have the comfort of a front seat ride.

Car 8 Inches Longer.

The new car is approximately eight inches longer from bumper to bumper although the wheelbase remains the same. There are decided changes in appearance, but the 1935 models will be easily recognized as Ford V-8's when seen for the first time.

Fenders are deeper, more highly crowned and skirted. A slanting vertical grille with horizontal beading shields the radiator. The windshield is tilted back, vertical louvres adorn the hoodside, and the new radiator cap is purely ornamental as the water intake is under the hood. There is a sweeping rear panel of streamline effect.

The seats are wider. They have been widened variously on the different models as much as five and a half inches. Appointments are of new design.

Add Ventilator; Brakes Improved.

The engine has been equipped with a crankcase ventilator to dissipate water vapor and unburned gasoline that contaminate lubricating oil. The brakes incorporate a newly designed "floating wedge" that tends to equalize pressure on the brake drums. Additional drum ribs give a 40 per cent increase in cooling effect.

"There isn't any noticeable advancement in horsepower or top speed over the 1934 models," said Edsel, who is president of the Ford Motor company. "The conspicuous improvement is in riding comfort."

The wiry and spry father, 71 years old, joined the milling crowd of newspaper men inspecting the latest product of his mechanical ingenuity. Informally, and in short, staccato words, crisp as the click of a telegraph key, he expressed his confidence in the economic future.

"Things Should Be Better."

"We know where we stand today," he said. "We're not jumbled, as five years ago. We've rebuilt solidly. Things should be much better."

Smoke poured from the forest of tall stacks in the two square miles of the River Rouge plant. Buses carried the visitors to steel rolling mills, power generating plants, forges, ship docks, private railroad yards, and assembly lines where 70,000 men are employed.

The $12,000,000 in construction under way on the $20,000,000 program to be finished next year would have been conspicuous in any other manufacturing layout. In the Ford plant, evaluated [a guess] at approximately $400,000,000, the addition of $12,000,000 to the investment was only a small part of the activity seen on the tour.

The $20,000,000 to be spent in ten months' time will give Ford a capacity of 5,000 cars in a 16 hour day, as compared with his present capacity of 5,000 in a 24 hour day.

Rap PWA for Grabbing FHA Housing Site

BY AL CHASE.

A protest by the North Central association against the proposed $12,500,000 PWA north side low cost housing project, filed with President Roosevelt and Secretary of Interior Ickes, yesterday disclosed possibilities of a resumption of the row between the two great federal housing groups—the Ickes-PWA faction and the Moffett-FHA crowd.

The recent Washington tiff between Ickes, head of the PWA, and Moffett, federal housing administrator of the national housing act, which was patched up at the instigation of the President, is recalled by this local conflict of PWA and FHA interests.

The new battleground between FHA and PWA interests is on the north side. A group of Chicagoans, who originally had planned a big housing project on the west side, but who were persuaded to go elsewhere when the PWA selected as its west side site the almost identical land they had chosen, picked out at north side location. It was decided to finance it by an FHA insured mortgage loan.

Conflict for Second Time.

The protest to Washington points out that for the second time the PWA has selected for one of its housing projects part of the site chosen by the Chicagoans for their FHA sponsored project. In fact, the PWA project site is almost in the center of the contemplated location of the private project, which was to have been much larger than the PWA group.

The private enterprise is known as the Independent Realty Trust and has been considering slum clearance projects for several years. The north side site tentatively selected is bounded on the east by Wells street [with an alternative eastern boundary of La Salle], on the north by North avenue, by Halsted on the west, and by Division on the south.

According to the protest sent Washington the north side site was selected following a suggestion by the PWA that the Chicago syndicate abandon its west side project, which it had been hoped to finance with PWA funds.

Denies Projects Conflict.

The PWA pointed out that a project on the north side would not conflict with the federal program. The Chicago group claim that the PWA approved of the north side setup and assured them that funds would be allocated for them as soon as federal cash was available. Later Ickes announced that the limited dividend corporation projects had been shelved and so the Chicago group decided to seek aid through FHA sponsorship.

Now, it is pointed out, the PWA north side project is to be built almost in the center of the site selected by the Chicagoans for their apartments.

The Independent Realty Trust was organized by John Butcher, a real estate man. It has as its board of trustees Joshua D'Esposito, Henry K. Holsman, Henry P. Chandler, Homer Buckley, George P. Ellis, and Mr. Butcher.

DR. WILSON BECOMES VICE CHAIRMAN OF PAN AMERICAN BOARD

New Zephyrs to Cut St. Paul Run Half Hour

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Within sixty to ninety days the Burlington railroad's Twin City Zephyrs will go into service between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis on 6½ and 7 hour schedules respectively, the road announced yesterday.

When the new Zephyrs, which are under construction in Philadelphia, are placed in service there will be two high speed trains run between Chicago and the Twin Cities, the North Western having announced early in the week that effective Jan. 2 it will start the operation of a steam train which will run between Chicago and St. Paul in seven hours [7½ hours to Minneapolis].

Report Milwaukee May Act.

The Milwaukee road has not made an announcement, but it is reported that two new streamlined engines which are under construction for it may be placed in the Chicago-Twin Cities run.

The Burlington's Zephyrs are scheduled to leave the terminals between noon and 1 p. m.

Officials of the road base their expectancy of successful operation of the Zephyrs on the record of the train that has operated between Lincoln, Omaha, and Kansas City since Nov. 11. This train not only has had an outstanding advertising value but it has been a successful venture financially, officials of the road state. Passenger revenues on the run have doubled since the train was put into service, while the expense of operation as compared with the old steam trains has been cut in half.

I. C. Schedule Not Set.

The Illinois Central system has not determined upon its schedule for the streamlined train which it will put into service between Chicago and St. Louis. The train, which will make a round trip between the two cities daily, will cover the distance in slightly less than five hours. None of the other roads running between the two cities has announced plans for meeting the Illinois Central competition, but sentiment expressed to date favors the speeding up of existing steam trains. However, it is known that the Baltimore and Ohio, which owns the Alton, is having a streamlined train constructed.

The Chicago Great Western yesterday placed on exhibition a giant Diesel electric engine which it has just received. It will be used at the company's Oelwein, Ia., switch yards. The motor unit has 100 horsepower and is capable of pulling 100 loaded cars, [about 4,000 tons], at a speed of 11¾ miles an hour. It will be able to pull a train of 800 tons at 45 miles an hour. The new engine cost about $100,000.

Consolidated Gas Dividend Cut in Half

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The dividend on the Consolidated Gas company's common stock was cut in half by the board of directors today. The action reflected the steady increase in taxes and operating costs and the reduction in operating revenues.

For the last three quarters 50 cents a share, at the annual rate of $2 a share, had been paid. The dividend declared today was at the rate of 25 cents a share quarterly, putting the stock on a $1 annual basis. The new dividend is payable March 15 to stock of record Feb. 11.

Cites Rising Taxes, Costs.

George B. Cortelyou, president, issued the following statement:

"Increases in taxes and operating costs, together with the effects of reductions on electric rates and revenues in 1931 and other subsequent reductions in lesser amounts aggregating $11,000,000 a year, have combined to produce conditions under which the quarterly dividend must prudently be cut in half.

"The responsibility of the company is not only to its customers and employés, but also to the 120,000 stockholders and investors, about 81,000 of whom own less than fifty shares each.

Taxes Exceed $4.50 a Share.

"Operating taxes have become more than $1 per month per meter on the lines of the companies of the Consolidated system. Taxes for 1935 are indicated as amounting to more than $4.50 a share of outstanding common stock of the Consolidated Gas company. Existing volume of business and revenues are insufficient to meet such tax burdens.

Five years ago the Consolidated Gas trustees surprised the financial community in the midst of the stock market crash by raising the dividend rate from $3 to $4 annually. That rate remained in force until March, 1933, and from then on to the present the reduction has been gradual.

WARNS RATE CUT MIGHT WIPE OUT UTILITY STOCKS

Magill Cites Effect of Federal Proposal.

Reduction of utility rates by the fifty per cent suggested by Frank McNinch, chairman of the federal power commission, would reduce the value of stocks in utility companies held by investors to zero so far as computation on a basis of earnings is concerned, according to a statement issued last night by Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors.

"The operating revenues of all central station power enterprises in the country for 1933, as reported, were $1,777,900,000," Dr. Magill said. "A reduction of fifty per cent in the operating revenues would have given a total operating revenue of $888,950,000. The operating expenses, including bond retirement but not including taxes for 1933, as reported, were $998,580,000.

Could Not Meet Expenses.

"In other words, expenses, not including taxes, would be approximately $100,000,000 more than the operating revenue of these central stations properties based on a fifty per cent reduction. The practical effect of such reduction would be to wipe out all the common stock equities and deprive millions of investors of their property with nothing left for taxes and interest on bonds.

"Added to the threatened fifty per cent reduction in rates the threat of government competition by the construction of major dam projects, there can be little hope for the average investor in utility securities unless some check is made on the government's activities in entering private business."

Cites Difference in Taxation.

Dr. Magill said that the country hears a great deal from administration authorities that the TVA is a yardstick to measure what utility rates should be.

"If this TVA yardstick is to be used," he continued, "it is only reasonable and just that it should be applied under the same conditions in measuring private utility rates as in measuring rates under government operation as in the TVA itself. Therefore, under the TVA yardstick investor-owned utility companies should be relieved of all taxation the same as municipally owned plants or required to pay a very low rate of taxation as in the case of the TVA."

STUDEBAKER'S PLAN APPROVED BY CREDITORS

Fort Wayne, Ind., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The plan of reorganization of the Studebaker corporation and Rockne Motors corporation was approved by more than two-thirds of the creditors in United States District court here today. If the court does not find the company insolvent, it will be necessary for a majority of each class of security holders to approve the plan.

The plan provides for a new company to carry on the Studebaker business, the Studebaker holdings of 95 per cent of the stock of the White Motor company being distributed to creditors. Studebaker creditors would receive for each $100 of debt and interest 2.64 shares of White stock and four shares of common stock of the new company. Creditors of Rockne Motors corporation would receive for each $100 of debt and interest $25 in cash, $50 in debentures of the new company, 7-10th of a share of White stock and one share of common stock of the new company.

Holders of Studebaker preferred stock will receive for each share 1¼ shares of new common. Preferred holders will be entitled to subscribe for debentures and common stock of the new company, as will holders of Studebaker common.

DECLARES RFC MUST PAY TAX ON MOFFAT LINE

Denver, Colo., Dec. 27.—(AP)—John R. Seaman, chairman of the state tax commission, announced today the federal government will be taxed for Moffat railroad property of which it recently took control and if it declines to pay suit will be filed to test laws which provide tax exemption for government property. The Reconstruction Finance corporation recently assumed ownership of Moffat stock to protect $10,500,000 in loans.

Seaman said a theory that government ventures into the field of private business are not tax exempt was upheld by the United States Supreme court last May. The court ruled that state owned and state operated liquor stores are subject to federal tax.

DOLLAR GAINS ON POUND; OTHER MONEYS STEADY

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The dollar closed nearly steady against most leading foreign currencies today, but gained slightly on the British pound which lost ¼ cent at $4.94.

French francs, unchanged at 6.60½ cents, indicated the value of the dollar as 59.32 cents, based on the old par of the franc, while calculated on the new par of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0043.

Bullion brokers in London raised the price of gold 2½ penc to 140 shillings 10½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.80, based on the opening of sterling at $4.94. Bars valued at $1,122,380 were purchased.

EXPECT KASPAR BANK TO OPEN BEFORE JAN. 10

Reopening of the Kaspar American State bank before Jan. 10 seemed assured last night when James M. Triner, president, announced after a meeting of the board of directors that all necessary arrangements had been made.

Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis removed the last apparent obstacle to reopening when he signed an order yesterday lifting the receivership and directing Receiver Arthur H. Meyer to turn over assets and control of the bank's affairs to the officers of the reorganized institution.

The reopening will free approximate $700,000 in frozen funds—21 per cent in addition to the 25 per cent paid depositors during the receivership. Waivers of $1,800,000 in deposits have been approved by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, and final details ironed out to obtain admission to the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Reorganization Plans of Paramount Announced

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Plans for the reorganization of the Paramount Publix corporation and its subsidiary, the Paramount Broadway corporation, were outlined in detail today before United States District Court Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The program is based on the new provisions of the federal bankruptcy law. If approved by the court and adopted by two-thirds of the creditors and a majority of the stockholders it would end the trusteeship under which the corporations have been operating. The plan provides for a new company and issuance of new securities to take care of the claims of creditors.

IMPORTS GAIN, EXPORTS FALL IN LAST MONTH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Expanding in the face of unfavorable seasonal factors, the value of the import trade of the United States increased 16 per cent in November over October to $150,919,000. Exports for the same period declined 6 per cent to $194,901,000. These figures were revealed today by the division of foreign trade statistics of the commerce department.

The report cautioned that the November increase in imports, even in the face of a normal seasonal increase of about 2 per cent, should not be taken too seriously as October imports were abnormally low, and the two months together were about normal.

The report showed that November was the fourth successive month in which the total export value was larger than in the corresponding months of 1933, 1932, and 1931.

Prices of goods moving in export trade have advanced during the year and, therefore, although the gain in value for the first 11 months was 32 per cent the increase in quantity was only about 12 per cent. The eleven month gain in imports was due to higher prices.

U. S. Policy Boosts Silver Output; First Since 1929

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The effect of the rise in the price of silver this year, partly under influence of American demand for the metal, was seen in the American bureau of metal statistics' estimate that 1934 world output would make the first yearly gain since 1929. For the first 11 months, world output was 164,253,000 ounces against 147,744,000 in the like period last year.

JOHN MORRELL EARNINGS RISE 48 PCT. IN YEAR

Earnings of John Morrell & Co., Inc., Ottumwa, Ia., meat packers, increased 48 per cent during the year ended Oct. 27, 1934, over the preceding fiscal year, according to the annual statement released yesterday.

Net income was $2,091,002, or $5.42 per share on 385,698 shares of capital stock. For the year ended Oct. 28, 1933, net income was $1,409,000, or $3.60 a share on 390,960 shares. Sales for the Oct. 27, 1934, period amounted to $58,239,714 [United States companies only], against $46,033,473 for the 1933 year.

On Oct. 27, 1934, current assets were $12,956,124, which was 3.57 times current liabilities of $3,626,434. Cash was $1,636,069. Inventories were carried at market prices, less allowance for selling expenses and reserve of $250,000.

On Dec. 15, 1934, the stock was placed on a quarterly dividend basis of 90 cents a quarter, the same scale that prevailed in 1929.

Sales of Western Electric This Year 30 Pct. Over Last

Sales of the Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of American Telephone and Telegraph company, will show an increase for 1934, first yearly gain in business shown since 1929. This was disclosed in a statement issued at the company's offices here last night.

"Sales of Western Electric company for 1934 will be about $90,000,000 compared with $69,500,000 in 1933," the company reported an increase of nearly 30 per cent. "Some further improvement is expected in 1935," it added.

First Gain Since 1929.

The last time the company reported yearly sales better than the preceding year was in 1929 when total business done by the company amounted to $410,950,000. Each succeeding year up to this year showed losses in sales. The depression decline in business of the parent company resulted in a sharp curtailment in the need for telephone equipment manufactured by the subsidiary.

The increased sales failed to lift the company out of the red in which it operated in both 1933 and 1932. The 1934 deficit, however, will be smaller than that shown last year, it is understood.

Last year on a sales volume of $69,500,000 the company incurred a deficit of $13,773,000. In 1932 the company reported a deficit of $12,625,972 on a sales volume of $117,850,000.

Rehire 2,000 Employés.

As result of the better business enjoyed during the last year the company put 2,000 of its former employés back on the pay roll. The rate of operation of the company's plants is 20 per cent of a capacity as compared with 16 per cent at the close of 1933.

Despite the increase in sales for 1934, the total volume of business done, still is substantially below that of 1932 or 1931.

The company has paid no dividends on the common stock since 1931. Virtually all of the stock is held by A. T. & T.

National Distillers to Pay 50 Cents; First Since 1932

IOWA WILL TRY TO REFUND ISSUE SOLD ON NOV. 1

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—In an effort to save interest, the state of Iowa will offer an issue of $3,500,000 anticipatory warants to refund a like amount sold recently as 5s to the Carleton D. Beh company. If the new issue is successful the Beh warants will be recalled and interest paid only since Nov. 1, the date the warants were issued.

Each bidder for the new warants, to be sold at par, will name the interest rate he will accept.

Russia Lets Grain Growers Sell Wheat in Open Market

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Grain growers of practically all European Russia and eastern Siberia have been granted permission to sell grain, flour, and bread on the open market as a reward for their fulfilment of the grain collection plan. This permission extends to the collective farms and individual farmers as well, and was granted by the central committee of the communist party and the council of peoples commission.

GLASS ISSUES "LAST WORD" ON CUT IN INTEREST

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Senator Carter Glass today gave out what he said he hoped to be his "last newspaper word" on the bank interest rate cuts.

"I did not charge the federal reserve board with any usurpation of power or with any illegal action," he said. "What I did charge was that the action of the Deposit Insurance corporation was without authority of law and that the federal reserve board should not have made itself the official medium of publicly announcing the illicit action of another corporation in a way that produced the impression that the board sanctioned, if it did not advise, such irregular action. Nobody has assumed to assert that the action complained of by me was legal.

"If this evil action of usurping legislative authority by a bureau at Washington be permitted to pass without protest and become a precedent, there will be further and more dangerous exercise of authority for which there is no sanction of law."

RISE IN UTILITY SHARES BRACES STOCK MARKET

Sales for Income Tax Loss Purposes Offset.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Strength in the utilities imparted a little better tone to the stock market today in spite of an extra run of tax-loss selling, and a special item or two of unfavorable news, including the halving of the Consolidated Gas company's dividend rate.

It was the last day in which sales could be made in the regular two day delivery manner for the purpose of establishing losses for income tax deductions, and considerable liquidation throughout the list was traceable to this fact. Hereafter to the end of the year sales for tax purposes must be arranged on a cash basis. Owing partly to such transactions and to others coming under the head of year-end adjustment trading was on a broader scale than it has been for weeks. Volume, too, was a little heavier.

Rise in Utilities Impressive.

The advance of the power and light group in the face of the big New York gas company's dividend cut was impressive in spite of the fact that the dividend cut had been generally anticipated in view of the move by the city administration to build its own electric plant and because of the legislative investigation looking to generally lower rates throughout this state.

The Consolidated Gas corporation's common stock greeted the announcement by rallying a fraction, although the preferred shares sank into new low ground with a drop of more than 2 points. Elsewhere in the section gains running to a point were recorded, the chief beneficiaries including American Water Works, Peoples Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, and North American. American Telephone was a little better.

Advance Encourages Traders.

No rush to buy was apparent anywhere in the division, but the fact that the group as a whole had braced up after its protracted ordeal, due to such matters as taxes, rate reductions and growing plans for government competition, was a heartening spectacle to the trading fraternity in general. The week-end power output figures establishing a new five year high was thought to have influenced some of the buying.

A scattering of individual issues was outstandingly strong, among them being Radio preferred B, which spurted more than 3 points; National Distillers, which rose more than a point on unusually heavy dealings on a 50 cents dividend distribution—the first cash distribution made by the company since August, 1932—only to ease back to around its base in the later dealings, and Phillip Morris, which came to life anew in the tobacco group to record a fresh gain of more than two points.

GRAIN PRICES SAG WITH BREAK IN COLD SPELL

Dullnes in Foreign Trade Also Is Factor.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Grain prices declined yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade under selling which developed in the wake of the preceding day's advance. Speculative buyers who sent prices up Wednesday turned sellers yesterday as warmer weather was reported over a large part of the grain belt.

Another depressing influence was the sluggish trading in the foreign markets, which reopened after a two day Christmas suspension. The stagnation in the international wheat market and the present slack commercial demand for grains in this market served to restrict speculative trading.

Weather reports suggested that the moderate relief from the cold spell experienced in the grain states would be only temporary and that lower temperatures will return today.

Wheat Loses Previous Gain.

Yesterday's recession in wheat quotations erased the moderate gains made on the preceding day. Final prices were down ⅝ to ⅝ cent a bushel. Corn held part of its advance, however, and lost only ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yest.	Wed.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .99⅝	$ .99⅝	$ .98¼
Corn	.80⅝	.90	.86⅜
Oats	.53	.53⅜	.51⅞
Rye	.75⅛	.76½	.76⅝

What damage, if any, has been done to the winter grain crops by the cold wave this week cannot be accurately reckoned. The weather bureau estimates that a fairly large acreage of both winter wheat and rye lacked enough snow to protect it adequately from the zero temperatures. As yet, however, no reports of unusual damage have been received from the producing sections.

Foreign Developments Watched.

With the United States now an importer of all the principal grains the developments in the foreign markets are being closely watched. A report from Argentina yesterday by the Broomhall agency said the corn crop has benefited greatly from recent rains, while wheat harvesting has been delayed.

On the pacific coast Argentine corn has a distinct price advantage over domestic corn, according to a survey by a Chicago grain firm. The foreign corn can be bought for less than the domestic grain. Whether this condition and the prospective importation of other foreign grains constitutes a brake on domestic prices is a matter of interpretation.

HOGS DIP EARLY ON HEAVIER RUN, BUT THEN RALLY

Larger receipts set the hog market back 10 to 15 cents early yesterday, but the advance estimate of only 17,000 for today, the lightest Friday run in two months, started a buying wave on local account and the earlier losses were recovered. Fresh pork received the preceding day's advance and some cuts sold at further gains.

Upwards to $9.25 was paid for selected new crop butchers, processing tax included. The average figured $8.85, tax included.

Top steers advanced 10 cents more to the $10.85 line, only 5 cents under the highest point for cattle in 35 months. Swift paid this figure for 40 steers averaging 1,389 pounds. Almost 500 steers weighing upward from 978 pounds brought $10 and more. Most steers sold within a range of $6.50 to $10.

Further advances of 50 cents or more in the calf trade carried top vealers to $8, the highest since Oct. 10, and $2.50 higher than early last week.

Lambs broke 25 cents late yesterday afternoon, top grades selling to city butchers at $9.10 and to packers at $9. Buyers and sellers came to grips over lamb prices early in the day and trading remained in a deadlock until a few minutes before the official closing time for business, when sellers granted concessions.
